Truman Tells 5000 DARs Key to Peace Is Strong U.S.

President and Mundt Stress Importance of Foreign Policy as Convention Begins

By Genevieve Reynolds
Post Reporter

Five thousand delegates to the Fifty-eighth Continental Congress, Daughters of the American Revolution, received a message from President Truman that "grave issues face our country at home and abroad."

The Chief Executive last night issued his warning in a greeting to the DAR leaders who have gathered from all sections of the Nation to map out defense programs.

Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne, president general, read the President's message to the packed audience attending the opening session of the five-day-and-night conclave in Constitution Hall.

"Only an America secure from within and without can assert its full authority in the councils of peace," the President's message read. "Our people are united in conviction that a strong, secure United States is the key to peace and progress."

While the President's message gave reassurance of positive measures in foreign affairs to enhance our security, it also cautioned against "the encroachment of alien ideologies"

Cites Atlantic Treaty

President Truman cited the recent North Atlantic Treaty, the European Recovery Program and the Government's unflagging support of the United Nations as a few of the concrete, positive measures taken to bolster American security and world peace.

In regard to the 12-nation North Atlantic Defense Pact, the President stated: "In this treaty the United States puts any would-be aggressor on solemn notice that the security of the larger community of which we are a part will be zealously guarded against any assault either on ourselves or any of our democratic partners."

Senator Mundt (R., S. Dak.), principal speaker at the opening session, called for a "redefinition and clarification of our foreign policy" to combat international communism.

Urges Committee Network

To control communism on the home front, Mundt appealed to DAR delegates to assist in creating a vast community network of American Enterprise Committees. The committees would sponsor: (1) required school and college courses accurately designed to teach "What's Right With America"; (2) a "Know Your America Week" in each community with churches, motion pictures, newspapers and schools participating; (3) a close watch over text books in the tax supported institutions of their home towns in order to prevent anti-American instruction; (4) defense of freedom by exposing Communist propaganda when detected in the community among public officials or private citizens.

Notes Struggle Among Nations

Pointing to the struggle between democracies and the totalitarian nations, he declared, "I believe that there is some relationship between the problems which we now confront and the action we took in 1933 when the United States gave official recognition—and thereby implied its sanction—of the Communist regime in Russia."

Tumultuous applause greeted the South Dakotan when he asserted, "America desperately needs a redefinition of our foreign policy.

White House Southpaw Pitches a Spitball . . .

By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

White House Walls Called Excellent

President Truman has been assured that the present White House walls will stand for four or five hundred years if they are given the proper foundation, officials indcated yesterday.

Instead of being flimsy as an egg shell, the exterior walls of the central portion of the building are in perfect shape, officials said.

The walls are of sandstone, some 4 feet thick at the base, and about 30 inches thick at the top.

A contrasting view, that the sandstone walls would probably stand for not much more than 50 years was voiced last week by Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.) of the House Appropriations Committee.

Present plans for remodeling the White House call for keeping the exterior walls of the central portion, providing them with a solid foundation, and rebuilding the interior around a steel frame.

Cannon favors instead razing the present structure and rebuilding it from the ground up, with marble, steel and copper, so that it would last "as long as the pyramids."

The present plan is estimated to cost 5.4 million. Complete razing and reconstruction of the building would save some $600,000 to $700,000, officials estimated.

3 of Family Die in Crash Near Rockville

A country outing wound up at 9:30 last night in the death of a Silver Spring father, mother and child when their sedan collided with an Army truck about a mile north of Clarksburg, Md.

A second child, last remaining member of the little family, suffered a broken leg and multiple cuts, but was reported in good condition at Suburban Hospital.

The dead are: Lewis E. O'Hara, 38, of 10116 Brunett ave., Silver Spring, identified as a telephone company employe; his wife, Catherine, 30, and their daughter Sandra, 5. The injured child is Edward, 8.

According to police, the family was returning from a day's outing in the country when, on Route 240, at the intersection of Comas rd., 11 miles north of Rockville, their two-door Ford sedan collided with an Army tractor-trailer truck loaded with tires. Two soldiers in the truck were unhurt.

O'Hara was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. Frank B. Broschart, Montgomery County coroner. Mrs. O'Hara was pronounced dead shortly after arrival at Suburban Hospital and their daughter was dead upon arrival there.

Court Told Of Moscow Schooling In Violence

U. S. Negro Nation In South Planned By Russia, Federal Worker Testifies

New York, April 18 (AP).—A Negro Government employe in Washington, who said he was trained in Moscow, testified today that a Negro nation was to have been formed from America's Deep South by the flames of violent revolution.

William O'Dell Nowell told a jury at the conspiracy trial of 11 top Communists that he once was a student of revolution at the feet of party leaders in Russia.

There, he said, Red army instructors schooled him in "the science of civil warfare."

Other instructors, he testified, lectured on "the violent overthrow of the capitalistic system and the establishment of a proletarian dictatorship."

Out of this blood bath, Nowell said, was to come a new Negro nation, conceived in violence and dedicated to extending the Communist revolution throughout the United States.

It was to extend from Virginia to the Mississippi delta, Nowell said—the "black belt of the South," where Communists claimed Negroes were in the majority.

"The revolution in the South," the witness went on in a hushed Federal courtroom, "would aid the Northern industrial workers in bringing about revolution in the North and hence throughout the whole country."

Nowell told Federal Judge Harold R. Medina and a jury:

"I objected to this segregation movement because it would isolate the Negro in the South and use him as a tool to create revolution in the United States and because it would sacrifice these unsuspecting people, as they had the least understanding."

Nowell is an employe of the Federal Immigration and Naturalization Service in Washington, D. C.

He said the theory of the Negro state was taught to him at the Lenin Institute in Moscow. The party in the United States approved the Negro state in theory at a convention in New York, he added.

Nowell said he joined the party in Detroit in 1929 as an employe of the Ford Motor Co.

Nowell said he first went to Moscow in 1929 as an official representative of the American Communist Party.

In 1931, he testified, he went back again to attend the Lenin Institute. He said Jacob Stachel, one of the 11 defendants, headed his group of students. Another defendant, Irving Potash, shepherded his group aboard ship, he said.

At the Lenin Institute in Moscow, Nowell continued, he met Clarence Hathaway, one-time editor of the Daily Worker; Gerhart Eisler, currently facing deportation proceedings in this country, and others.

The 11 Communist leaders are accused of organizing the party in the United States in 1945 to advocate the violent overthrow of the Government.

Challenges of Phone Order By Fay Clog Court Dockets

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

Washington Attorney James J. Laughlin yesterday failed to answer a summons to appear before the Prince Georges County grand jury investigating gambling.

However, there was some doubt as to whether the summons was in effect when the grand jury met.

The lawyer told reporters that the summons did not apply because, although it was served on him April 13, it was withdrawn the same day.

However, yesterday State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie told reporters emphatically that the paper had not been withdrawn.

Laughlin, who weeks ago had promised an expose of county gambling condition, appeared in the Upper Marlboro courthouse, where the grand jury is in session, upon invitation of Bowie April 13.

He and Mrs. John B. Keleher, estranged wife of the once-convicted gambler, each testified for two hours before the grand jury last Wednesday. It is understood that the jury, at Laughlin's suggestion, has requested telephone company records pertaining to phone calls made to a Mount Rainier gambling establishment after the place was supposed to have been closed.

Summoned together with Laughlin himself, were letters pertaining to county gaming in the lawyer's possession.

Laughlin told reporters yesterday that the letters were privileged and need not be produced.

The lawyer said that the summons was illegal to begin with since he had appeared in the county upon invitation and hence was immune from service there.

Asked whether he had attended

Twenty-three persons have turned to the Maryland Public Service Commission for the answer. Public hearings on their protests will start Friday before the PSC in Baltimore.

Nine more have appealed to the Prince Georges County Circuit Court. Hearings scheduled there for today were continued yesterday until May 9 at the request of the telephone company.

Thirty-six District subscribers are seeking the answer in District Court, in addition to Nathan Miller, 4923 LaSalle rd., Avondale, Md. The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. has been temporarily restrained from removing his telephone on suspicion of violation of District gambling laws.

No dates for hearings on these 36 suits have been set. None will be set until the end of the Easter court recess.

One person had appealed to the District Public Utilities Commission, challenging not only the company's authority to remove his telephone, but its authority to remove any telephone on the grounds that it is being used for an unlawful purpose.

In addition, United States Attorney George Morris Fay, who is trying to add phone removal to the list of District anti-gambling weapons, has entered into agreements with counsel for at least 40 more persons, whose service he

Truman Keeps His Standing As a Prophet

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman opened the 1949 American League season with an overhand spitball yesterday, and saw the team put on a ninth-inning Merriwell rally to save his reputation as a prophet.

Before going out to Griffith Stadium, the First Fan picked Washington to beat Philadelphia by a score of 5 to 4.

Amidst the delirium that attended the breathless 3-to-2 finish, Joe Kuhel, the Washington manager, jumped up from the players' dugout, tipped his cap, and said:

"That was for you, Mr. Pres. We wanted you to look good."

Mr. Truman, along with 26,000 other excited spectators, had been brought to his feet by Clyde Vollmer's screaming line drive to center, which sent in the winning run.

During the earlier and less dramatic innings, the Chief Executive ate peanuts and drank pop.

He grinned and shuddered as a Marine Corps sergeant, with a 20 bullpower voice, whooped it up for the home team.

It was Mr. Truman's fourth start in throwing out the first ball of the season. He cupped the ball in his right hand, spit on it in professional fashion, and then flung it with his left.

The horsehide landed just in front of the players, lined up between the presidential box and the first base line. Pitcher Sid Hudson of the Washington team made a dive for it, but was bumped by a Philadelphia player. The ball caromed off his glove and was scooped up by Eddie Robinson, new first baseman of the home team.

It was an auspicious start for Robinson.

Mr. Truman had staked his reputation for calling 'em at a luncheon earlier on Capitol Hill. He was presented with a 2½-foot plaster figure showing him in the uniform of an umpire, and jerking his thumb in the familiar "You're out" gesture. This was for his closest guess on last year's opening game, when he picked New York to whip Washington by a score of 8-3. The Yankees won that game, 12-4.

But Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.), who made the presentation speech, harked back to an even more spectacular forecast.

He recalled that the President, in picking himself to win in '48, had qualified as a good guesser in "the greatest game of all."

Lowell B. Mason, a member of the Federal Trade Commission, was host at the luncheon in the Senate dining room, which Mr. Truman has been attending on opening days for 14 years. The menu, as usual, featured roast beef and mashed potatoes, topped off by apple pie.

The President, after making his 5-to-4 guess on yesterday's game, drove from the Capitol to Blair

Decision Makes Former Wife A Widow, Cuts Off Successor

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The divorce law tangle was given another twist by the Supreme Court yesterday with five justices pulling one way and four another.

The result, said Justice Robert H. Jackson in a dissent, was to create a situation in which a dead man had "a wife who cannot be his widow" while, by dying, he left "a widow who was no longer his wife."

An unsigned majority opinion, presumably written by Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson upheld a Connecticut court decision that a Nevada divorce was invalid because the man obtaining it did not become a bona fide resident of that land of quickie divorces.

Jackson dissented in a written opinion while Justices Hugo L. Black, William O. Douglas and Wiley Rutledge dissented without stating their reasons.

The decision was on an appeal by Hermione P. Rice. She had married Herbert Rice in Reno in 1944, shortly after his divorce there from Lillian P. Rice of Connecticut. Rice died some months later whereupon his first wife attacked the divorce in Connecticut courts and asked to be declared his widow. Two lower courts upheld her argument as did the high court yesterday. Involved was the estate of Rice who left no will.

The majority opinion declared the first wife had, in fact, not participated in the divorce proceedings and could contest it.

Jackson quoted Shakespeare to say "confusion now hath made his masterpiece."

Jackson said that the second

Fellow Students Lend Eyes to Junior At Teachers College After Tennis Mishap

By Judith R. Spivak
Post Reporter

Donald McCormick, 24-year-old junior at Wilson Teachers College, has about 15 of his fellow students picked out as the finest friends a man could ask for.

McCormick, virtually blinded since a tennis accident a month ago, is nearly caught up with his seven-course load at school, because classmates have sacrificed Easter vacation days to read his lessons to him.

"I owe everything to them," the dark slender veteran said in a voice full of grateful enthusiasm.

Events of the past month have hit the young English major, who lives at 4608 29th st., Mount Rainier, pretty hard.

Married March 3 to Margaret Parham, his sight was damaged 20 days later as he played with other members of the Wilson College tennis team.

There were four men on the court, with two balls going, McCormick says. He bent down to pick up one ball near the net and, turning around as he stood up, was struck in the left eye by another ball hit 10 feet away by his partner.

An operation followed, then 17 days in Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital.

His left eye now distinguishes only between light and dark — no outline or color. From his other eye, he gets only an extremely blurred vision, described by doctors as a "sympathetic reaction."

Doctors make no predictions as to the future of his sight.

Following an eye hemorrhage 48 hours after the tennis court accident, he said it looked as if a pine tree were in front of his left eye.

His wife, an insurance specialist for the American Automobile Association here, read to him daily from 5 to 9 p. m., helping him finish three Spakespearean plays for a drama course.

Then three Wilson faculty members—Dr. Clyde Huber, now acting president of the college; Dr. Harry W. Olson, biology professor, and Dr. Wendell Cruze, psychology professor—began making plans for his future.

"They put a big blackboard up in front of the admissions office, asking students to read to me voluntarily," McCormick says.

"The response was overwhelming," he added. "Students volunteered hand over fist—9 a. m. to 5 p.m. every day."

And professors have agreed to let him take examinations orally.

Woman From India Points Out D. C. Slums, Shocks Senator

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Senator Ralph E. Flanders yesterday described Washington's slums as "absolute squalor."

The Vermont Republican said he was "shocked and incensed" by conditions he found in a tour of slums "within five or six blocks of the Capitol."

He said he made the tour after a woman visitor from India described her reactions to the conditions. A representative of one of the Iron Curtain countries, Czechoslovakia, had pointed out the slums to her.

Speaking in behalf of S. 1070, a bill to aid slum-clearance projects and low-rent public housing, he urged his fellow Senators to "go just a few blocks down toward the river" before they vote on the bill.

Reporters retraced in part Senator Flanders' path late yesterday. The first stop was at 219 F st. sw.

It was a street swarming with children and dull-eyed adults, and of houses with missing clapboards that leaned like the Tower of Pisa with less excuse.

Inside the front room of 219 F street two old men sat on two couches. The light was as gray as their tattered comforters and the air was no fresher. One of them was a one-legged grandfather.

In the room beyond, the family ate. One of the children knocked a borrowed bicycle over. Only a hasty grab prevented the pan of greens from going on the floor. The greens were left over from Easter Sunday, when the family also had potatoes. Last night it was greens and cornbread.

Leaning up against a wall, where the plaster had parted from

Radiator Concern Closes Two Plants

Pittsburgh, April 18 (AP).—American Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corp. today announced temporary closure of plants at Pittsburgh and Baltimore, plus about a 7-per-cent layoff at its brass plant at Louisville, Ky.

The firm operates a dozen other plants in the Nation. The Pittsburgh and Baltimore shutdowns will affect about 2000 workers—700 at Pittsburgh and 1300 at Baltimore. About 400 of the 5600 employes at the Louisville brass plant will be laid off.

H. M. Reed, jr., vice president and general manager of manufacturing, said, ". . . it is necessary to curtail operations because of the reduced activity in the building industry."

Employes' Offer to Take Pay Cut Fails to Save Jobs

Atlanta, April 18 (AP).—Employes of one Georgia textile mill have offered to take a 15-per cent wage cut to keep the mill open—but the manager said even that wouldn't keep it open.

Manager M. T. McDearmid of the Douglas Cotton Mills, Douglasville, said Saturday the mill "could't make money with the price of cloth what it is."

The 500 employes at the mill, which is the principal source of income for about 3500 persons at Douglasville, already have taken a 10-per-cent cut.

Bay State Laborers Accept Wage Freeze

Boston, April 18 (AP).—Massachusetts contractors and union laborers today signed a contract freezing minimum wages for at least another year.

State Labor Commissioner John J. Delmonte hailed the master contract as a milestone in labor-management relations. It provides for the first time a differential, with building laborers getting 10 cents an hour more than roadwork laborers. Wage scales are set by different areas. Minimums in greater Boston are $1.55 an hour for roadwork laborers, and $1.65 for building laborers.

5th Gettysburg Address Copy Going on Sale

New York, April 18 (U.P.).—Three sheets of ruled paper bearing 280 words that might have been scratched by a schoolboy are going to be sold next week at a price which may reach $350 a word.

The document is the signed, titled and dated version of the Gettysburg Address in Abraham Lincoln's own handwriting. It is the last of five copies Lincoln made of the famous speech he delivered at the dedication of the cemetery at Gettysburg, Pa., Nov. 19, 1863.

Known as "The Bliss Copy," it will be sold at the Parke-Bernet Galleries at 9 p.m., April 27. Experts estimate it may bring $100,000.

The draft was written by Lincoln for reproduction in a book entitled "Autograph Leaves of Our Country's Authors." The manuscript was kept by one of the publishers, Col. Alexander Bliss, and descended to his son, the late William J. A. Bliss.

The first and second drafts of the speech are in the Library of Congress. The third is in the Illinois State Historical Library at Springfield. The fourth is in the possession of a Mid-Western private collector.

Silver Spring Unit Balked On Bond Issue

The Silver Spring Hospital Association last night reelected all its officers, but received little encouragement on its major project to obtain a $1,500,000 bond issue from the county by a tax levy.

County Councilman J. Douglas Bradshaw, representing the council, told the group that the county's financial condition is not good and that the county will have to concentrate on new schools, rather than the proposed hospital.

He said he could not speak for the entire council, but that it would give careful consideration of a hospital bond issue when it comes before it.

Other officers re-elected were Bernard F. Burdick, vice president; Morris Taylor, treasurer, and Mrs. Ernest F. Klinge, secretary. The association also re-elected 150 members of the board of construction trustees. The meeting was held in the Liquor Control Board building, Silver Spring.

Son Denies Roosevelt Was Ill Before Death

New York, April 8 (AP).—Elliott Roosevelt denied today that his father suffered either heart attacks or cerebral hemorrhages "at any time before his death."

Writing in the current issue of Liberty Magazine, the son of the late President said an article by Dr. Karl C. Wold in the February 15 issue of Look magazine was unsupported by the facts. Dr. Wold's article said the President had suffered from a heart condition and had three brain hemorrhages.

Two Virginia Railroads Allowed to Consolidate

Richmond, Va., April 18 (AP).—Two Virginia railroads today were authorized by the State Corporation Commission to consolidate eight passenger trains operating between Washington and North Carolina.

The railroads were the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac, and the Seaboard Airline.

Permission was granted to consolidate RF&P Train No. 9 and SAL No. 9 with southbound RF&P No. 95 and SAL No. 5.

Northbound trains involved in the consolidation move are SAL No. 6 and RF&P No. 96, to be consolidated with SAL No. 10 and RF& P No. 110.

Elliptical Wheel Makes Good In Tryout for Serious Role

New York, April 18 (NYHT).—The elliptical wheel, long a favorite of circus clowns, vaudeville cyclists and amusement parks, has at last been put to a practical use, a 31-year-old inventor claimed today.

A contraption devised by John Frank Kopczynski of North Tonawanda, N. Y., has passed its first hurdle on the road to success and mass production. An official of the United States Army Corps of Engineers reported today after seeing a test that he would recommend it to the attention of the Army War College for further study.

"May Have Something"

"It looks as though he might have something," said Ralph H. Gallinger, chief of construction for the Buffalo District.

The egg-shaped wheels are intended for use in mud, snow or soft ground. The inventor claims they give better traction than round wheels, without the disadvantages of the caterpillar track used on tanks, bulldozers and similar vehicles. They are lighter, less cumbersome, and can be used on a highway without tearing it up.

The inventor claims to have overcome the bouncing effect usually associated with elliptical wheels by a simple device. He places a pair of wheels on each side of his vehicle, so arranged that while one wheel has its flat side on the ground, the other is standing on end.

Seesaw Does It

A rocker arm connects the hubs of the two wheels, and goes up and down like a seesaw. The center of the seesaw is attached to the axle, which connects with the opposite pair of wheels in exactly the same way. As the vehicle moves the wheels appear to walk with a sort of heel-and-toe action; the rocker arms go up and down, but the axle rides as smoothly as if the wheels were round.

Gallinger said the arrangement improves traction in two ways: the flat side of the elliptical wheel has the effect of a round wheel about 12 feet in diameter, which is good because big wheels are better in soft ground than small wheels. At the same time the pointed end of the other wheel is digging into the ground and pushing with a firm grip, so that it can't skid.

Special Atom Labor Board Is Proposed

By The Associated Press

A commission appointed by President Truman recommended yesterday a special procedure for handling labor disputes in vital atomic energy plants.

It included the creation of a new labor board, the "Atomic Energy Labor Relations Panel," which could step in as a last resort and delay a threatened strike or lockout.

The commission, headed by William H. Davis, former chairman of the War Labor Board, urged that the panel be used rarely and that labor relations in the atomic industry be — so far as possible — normal, voluntary, and free from government interference.

It proposed no new legislation. It came out against total outlawing of atomic strikes. But the unions and the companies in the industry would be required to continue operations — in any cause urgent enough for the "Labor Relations Panel" to enter—until 30 days after the panel had issued recommendations for a settlement.

Truman to Study Report

The commission consisted of Davis, Dr. Edwin E. Witte of the University of Wisconsin, and Aaron Horvitz, an arbitrator in New York City.

They visited Mr. Truman yesterday and handed him their report. He made it public and said he will give it "careful consideration."

The President appointed the commission last September to study labor-management relations in the atomic industry. Twice, serious strikes had been barely averted at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

An unusually difficult problem had arisen out of the fact that while atomic installations are owned by the Government and controlled by the United States Atomic Energy Commission, labor relations are carried on between private companies and their private employes.

Would Bar Irresponsibility

The Commission's major recommendations were:

1. That management and labor in atomic plants "wholeheartedly accept" a special responsibility to seek peaceful settlement of disputes in vital portions of the industry.

2. That the Atomic Energy Commission have "absolute and final authority" on all matters of security, and that such matters not be considered proper for collective bargaining.

3. That aside from the really vital operations in the industry, all collective bargaining be carried on normally, free from Governmental interference.

4. That all collective bargaining contracts in the atomic plants provide that any disputes involving the interpretation or application of the contract be settled without work stoppages—by arbitration if necessary.

5. That in critical disputes, people "at the very highest levels" of management and labor be brought into the negotiations.

Contests in NLRB Deplored

6. That management and labor make every effort to determine questions concerning the selection of unions to represent the workers by means of agreement and "consent elections," instead of having bitter contests before the National Labor Relations Board.

7. That in plants where unions are recognized as representing the workers, management and labor cooperate "to integrate the union into the plant organization as a two-way channel of communication and a medium of understanding between management and workers."

8. That the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) establish a labor persons, part-time officers, appointed by the President from nominations submitted by the AEC.

Truman Still Good Prophet

House. Then, with Mrs. Truman and Harry Jobe, an old Kansas City friend, he started for Griffith Stadium.

The band played "Hail to the Chief" and the great crowd came to its feet, cheering, as Mr. Truman and members of his party arrived. Vice President Alben W. Barkley, Cabinet officers, members of Congress and other notables took seats around the Chief Executive.

Party Lines Abandoned

Party lines were, of course, abandoned. Representative Charles Halleck (R., Ind.), a vehement foe of the Fair Deal, sat next to Clark Clifford, counsel to the President.

Mr. Truman stood with the other fans as Attorney General Tom Clark hoisted Old Glory to the pole in center field. Another flag, white wtih four upright red pillars emblazoned upon it, was hoisted beneath it. This was the first display of the United Nations Honor Flag, a symbol of friendship among peoples and nations.

The President shook hands with venerable Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics, threw out the first ball, and then settled down for what was to be a humdinger of a ball game.

Mrs. Truman left in the seventh inning and missed the fireworks.

Union Asks Revision in Wage-Hour Act

The Communications Workers of America asked Congress yesterday to discard the present partial exemption of telephone switchboard operators from coverage under the Wage-Hour Act.

Joseph A. Beirne, the union's president, made the recommendation to a Senate Labor Subcommittee. He said that continuing the exemption would be "perpetuating a subsidy of the independent telephone industry by those women workers forced to subsist on sub-minimum wages."

The present law exempts phone operators on public exchanges of fewer than 500 stations.

Beirne indorsed the proposed increasing of the hourly minimum wage from 40 to 75 cents and the centralizing of the wage-hour law in the hands of the Secretary of Labor. The changes are provided in an Administration bill under study by the subcommittee.

Another witness was A. L. Spradling, representing the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes. He said his group is an independent union representing 180,000 workers.

Spradling asked the committee to strike from its bill a provision which would continue to exempt street railway and bus employes from the wage-hour law. The bill approved by the House Labor Committee would bring these workers under coverage of the law, he said, and he urged that the Senate bill be amended to do the same.

Trade Board Backs Open Air Stadium

The executive committee of the Washington Board of Trade yesterday indorsed "in principle" legislation for construction of a 60,000-seat open air memorial stadium here.

At the same time the committee sent a telegram to Representative Harris (D., Ark.) commending his support of the bill, which Harris has indicated will be brought before the House District Committee

Bows to AMA

Physicians' Group Quits Health Fight

The National Physicians Committee, whose methods of waging war on compulsory health insurance plans have stirred bitter controversy since it was founded in 1949, has voted to disband.

The dissolution decision, arrived at April 10, was announced in letters to members of the medical profession, it was made known yesterday.

The committee explained that the American Medical Association had recently formed a group also opposing compulsory health insurance, and stated that the AMA program "represents the fulfillment of the objectives for which the National Physicians Committee was created.

Program of AMA

The AMA program, although calling for a new "Federal Department of Health" headed by a physician with Cabinet rank, is opposed to compulsory insurance for medical services, stressing instead voluntary and cooperative efforts.

Meantime, the White House confirmed yesterday that President Truman is considering carrying his proposal for compulsory Government health insurance to the people in a "fireside chat."

AFL President William Green said after a White House visit last week that the President would send his health plan to Congress this week in a special message, and follow it with a Nation-wide radio talk.

Thomas Discouraged

But Senator Elbert Thomas (D., Utah), chairman of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee told reporters:

"I don't want to sound discouraged, but there is not enough time left to get the (health) bill written properly and through both houses of Congress this summer."

The National Physicians Committee, which until 1948 had been indorsed each year by the AMA, found itself in hot water following its sponsorship of a cartoon contest in 1948.

The committee offered eight prizes totaling $3000 for the "best cartoons attacking the idea of a national health insurance program."

Contest Under Fire

This led to an attack on the committee by Senator James E. Murray (D., Mont.), who said the "catch" in the contest was that the cartoons must be published before being considered. This was, said the Senator, an attempt "to undermine the free press of America."

The committee was subjected to further criticism after it circulated a news letter signed by a "Dan Gilbert" who called himself a Washington minister, and who wrote that compulsory health insurance plans were "anti-Christ," and "made in Moscow."

This letter later was repudiated by the AMA in the journal of the association.

The NPC, which never has been recognized by the District Medical Society, was roundly criticized yesterday by Dr. Herbert P. Ramsey, a Washington delegate to the AMA house of delegates, who termed its tactics "yellow journalism."

Post Reporter

Senators considering a long-range housing bill were reminded yesterday that one of the worst slum areas in the United States is within the shadow of the Capitol dome.

Senator Ralph Flanders (R., Vt.), one of the 23 bipartisan sponsors of the measure, challenged his colleagues to walk through the row on row of tumbledown, dilapidated shacks in which some Washington residents are existing.

Flanders said his visit to Washington's slums caused him great "distress." In one shack, he said, 13 people were living in one room.

Sees Cooking in Alleys

The area is so overcrowded, Flanders said, that some families are forced to cook in the alleys outside their homes.

Making his maiden speech to the Senate, Senator J. Allen Frear, jr. (D., Del.), pointed out that farm areas as well as cities have slums and overcrowding.

Frear made his speech just before the Senate session was cut short so members could attend the season's opening baseball game between Washington and Philadelphia.

Some Democrats were hopeful of a vote tonight, but GOP leaders raised strong doubts as to whether a vote would be had before Thursday.

There is a growing Republican move to knock out what they term the "outhouse" section of the bill, a section providing for Federal aid to substandard farms.

Flanders predicted also that action may be slowed by an amendment by Senators John Bricker (R., Ohio) and Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) to bar any discrimination on the basis of race, creed or color in the renting of public housing units.

No Chance of Passage Seen

The amendments, he said, did not stand a chance of passage but could provoke a great deal of debate.

Frear told the Senate that passage of the bill with the farm-aid section "will give the farmers a badly needed helping hand in improving their living and working conditions."

"After all," he said, "the farmhouse and the related service buildings are the center of the farm operation.

"They serve a home, workshop, office, canning factory, bakery, restaurant, hospital, social and recreation center," said Frear, "and above all a place where the ideas and ideals of more than a quarter of America's future citizens are being developed."

Frear told the Senate that some of the worst overcrowding occurs in small houses containing large families.

Rail Freight Embargo Ordered in Rochester

The Association of American Railroads yesterday declared an embargo on less-than-carload of freight shipments into Rochester, N. Y., except under specified conditions.

The action was ttaken because a trucking strike threatens congestion in the freight yards there.

The embargo was requested by the Pennsylvania, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Lehigh Valley and Erie Railroads, which serve Rochester.

A conference on "frequency and time signals" is scheduled by the Washington section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers for 8 p.m. Wednesday in the East Building lecture room of the National Bureau of Standards.

W. D. George, chief of the high frequency standards section of the Bureau's Radio Propagation Laboratories, will speak on "Standard Frequency Broadcasts and Time Signals."

the laths in patches, was a 16-year-old girl, mother of an 8-week-old illegitimate child.

(That was not unusual, according to Dr. John R. Pate, medical director of the Southwest Health Center and well acquainted with the neighborhood. He spoke of an unmarried mother—in another family—said to be 13 years old, the father of whose child may or may not have been an aging cripple).

12 Sleep on Two Beds

Twelve members of the family sleep upstairs, on two beds.

In the back yard, broken glass and cinders were pushed back to the edges of the narrow yard. It left space for grandpa, who prepares his own meals. And a baby buggy, for which there is no room inside. The privy had seen better days and appeared stopped up.

Last winter the family had no coal, and sometimes no oil for the lamps. Father has just got a job hustling on a coal truck.

At the Rosalia Theater across the street the feature last night was "Walk a Crooked Mile."

Alleys Recently Paved

At Dwyer ct. and Dixon's ct., behind the old Smallwood public school—an area bounded by 3d and 4th, H and I sts. sw.—things are a little better than they used to be, according to Sergt. W. E. Rogers of the Fourth Precinct. The alleys were "recently paved and they can't get at the paving blocks the way they used to," he said.

But last summer 29 out of the 30 outdoor privies were stopped up one day, according to Dr. Pate, and a man was found dead in one last winter.

Yesterday a man was standing outside of a house, shaving in a mirror propped up in a window frame. There was light to see by, outside. And a woman with third-phase syphilis wended her way through the children.

It was a rooming house at 715 Second st. sw. Entrance was a stumbling-dark hall, the outer wall of which was the brick wall of the adjacent house.

Five Families on One Floor

No one was quite certain how many people lived there. A family of five occupied the second floor front. Five families occupied one floor.

There was a bathroom with a toilet and a bathtub with cold running water. The partition between the room and the hall had large holes in it, affording ventilation if not privacy.

"A few weeks ago," Senator Flanders said on the floor of the Senate, "a woman visiting this country from India, was interested in studying the conditions of our low income groups.

"A member of the staff of the Czechoslovakian Embassy volunteered with understandable enthusiasm to show this visitor the 'American Way' of life here in Washington. She was taken to the Southwest part of our city.

"After an hour or so," Senator Flanders said, "she was so aroused that she could not help but comment on the hypocrisy of America.

"'In India'," he quoted her, "'we have conditions as bad as these, but we do not boast of our way of life to the rest of the world'."

Virginia Plans Road of Rubber

Richmond, Va., April 18 (AP). — The State Highway Department plans to build a section of rubber road.

The strip, a small section of Route 29 north of Charlottesville, will be an outdoor laboratory experiment. Materials are to be furnished by the Rubber Development Bureau, Washington. The material to be used will include a ton of powdered rubber. The mixture will include asphalt and about 5 per cent rubber.

U. S. Sponsors Smoke Test To Study Smog Problems

Donora, Pa., April 18 (AP).—A trial by smoke began here today in an attempt to solve the riddle of a smog blamed for 22 deaths last fall.

It's a four-day test in which United States Public Health Service technicians are undertaking to duplicate industrial conditions which prevailed during last October's tragedy.

Then low-lying smoke and fog blended in a pall so thick it could be tasted. People died gasping in that smothering atmospheric blanket. Hundreds of others became ill.

Some people feared the test was merely inviting the ghostly killer back. But these fears were held groundless. The investigators said there was no danger. They will end the test at the first sign of a duplication of last year's smoke and fog conditions.

The first day of the test was cold and showery. There was a strong west wind blowing.

The zinc works of the American Steel & Wire Company—Donora's principal industry—was put in full operation for the test. Its 10 tall chimneys spewed smoke. Below the stacks a wall of thick, white smoke rose from ovens. The wind whipped the smoke directly across the Monongahela river to Webster, where many were stricken last fall.

Visibility was unlimited in Donora—due to the wind's vagaries.

The zinc works curtailed operations after last year's tragedy—although nothing conclusive has yet been established on what put the mysterious killer into the air. Officials said the work again will be curtailed after the tests are over.

Royall Will Await Nazi Trial Inquiry

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Army Secretary Royall said yesterday he would wait a "reasonable time" for Congress to investigate before taking action on death sentences of six Germans convicted of massacring 80 American soldiers.

Coincidentally, he dropped what might be a hint that his retirement would take place soon. Royall told a Senate Armed Service Subcommittee that he did not wish the matter to "drag on so long" that he would "pass the buck" to his successor.

In any event, Royall declared, the case has claimed so much attention that "no decision which I or my successor may announce . . . will meet with universal approval."

The subcommittee was opening an investigation into methods used to secure confessions from former SS troopers convicted of shooting down 80 American prisoners of war and a number of Belgian civilians in the Battle of the Bulge. As a result of their trials, which ended in July, 1946, all 73 defendants were convicted, with 43 sentenced to die. In subsequent reviews by higher authority, 13 convictions were disapproved, 34 defendants were given sentences ranging from 7 to 25 years, 14 got life sentences and 12 death sentences were approved.

The Supreme Court, by a 4-4 vote, declined to intervene on a question od jurisdiction. Several investigations were made, as a result of which all but six of the death sentences were commuted to life imprisonment. Those six are now being reviewed by Royall.

Royall yesterday said that criticism of the Army's conduct of the investigation and the trials was based entirely on versions of the convicted men themselves. The Army had not been heard, he said, and added that he welcomed the opportunity to present the Army's case.

Royall, explaining his conviction that whatever decision he might make would meet with disapproval from one direction or another, said:

"If the sentences are commuted, there will be the criticism that the deaths of young American soldiers are going unpunished.

"If the sentences are confirmed, there will be some who will accept unreservedly the Germans' version of mistreatment, and it will be asserted that innocent men have been convicted and that fundamental American principles of justice have been violated."

So he would be glad, he said, if Congress or its committee would take the responsibility of recommending what course to take. And in any event, he added, he would be glad to have individual opinions and would give them careful consideration.

Laborites Back United Europe

London, April 18 (U.P.).—Britain's Labor Government is changing its hostile attitude toward Winston Churchill's movement of European unity to a policy of encouragement and support, informed sources said today.

This change is particularly evident in the Labor Party's active support of the movement's economic conference which starts here Wednesday, they said.

The conference will be addressed on behalf of the Labor Government by Defense Minister A. V. Alexander, as well as by Churchill himself.

The government will also give a reception for the 200 conference delegates from 17 European nations, almost equally divided between Socialists and capitalists.

Fourteen observers from six Iron Curtain countries are also expected to be present.

the Bride Makes Her Dress

Partly, of course, for purely sentimental reasons, but largely, too, for the thrill she finds in choosing fabrics from our collection. Satin . . . smooth as rich cream . . . for the bride who, to quote Mademoiselle, feels it "the Only Dress in the World." Clouds of cottons and stiffened chiffons . . . for the bride who believes "the Most Beautiful Dress in the World is sheer and starchy." Come see . . . the makings of dreams come true . . . for the bride and her bridesmaid, too.

Russian Bid to End Blockade Expected

By The Associated Press

American officials look for Russia to come up with a firm proposal to lift the Berlin blockade.

Such a proposal has not yet been made, according to the best evidence here. When it is, officials expect it to be put forward with all the secrecy that Moscow can arrange, unaccompanied by reports such as those which developed over the weekend from Berlin and elsewhere.

Meanwhile, the State Department made plain its interest in hints that Russia may be seeking a face-saving way out of the deadlock, but withheld comment. A spokesman said the reports were too "many and varied."

Speaking privately, topflight diplomats said there have been numerous rumors of "peace" feelers, particularly out of Berlin.

Secretary of State Acheson and others would welcome an end to the blockade, now costing the United States five million dollars a month.

It is stressed here that any negotiations must be on terms satisfactory to the West. Russia must lift the blockade before there is any resumption of Big Four talks on Germany's future such as Moscow says she desires.

The manner in which Russia has steered clear of serious incidents in Germany during the 10-month siege has convinced some top American authorities that Moscow is determined to avoid war and that the West has been unduly cautious in dealing with the crisis. Their view is that instead of establishing the airlift the West should have defied Russia when the crisis first developed and reopened the land route to Berlin with a threat of force. The officials think this might be done even now without an armed clash.

Berlin 'Deal' Rumors Still Flourishing

Berlin, April 18 (U.P.).—Rumore persisted today that Russia was seeking a way to end its economic blockade of Berlin without losing prestige by confessing tacitly that it had failed. But high Allied officials said the reports were strictly rumors.

One report was that the Russians might permit resumption of traffic on the high-speed automobile road between Berlin and the western occupation zones.

"We have had no indication of any change in the Soviet attitude," Col. Robert A. Willard, troop commandant in Berlin said of that report. "From what I've seen there has not been any change." It was to Willard that the Russians gave notice last year that they intended to close the road.

Philip Hawkins, deputy economic adviser to Gen. Lucius D. Clay, commander in chief, said he saw no sign that the Russians were going to lift their blockade.

Neither Allied nor German officials have received any feelers from the Russians toward discussing the ending of the blockade, Hawkins said.

Other officials said the Communist pleas for a revival of trade did not call for the lifting of the Russian blockade but rather expressed a desire that the Western Allies lift their counter-blockade, imposed in retaliation. The counter-blockade has deprived eastern Germany of needed coal and steel from the Ruhr, and has caused a slump in the economy of the Russian occupation zone.

American officials denied reports that the American military government had recommended lifting the ban on German civil aviation.

Guard Federalization Opposed in Minnesota

St. Paul, Minn., April 18 (AP).—The Minnesota Legislature today went on record in opposition to federalization of the National Guard.

The secretary of defense and committee on civilian components, commonly known as the "Gray Board" had recommended federalization.

"Federalization," the resolution reads, "would result in centralization of all military power in the Federal Government and ultimately in the hands of a few and thus pave the way for establishment of a dictatorship, military or otherwise, in this country."

Road Publicist Named

Baltimore, April 18 (AP). — Maryland's State Roads Commission today hired a public relations man. He is Clinton H. Johnson, for several years a reporter for the Baltimore News-Post. He assumed his post under a 12-month contract which calls for $7800 a year.

War Games Put U. S. Troops In Field to 'Defend' Germany

Nuernberg, Germany, April 18 (U.P.). — Seventy thousand American soldiers fought off an attack by 100 "enemy" planes tonight, and took up defensive positions along the Czechoslovak border, as gigantic week-long maneuvers against an "aggressor" from the east got under way.

The crack First Infantry Division dug in behind two United States armored brigades on the frontier of American occupied Germany to meet a simulated attack expected Tuesday by two powerful armies which outnumber United States troops, three to one.

American gas-engined and jet-propelled fighters teamed with ground guns to beat off the enemy attackers — United States planes played the part — in the first phase of the largest American maneuvers in Europe since 1945.

A mock situation map in American field headquarters showed at least nine imaginary enemy infantry and armored regiments massed on the Czech side of the border.

Gun crews huddled about well-guared radar equipment, sweeping the eastern horizon with "seeing eye" beams. In maneuvers last year, defense against enemy plans proved to be dangerously weak.

Simulated anti-American disorders also broke out behind United States lines, mock demonstrations, in which "subversive" speakers called on Germans in three United States zone cities to welcome the "aggressor," were part of the Army's plan to make the spring maneuvers as tough as possible.

Practically the entire United States military garrison in Germany moved into the field to take part in the games, which are being observed by representatives from the western power nations. Russian observers were not invited, ostensibly because Americans never were asked to attend Soviet maneuvers.

Cuba Asks U. N. Probe of Balkan Cleric Trials

Lake Success, April 18 (NYHT). Cuba asked the nited Nations today to establish a special 15-country commission to set up headquarters in Geneva and investigate alleged persecutions in the trial of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty in Hungary and in the trial and sentencing of Protestant clergymen in Bulgaria.

The Cuban resolution, introduced before the special Political Committee of the U.N. General Assembly, called upon Communist Hungary and Bulgaria to cooperate with the inquiry by giving members of the proposed commission access to the records of the trials and to the prisons where the convicted clerics are held.

The actual debate will begin Tuesday in the Political Committee on the conviction of Cardinal Mindszenty, Roman Catholic primate of Hungary and Protestant clergymen in Bulgaria — all on charges of treason, spying and black market dealings in currency.

The Cuban action today was not pleasing to the United States and some other delegations. These delegations said that they were opposed to the resolution because it was not practical, and it also had the possibility of ending in a farce in the likely event that the two Communist states would simply refuse to admit the investigating commision.

Safeway Trims It Before Weighing

...SO YOU SAVE MONEY

We'll Give You 2 Rib Roasts
(THEY WON'T COST YOU A PENNY!)
*If ever you get a Safeway Rib Roast not trimmed this money-saving way

HEAVY CHINE BONE REMOVED
by Safeway (and replaced with a layer of fat, light in weight, to seal in meat juices) before we weigh your rib roast on the market scales. It gives you a roast that cooks and carves better

END SECTION OF SHORT RIBS REMOVED
by Safeway before we weigh your rib roast (we sell these short ribs separately, at a lower price per pound). Your Safeway rib roast includes only the tender center portion that will roast just right

It means more tender, juicy meat in every pound you pay for...a bigger value for your meat dollar at Safeway!

YOU SEE ABOVE how Safeway removes excess bone and waste from rib roasts before weighing. And the test-purchase report presented here shows you how important it is to compare trimming as well as price.

We prepare other cuts in similar fashion — each according to its special requirements. This waste-free cutting is part of Safeway's Guaranteed Meats plan. We regularly trim our meats this way.

When you compare meat prices, remember that Safeway's prices always are on the TRIMMED cut, free of excess bone, waste and fat, ready for cooking.

If ever you're not satisfied that the meat you buy at Safeway is trimmed the money-saving way we say, just show it to the manager of the Safeway store where you bought it. If your Safeway rib roast (for example) is NOT trimmed as shown above—you get TWO rib roasts without a penny's extra cost (and without quibble or argument!)

Safeway buys nothing less than the top government grades of beef (all beef sold at Safeway is U.S. Government graded) . . . nothing less than the top grades of lamb, pork and veal. More. We hold our meats the full number of days needed to bring out peak flavor and tenderness. And we safeguard their goodness with exact temperature controls.

Come prove for yourself — there's more good-eating at less cost in Guaranteed Meats from Safeway!

Test purchases by Independent Bureau show you can save money on meat

We asked an independent research organization to check methods of trimming meat in this area.

And we secured proof that it pays you to check trimming as closely as you check price when buying meat.

In 231 representative markets in this area where they bought meat they found a great variation in the way meat is trimmed.

In 96% of the markets other than Safeway, rib roasts purchased were not trimmed before weighing. Had the rib roasts been first trimmed and then weighed (as Safeway does), the average saving would have been over 9¢ per pound. Actually, customers of some of these stores would have saved amounts up to 22¢ per pound.

This survey shows unmistakably that thousands of housewives in this area are paying regular meat prices — which are high enough these days, goodness knows — for waste that is thrown away!

- Example: For rib roasts purchased UNTRIMMED shoppers paid an average of almost 56¢ more per 6-lb. roast than if these roasts had been trimmed BEFORE weighing. In some markets up to $1.32 more!
- Example: For T-bone steaks purchased UNTRIMMED shoppers paid an average of almost 48¢ more per 2-lb. steak than if these steaks had been trimmed BEFORE weighing.
- Example: For rib lamb chops purchased UNTRIMMED shoppers paid an average of over 34¢ more for six chops than if these chops had been trimmed BEFORE weighing.
- Example: For legs of lamb purchased UNTRIMMED shoppers paid an average of over 61¢ more per 6-lb. roast than if these roasts had been trimmed BEFORE weighing.

Wherever you buy meat you are entitled to money-savings that result from proper trimming of each cut before it is weighed. Insist that your butcher trim this way. If he refuses, why not buy at a market where this kind of trimming is done?

Red 'Hysteria' Here Hit by U. S. Group

Paris, April 18 (U.P.).—American delegates to the World Peace Congress here declared today that hate of the Soviet Union has reached a state of "hysteria" in the United States.

Speaking at a press conference shortly after their arrival, five members of the delegation accused the American press, government agencies and "certain elements of of the population" of undermining the desire for peace of millions of Americans.

They called the World Peace Congress, which opens here April 20, "the greatest effort ever made to bring together people from all over the world who believe peace must prevail."

The spokesmen for the 20 American delegates were Rockwell Kent, artist and president of the International Workers Order; Albert E. Kahn, writer and president of the Jewish Peoples Fraternal Order; Dr. William E. B. DuBois, Negro educator and writer; Mineola Ingersoll, chairman of the women's division of the Kings County, New York, American Labor Party, and Donald Henderson, president of the Food, Tobacco, Agricultural and Allied Workers Union.

'Atomic Age' Carrier Begun . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

BECOMES A FACT—Laying of the keel of the USS United States at Newport News, Va., yesterday ended a week of uncertainty as to whether the 65,000-ton super-aircraft carrier would be built. Without ceremony a giant dockside crane picked up a 15-ton bottom shell panel, including a keel plate, and deposited it on keel block which had been built a month ago. The construction of the first atomic age carrier was underway last week to answer questions whether the Navy would get its giant carrier.

Newport News, Va., April 18 (AP). The keel of the world's largest aircraft carrier—big enough to handle bombers capable of carrying atom bombs—was laid today.

No ceremony attended start of work on the 65-000-ton super-flattop, which has been the center of a hot controversy between the Navy and the Air Force.

Laying of the keel today ended a week of uncertainty as to whether the ship would be built. President Truman and Secretary of Defense Johnson both refused

At 8:45 a.m. a giant dockside crane picked up a 15-ton bottom shell panel, including a keel plate, from the floor of the biggest building dock at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. plant, and deposited it on keel blocks approximately at midship position.

Installation of keel blocks began about a month ago.

The United States is scheduled for completion in 1952.

Reds Guilty In Polk Case, Accused Says

Salonika, Greece, April 18 (AP). A former Communist declared from the witness stand today that "the Communist Party of Greece, the Cominform and Moscow" were guilty of the murder of CBS Correspondent George Polk.

Gregory Staktopoulis, the witness, declared himself an unwitting tool in the death of the American radio correspondent, whose body was found in Salonika Bay last May 16, a week after he disappeared from his hotel.

Staktopoulis is one of the three accused of the murder. Two Communists, Adam Mouzenides, alleged triggerman, and Evangelos Vasvanas, are being tried in absentia. Staktopoulis' mother also is on trial on a charge of abetting the murder.

A Leftist Greek journalist, Staktopoulis said, "I did not know what these evil men had involved me in. I knew nothing of what was in the mind of Mouzenides and Vasvanas. I never thought by helping an American correspondent these peohad in mind to kill him."

His confession stated that Polk was killed in a boat while en route to what he suposed was a rendezvous with Markos Vafiades, then Communist guerilla chieftain, for a story.

Staktopoulis said he became connected with the Communists when he joined the EAM, national resistance front, during the German occupation. He said he worked in the propaganda section, distributing BBC broadcasts and doing other underground work in Salonika.

Greek Rebels Lose Position, Report Says

Athens, April 18 (AP). — A general staff spokesman said today Greek commandos, operating near the Albanian border, had driven Communist-led guerillas from a strongly fortified area in hand-to-hand fighting.

The rebels were forced out of their positions south of the Sarantaporos River in the Grammos Mountain region, the inofrmant said. More than 100 guerillas were reported killed and 60 taken prisoner.

A communique said the Greek army also had scored victories in western, central and eastern Macedonia. The rebels lost 187 dead and 80 captured in the Macedonian fighting. There was no announcement of total army losses on the two fronts.

Gen. Dean Shifted To Eighth Army

Tokyo, April 18 (AP).—Maj. Gen. William Dean will become chief of staff of the Eighth Army next month, Eighth Army headquarters announced today. Dean will be succeeded as seventh infantry division commander by Maj. Gen. David G. Barr, head of the disbanded United States Military Advisory Group in China.

It also was announced that Maj. Gen. Anthony G. Mcauliffe of Bastogne fame would take command of the Twenty-fourth Infantry Division, succeeding Maj. Gen. Albert C. Smith, who is returning to the United States for duty with the Second Armored Division.

In Farewell Here

Sforza Puts In New Plea For Colonies

Italy's Foreign Minister, Count Carlo Sforza, paid a farewell visit to Secretary of State Dean Acheson yesterday, reiterating his pleas for return of Italy's prewar colonies.

The bearded, 75-year-old diplomat, who came here originally for the April 4 signing of the North Atlantic Treaty, has spent the bulk of his available time between here and the United Nations General Assembly in New York, seeking support for Italy's claims.

Because the United States, Great Britain, Russia and France were unable to agree on disposition of the African colonies of Italian Somaliland, Eritrea and Libya, the issue is now before the U. N., which will make the final decision.

Asked if he was still hopeful that Italy's claims will be successful, Sforza said, "Personally, I do believe that this is a thing which is according to justice and to the interests also of the Arabs, and to my view, of general understanding between the European nations."

Count Sforza, who is to return to Europe aboard the Queen Mary, said he and Acheson talked of the colony question, European problems, and "Italo-American relations."

He declined to say if he won assurances of any changes in the American position on the colonies, which was last reported to be favoring an Italian trusteeship over Italian Somaliland, Ethiopian trusteeship over eastern Eritrea, with the balance of Eritrea going to the Sudan, and British trusteeship for Lybia.

NANKING (Tuesday), April 19 (AP)—Communist troops one million strong were poised today to storm across the Yangtze River Wednesday—the deadline for Chinese government surrender.

Nationalist military leaders made no pretense that they could prevent it, although some sort of fight is almost certain.

Acting President Li Tsung-jen was reported to have appealed for an extension of the deadline, but this gloomy capital had small hopes.

The prevailing opinion was that the Red demand, including free crossing to the south bank at 10 places, left no room for argument.

Total Surrender Demanded

Government officials admitted privately that, stripped of a few face-saving frills, the Red terms were total surrender. They could see no prospect but amalgamation of Nationalist troops into the Communist army, creation of a so-called "coalition" government, and their own gradual but complete ouster from power.

There was a report that an emissary had been sent to Chikow, south of Shanghai, to ask the opinion of "retired" President Chiang Kai-shek.

Another report circulated that Chiang already had decided to order withdrawal of the entire Shanghai-Nanking garrison southward. He could do it, for these 300,000 troops are commanded by Gen. Tang En-po, loyal to Chiang and no backer of Li's peace efforts of the past three months.

It is no secret in Nanking that Chiang favors sacrificing the Yangtze line for a stronger last-ditch defense in the South.

Tang's men are believed sure to put up some kind of opposition to the Reds' Yangtze crossings, whether Nanking yields or not. They then are expected to fall back on Shanghai, whence some would be shipped to Formosa and others would march south for a later stand.

Formosa Preparations Made

It is one the island of Formosa, where most of the Nationalist air force and most of its gold and silver now are situated, that final Nationalist resistance is expected.

Acting President Li thus would be left with control of no more than the 200,000 troops of his friend, Gen. Pai Chung-hsi, centered on Hankow, 375 miles up the river southwest of Nanking.

Against these feeble and dissention-cracked defenses, the Communists have three armies estimated to total one million men.

The military news agency said more than 3000 boats had been assembled by the Communists fronting Chinkiang.

The agency said the Reds also were feverishly setting up artillery and collecting boats 180 miles southwest of Nanking.

It said all roads north of the big river were clogged with Communist military traffic heading south.

Lane Extends Deadline For Truck Licenses

Annapolis, Md., April 18 (AP).—Governor Lane today set a new deadline of May 15 for securing new truck licenses.

Lane announced a second extension of 15 days to give the Department of Motor Vehicles more time to prepare for the flat-license-fee system approved by the State Legislature two weeks ago. The original April 1 deadline for new registrations had already been extended 30 days to May 1.

Chinese Red Sees in Victory New World Balance of Power

Moscow, April 18 (NYHT). Pravda, Communist newspaper, today published a report from Peiping declaring the forthcoming Communist victory throughout China will bring an important change in the balance of world power.

The report was a summary statement by Jen Pi-shi, a member of the central committee of the Chinese Communist Party.

Pravda quoted the Chinese as reiterating the Soviet view that the United States is seeking to avert an imminent economic collapse by preparing for another war.

"If the imperialists, in fact, provoke a war," he said, "the people's democratic forces of the world undoubtedly will annihilate the forces of the imperialists . . . all this shows that the present international situation is favorable for a successful development of the Chinese revolution."

Jen was quoted as saying fifteen years of intensive work will be needed to consolidate the Red victory in China.

He reported a plan to rebuild war-damaged industry in three to five years and to raise industry from 10 to 40 per cent of the entire economy of China within 15 years.

In a future offensive south of the Yangtze River, he said the first step will be to occupy cities from which rural regions will be controlled.

Couple Found Hanged After Girl's Complaint

Newark, N. J., April 18 (AP).—A middle-aged couple was found hanging from a cellar rafter today, little more than 24 hours after the man had been arrested on charges of molesting an 8-year-old girl in a local movie house.

"This is a very hard letter to write," police quoted a note signed by the woman, Mrs. Neadham Roberts of 36 Chester ave., "Neadham and I are going together. It is best that way. He is innocent of any charge against him."

U. S. Moves to Take Army Out of Korea

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Negotiations for the withdrawal from Korea of remaining United States' occupation troops within a few months are under way in Seoul, South Korea, it was disclosed yesterday.

About 8000 Army troops are now said to be in South Korea, compared to a peak of some 50,000 troops who entered the country after V-J Day to disarm and evacuate Japanese forces.

Dr. Syngman Rhee, president of the South Korean republic which was established last May in U. N.-sponsored elections, said in Seoul:

"Our defense forces are now rapidly approaching the point at which our security can be assured, providing that the Republic of Korea is not called upon to face attack from foreign sources."

Upon withdrawal of American forces, said Dr. Rhee, "an American military mission will continue to function in Korea, lending its offices to the improvement and expansion of our defense forces."

State Department Press Officer Michael J. McDermott said Dr. Rhee's statement "accurately reflects the situation . . . in line with provisions of the 1947 and 1948 resolutions of the General Assembly of the United Nations, which recommended the withdrawal of occupation forces at the earliest date practicable."

Russia announced last December that it was withdrawing its occupation troops from the northern half of Korea, which left the upper portion of the country in control of the Soviet-sponsored People's Republic.

The United States, despite Russian protests, refused to withdraw its troops until a legally elected government was established. Russia barred the U. N. election commission from its area.

Dr. Rhee told a news conference in Seoul, where he is conducting the negotiations with American Ambassador John Muccio, that proposed American withdrawal "in no way signifies a lessening of United States commitment and interest in the Republic of Korea. Rather, it is accompanied by renewed assurances to continue its economic, military, technical and other assistance for the welfare and safety of the Republic of Korea."

There was no definite indication here as to exactly what form such "commitments" will take. Korea has been receiving financial aid from the United States since the war, presently at the rate of about 125 million dollars a year.

2-1 Decision

Eisler Loses Appeal, With One Dissent

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

The conviction of Gerhart Eisler for passport fraud was upheld yesterday by the United States Court of Appeals in a 2-to-1 decision.

The dissent to the decision was based in part on the contention that the presence of Government employes on the convicting jury was prejudicial since a Communist was on trial.

"For Government employes to acquit this alleged Communist leader would have been particularly imprudent," wrote dissenting Judge Henry W. Edgerton.

The majority of the appeals court found the evidence of guilt in Eisler's case to be "abundant." The German-born Communist, accused of having been a king-pin Kremlin agent here, was found guilty of fraudulently concealing his aliases and Communist activities when he applied in 1945 for a permit to leave this country.

He is now free on bail.

The Appellate Court majority opinion was written by Judge Wilbur K. Miller with Judge Bennett Champ Clark concurring.

Win Debate

Miss Langerman Miss Pasternack

Two George Washington University women students were declared winners yesterday in the women's division of the 1949 Grand National College Debate Championship.

The students are Miss Elaine Langerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Langerman, 5122 9th st. nw., and Miss Ann Pasternack, daughter of Mrs. D. Pasternack, 1109 North Pitt st., Alexandria.

They formed the only undefeated team from 63 universities and colleges participating in the tournament. The tournament was held over the weekend at Mary Washington College.

They debated both the affirmative and negative of a question dealing with Federal aid to education.

University students Henry Krebs of Sheboygan, Wis., and Steve Grub, 908 Henderson ave., Takoma Park, Md., took second place in the national men's competition.

Irish President Asks People to Talk Gaelic

Dublin, Ireland, April 18 (AP).—President Sean T. O'Kelly of the new Republic of Ireland told his countrymen tonight to stop speaking English and restore the ancient Gaelic language.

In a radio address O'Kelly said the winning of the republic would be an empty victory if the Irish lost their language.

Posters appeared on Dublin's streets calling for a boycott of English newspapers. "The king is gone, now cut the language tie with Britain," the signs said. They were printed in English.

Ireland was a completely independent nation again after 780 years of rule by the British crown. Celebrating Irishmen danced in the streets, shouting "Na Poblacht Abu!"—Gaelic for "Up the Republic!!"

For many of the celebrants there was one flaw in this great day. The republic covers 26 of the island's 32 counties. Six counties of Ulster province, in the northeast, remain with Great Britain.

O'Kelly and Premier John A. Costello called for a union of all Ireland. The premier—the word in Gaelic is taoiseach, pronounced tee shock—said the Republic of Ireland would grant a large measure of local autonomy to Ulstermen if the partition of the island were ended.

Costello told a news conference his government would allow "those people in the Northeast who are hanging so tenaciously to their privileges" to retain the powers of government they now hold, provided defense and foreign affairs are placed in the hands of an all-Ireland regime. He continued:

"Although we have severed the ties that bound us to Great Britain and other members of the commonwealth we believe that what has been done today will ensure more cordial and closer cooperation, greater and more real friendship, between Ireland, Great Britain and the other commonwealth countries than could ever have existed under former conditions."

A feature of the day was a parade through the streets of Dublin by soldiers of the republic. Among the marchers were many members of the old Irish Republican Army—the group which carried on a furtive and bitter war for years against British rule.

Civil Trial Opens On Suit by Melish To Retain Pulpit

New York, April 18 (NYHT).—A civil trial to determine whether the Rev. Dr. John Howard Melish is to continue as rector of the Church of the Holy Trinity in Brooklyn opened today with 11 of his parishioners testifying they were ready to support him in defying his bishop's order to yield his pulpit.

The Right Rev. James Pernette De Wolfe, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Long Island, who ousted Dr. Melish at the behest of the church vestry, will give his side of the controversy on the witness stand when the case continues in Supreme Court Tuesday.

The controversy revolves around the activities of Dr. Melish's son, the Rev. William Howard Melish, who is a leader of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship but denies being a Communist.

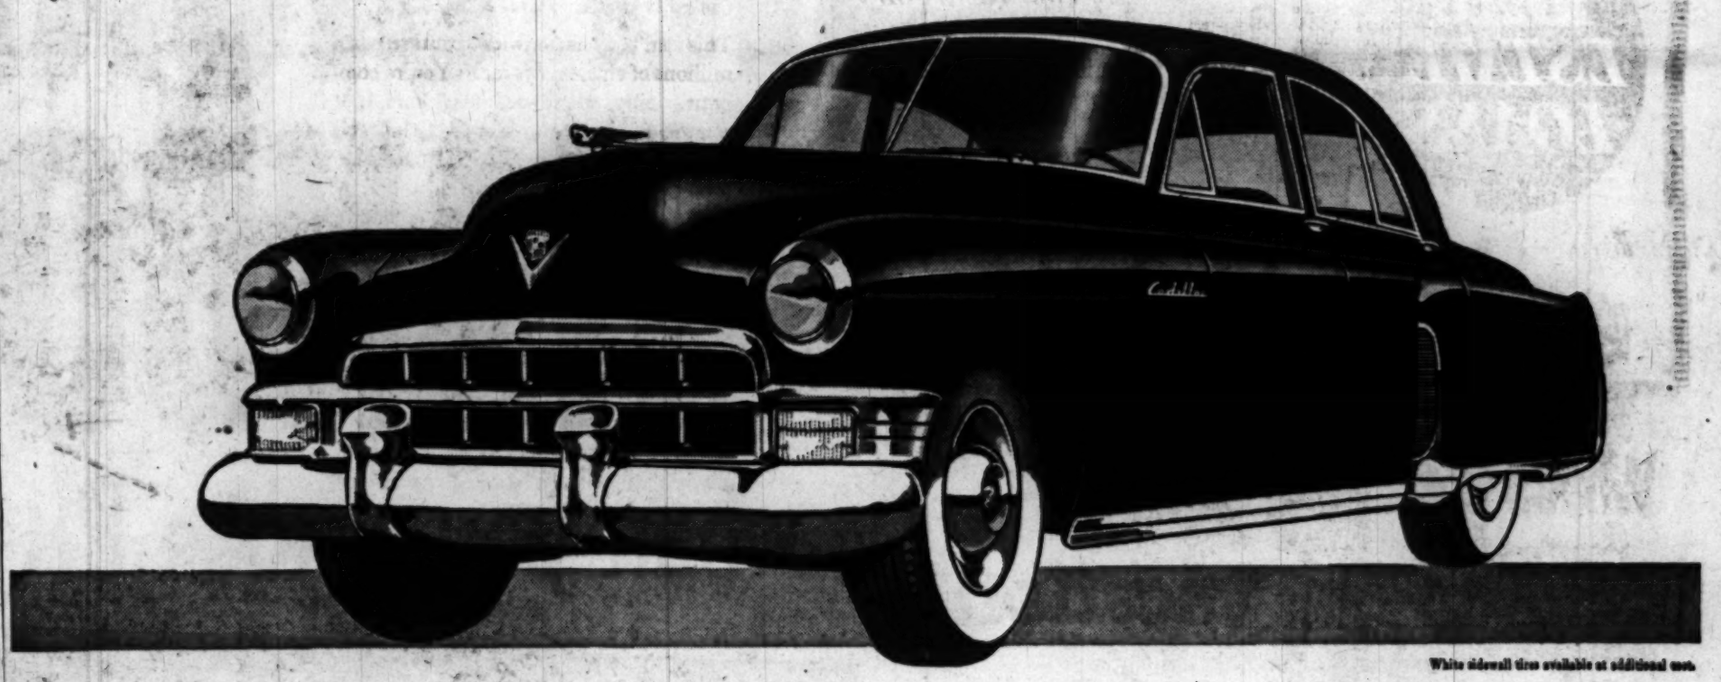
Writes its Owner's Biography!



White sidewall tires available at additional cost.

It seems safe to say that there is no material possession which speaks more eloquently of the man who owns it than a Cadillac car.

Wherever it is driven, it offers authentic testimony as to its owner's good taste—his concern for the safety and comfort of his family and friends—and his general standing in the field of endeavor in which he has chosen to make his contribution to the world's affairs.

Indeed, if a complete list were published of those who own and drive this distinguished car—it would be obvious that it has become a hallmark of achievement in almost every walk of life.

That this should have happened is entirely logical—for Cadillac cars have been built, for almost half a century, to the most uncompromising standards of excellence. As a result, Cadillac stands alone in all the things that make a motor car a distinction to possess and a pleasure to utilize.

The 1949 Cadillac is the grandest of them all, in every way. Why not visit our showrooms and see for yourself?

House Unit Reports On 'Peace' Rallies

The House Un-American Activities Committee charged yesterday that the recent peace conference in New York was part of a world-wide Communist ecort to make scientists into spies and saboteurs.

"If the Communists could succeed by playing upon the notorious political naivete of physical scientists in inciting scientists to 'strike' against their own governments, or sabotage," the committee said, "it would be a real achievement for the Soviet Fatherland."

The committee's charges were contained in a pamphlet designed to review the Scientific and Cultural Conference for World Peace at New York, March 25, 26 and 27. That conference, it said, was but a forerunner of the "World Peace Congress" opening Wednesday at Paris. It described the head of the Paris meeting as Frederic Joliot-Curie an atomic scientists and "an avowed French Communist."

The principal purpose of the international movement, the committee declared, is to incite scientists to "civil disobedience." It said a similar "peace and culture" congress is to be held at Rio de Janeiro in mid-April, sponsored by "Brazilian Communists and their fellow travelers."

The New York meeting, the committee said, was "a super-mobilization of the inveterate wheelhorses and supporters of the Communist Party and its auxiliary organizations."

"It was in a sense a glorified pyramid club," the pamphlet said, "pyramiding into one inflated front the names which had time and again been used by the Communists as decoys for the entrapment of the innocents."

The committee named those it listed as sponsors of the New York conference and gave their "Communist front connections." One sponsor, the artist Rockwell Kent, was credited with at least 85 such connections.

Of the rest, it said three had been connected with 71 to 80 Communist fronts, 4 with 51 to 60, 9 with 41 to 50, 10 with 31 to 40, 28 with 21 to 30, and 235 with 1 to 10.

'At least 20 of these sponsors," the committee said, "are either avowed members of the Communist Party of the United States of America or their membership cards or party affiliations have been made part of a sworn public record."

Those named as American sponsors of the Paris conference were:

Bishop Arthur W. Moulton, Dr. William E. B. Dubois, O. John Rogge (cochairmen); Elmer Benson, Richard O. Boyer, Joseph Brainen, Dr. Charles Hawkins Brown, Angus Cameron, Rabbi J. X. Cohen, Prof. Henry W. Longfellow Dana, Olin Downes, Muriel Draper, Prof. Henry Pratt Fairchild, Howard Fast, Lion Feuchtwanger, Daniel S. Gillmor, Shirley Graham, Ada Bell Jackson, Sam Jaffe, Albert E. Kahn, Rockwell Kent, Dr. John A. ## Public Peeks, So Duke Boards Up Blenheim Park

Oxford, England, April 18 (U.P.). The tenth Duke of Marlorough today barred the public from Blenheim Park, Winston Churchill's ancestral home, because they peeked through the palace windows while he and his duchess were entertaining a house party. Easter holidays crowds became "rude" and swarmed over the gardens and grounds and some peered through the windows.

The boarding up of the gates was the culmination of the duke's many threats to close the beautiful estate to the public unless their behavior improved.

Churchill's father was the third son of the seventh Duke of Marlborough.

9 Nominated For Council

Nine persons, including four incumbents, were nominated for the Hyattsville City Council last night at a special nominating session at the Hyattsville City Hall.

Council members will be elected May 2 and will serve four-year terms.

Yesterday's registration of voters was reported as high, and a partial tally indicated that at least 113 voters had registered. Voters may also register Wednesday.

Nominated for the city council were:

Second Ward—Harry A. Styne, incumbent; Jacob S. Walter and Malcolm A. Dent.

Third Ward—Dr. Victor R. Boswell, incumbent, and W. Stanley Machen.

Garden Talk Tonight

Robert E. Scannell of the Potomac Rose Society will discuss flower gardening at North Ridge Citizens Association meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the George Mason School, Cameron Mills rd., Alexandria.

McCrary Gets Interim Post

Samuel E. McCrary, 422 Columbus st., Falls Church, a candidate for Falls Church City Council, was appointed to an interim council post last night.

Meeting in the City Hall, the council elected McCrary to fill a vacancy left by the resignation of Councilman Samuel Dennis.

McCrary, 40, who filed as a candidate in the June 14 city council elections, is an electrical engineer for the Navy Department. He will serve his appointed term through August 31.

In another action, the council named John R. Williams, 211 S. Oak st., to the city planning commission, to replace John Graham, who resigned. Williams is a member of the Washington consulting engineering firm of Johnson & Williams.

Dr. Wise Reported Somewhat Worse

New York, April 18 (AP).—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, 75-year-old Jewish leader critically ill since Saturday, was reported by Lenox Hill Hospital tonight to be somewhat worse.

To Discuss School Plan

The Garrett Park (Md.) Citizens Association will meet at 8 p.m. today in the Garrett Park Elementary School to discuss the Montgomery County Council's proposed plan for new school construction.

Steam, Hot Water Scald 7 Girls in School Restroom

Danville, Ind., April 18 (U.P.).—Steam and hot water scalded seven girls in a restroom of the Danville school building today.

Four were taken to James Whitcomb Riley Hospital for children in Indianapolis. The others were given first aid and sent home.

School authorities said they believed the hot water and steam gushed from lavatory and drinking fountain outlets after the hot water backed up in cold water taps. School was dismissed for an inspection.

Loudspeakers to Carry Beery Rites Afar

Hollywood, April 18 (U.P.).—Loudspeakers will broadcast funeral services for Wallace Beery Tuesday to permit Hollywood and the actor's fans to pay him final tribute.

The services will be conducted in the small Church of the Recessional at Forest Lawn Memorial Park. Attendance in the church will be limited to 300 close friends and studio associates of the actor.

Enter the "Pledged Quality" Laundries' Big Contest!
WIN $1,000 CASH!
Just for stating why you like today's laundry service

Here's All You Do:
Finish this sentence in 25 words or less:
"I LIKE TODAY'S LAUNDRY SERVICE BECAUSE . . ."

Enter Today! It's Easy to Win Because This Contest Is Limited to Greater Washington.

This isn't a nationwide contest with millions of entries. It's local! You're competing only with your neighbors, not somebody in Chicago or Seattle—and there'll be nothing but local winners. Think of it—you can win as much as $1,000 in cash. It's fun to try! You don't have to be a regular laundry customer to enter—but you can certainly write a much better entry if you've enjoyed the service you're writing about. You'll be well pleased with today's helpful, sanitary, efficient and economical "Pledged Quality" services. Read the rules. Study the hints. Then get an entry blank from one of the Pledged Quality Laundries (or routemen) and start writing.

HERE ARE HINTS THAT MAY HELP YOU WIN!
Today's modern laundry service is vital to health, comfort, and good living. It eliminates hard work. When you send your clothes to the laundry, you have more time to enjoy life—to take care of household duties—to devote to your family—to spend in the kitchen making more delicious meals. You say good-bye to washing-and-ironing drudgery when you call on your "Pledged Quality" laundry.
The laundry washes clothes better. Bed and table linens come back snowy white, gleaming in their cleanliness, faultlessly pressed. Shirts are factory-fresh, buttons are replaced, collars are crisp, wrinkleless and inviting.
The weather is never a factor when you use the laundry. Rain or shine, snow or sleet, your laundry is ready to relieve you of worry. No more colds from hanging out the wash in a biting wind! No more cluttered house when nasty weather sends the wash indoors! No more chapped and wrinkled hands from soap and water.
Your professional laundry protects health—not only in the elimination of drudgery, but in the battle against germs. Home-laundered clothes, by actual test, have been proved to be amazingly unhygienic. Professional laundering is truly germicidal, with controlled temperatures and rinse water as pure as the water you drink.
Today's modern laundries give you "gentled" clothes. They're easier on your garments. Special multiple rinsing processes never leave soap in your wash to shorten the life of fabrics.
Take the matter of cost. When your laundry is returned, there's a bill attached for the total cost of the whole operation. Compare it with the total cost of doing the laundry at home. Figure operating costs of your equipment, the price of soap and other materials used, the water, the cost of heating the water, the wear and tear on your machines. Add the cost of maid service, or if you do it yourself, the time you spend. Don't forget the interest on the investment on the equipment—the amount your money would be earning if it were in a savings account or government bonds.
And how much is a tired back worth? Or legs weary from climbing stairs, or arms from lifting and hanging wet and heavy clothes? What price would you put on a miserable head cold or rough chapped hands? Add in all costs, both hidden and obvious—then figure if you can afford not to use the laundry!

★ THE SIMPLE RULES ★
1. Get an official entry blank from a Pledged Quality Laundry, branch store, or routeman. Complete the sentence: "I like today's laundry service because . . . " in 25 words or less.
2. Mail your entry to: Pledged Quality Laundries' Headquarters, Room 105, Willard Hotel, Washington 4, D. C.
3. Entries may be typewritten, or written in pencil or ink.
4. Submit as many entries as you wish, as long as each entry is on a separate, official contest blank.
5. Be sure to print or write plainly. Give your name, address, and the name of your Pledged Quality Laundry clerk or routeman. (This is important, for he shares your good fortune if you win by receiving an additional prize.)
6. Contest closes May 16, 1949. Entries to be considered must be postmarked not later than midnight of that date.
7. Entries will be judged for sincerity, originality, and clearness. Judges' decision will be final. Fancy entries will not count extra—your words and ideas are what matter. No entries will be returned. Entries and the ideas expressed therein become the property of Pledged Quality Laundries of Greater Washington.
8 Any resident of Washington or its suburbs may compete, except employees of Pledged Quality Laundries, their advertising agencies, and their families. Contest is subject to all District, State and Federal regulations.
9. Winners will be notified by mail as soon after contest closing date as is practicable.

Get started now! Ask for your official entry blank from any of the

Farmer Admits Spite Killing of Aged Sister

Walterboro, S. C., April 18 (U.P.)—A 60-year-old farmer has confessed that he fed poison to his aged sister because she refused to eat breakfast and buried her in a hog pen while she was still alive, Sheriff G. Haskell Thompson said today.

Thompson said Wyman Hiott told him he killed his 80-year-old sister, Mrs. Carrie Hiott Carter, because "I just plain got tired of waiting on her all the time."

I HATE DANDRUFF!

You can't combat it effectively with ordinary preparations that merely remove loose dandruff. They're no better than plain water and brushing!

Double DANDERINE GUARANTEES DANDRUFF RELIEF

Kills dandruff-causing germ*—on contact!

This refreshingly fragrant, easy-to-use dandruff preparation has given truly remarkable results—even in some of the most stubborn cases!

The most common kind of dandruff is not a natural condition. Top ranking authorities say it is caused by a germ. And to effectively relieve this handicap to good looks and social success, you must destroy the germ.

Ordinary preparations that simply remove loose dandruff are no more effective than plain water and brushing, because they can't combat this germ. But a remarkable product called Double Danderine is amazingly effective, because it actually kills this germ—on contact!

That's why we say Double Danderine guarantees dandruff relief. Try it. If you're not completely satisfied, return the empty bottle and your money will be refunded.

*Pityrosporum Ovale, the germ which leading authorities say is the cause of the most common kind of dandruff.

Fourth Victim Dies After Virginia Crash

George R. Creech, 31-year-old floor finisher of 1219 G st. ne., died yesterday in Fredericksburg, Va., of injuries suffered in a head-on crash which killed his 12-old daughter and two others Sunday.

Creech

Creech, who suffered leg, arm and nose fractures and multiple lacerations, died in Mary Washington Hospital at 1:25 p. m.

Killed Sunday in the crash 10 miles north of Fredericksburg on Route No. 1 were Creech's daughter, Jeanette, 12; Eugene Elwood Kemper, 24, and Mrs. Marjorie Coppage, both of Morrisville.

According to police, the Washington-bound car Creech was driving was crowded with relatives returning from an Easter outing and collided with a southbound car driven by Kemper.

A third car driven by John C. Parker, 4821 N. 33d rd., Arlington, struck the two collided cars, but no one was injured in Parker's car. Police said all the injured were in the Creech car.

They were listed at the hospital and their conditions given last night as Paul J. Creech, 41, of 531 Kennedy st. nw., brother of George, in critical condition; Mrs. Della Mae Whitehead, of Wilson, N. C., critical; Paul Thompson, 4, grandson of Paul Creech, serious; Ollie Ruffin, jr., 23, Relman Creech, and Mark Horne, all of Wilson, in fair condition.

In Alexandria a Chicago girl was arrested yesterday morning on four traffic charges after her car hit a truck, knocked down a fence and crashed into a house.

Car Knocks Down Fence

Identified as Katheryn Jane Norwood, 18, she said she had just turned north onto S. Washington st. from Franklin st. about 9 a. m. when her car apparently skidded on the wet pavement.

Police said the car swerved in almost a 180-degree turn and hit a stopped truck headed south. Then it careened up a bank, knocked down a picket fence and shrubs and hit the foundation of a three-story brick house at 617 S. Washington st.

Mrs. Malcolm W. Hill, who lives in the house, said the crash broke cellar windows and knocked things off walls in the cellar.

Police charged Miss Norwood with reckless driving, destroying property, operating without a driver's permit and operating without a registration card. It was reported the car belonged to a Quantico Marine whom the girl was visiting.

Police estimated damage to the car at $350 and to the house at $200. Miss Norwood is scheduled to answer the charges in Alexandria Police Court today.

Laughlin Fails to Meet Jury

the opening day ball game as he had said last week he intended to do in place of appearing before the jury, he answered, "I sure did."

Bowie told reporters last night: "I'm not prepared to answer whether he (Laughlin) is in contempt . . . just what will be done by the grand jury in this situation, I'm not prepared to tell you . . ."

Meanwhile, the jury was shown material and pictures taken during Federal gambling raids in the county about three weeks ago.

The data was shown by Downey Rice and James R. Sharp, special consultants to United States Attorney George Morris Fay. Fay conducted the raids.

After being closeted with the jury for nearly three hours, Rice told reporters: "We went into the general picture of gambling in Prince Georges County."

Rice said the jury asked him "a lot of questions" and he declared "that is a good sign."

Phone Suits Clog Dockets

wants discontinued. Fay has agreed not to have the phone disconnected until the Miller decision is final.

Although Judge David A. Pine has granted Miller a temporary restraining order, the order has not yet been signed, and Fay is still being urged to take an appeal from Pine's ruling.

Established Elsewhere

But while Fay is running into difficulty in his campaign to get telephone removal accepted in this area, the principle is well established in other jurisdictions.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled in a Maryland case that a public utility "may refuse to render service which is connected with illegal operations, not only where such action would subject it to prosecution as a participant in the illegality, but also where it would have the effect of promoting illegality, even though the company might not be liable to punishment for rendering the service."

The case was Howard Sport Daily, Inc., vs. O. E. Weller, chairman of the State PSC. Howard is one of the two services furnishing racing information to many of the 36 accused gamblers now awaiting trial in the District.

The court decision, handed down in February of 1941, also said: "A court should not lend its aid to enforce a contract to do an act that is illegal."

In a 1940 Florida case, it was ruled that "the law is well settled that the aid of a court of equity to prevent the discontinuance of telephone service which is being used to facilitate bookmaking in violation of the law or in the promotion of any other gambling scheme or device will not be enforced."

It is on this decision that Fay is now basing his opposition to the 36 motions for preliminary injunctions against himself and the telephone company.

Two memoranda of opposition filed yesterday by Fay were the first from his office to include the quotation from the Florida case. Judge Pine was presiding over a court of equity when he granted Miller's injunction.

Nationally, the Federal Communications Commission has asked the Bell Telephone System to incorporate in its tariffs the policy of denying telephone service for unlawful use.

No Federal case has required service to be furnished to known disseminators of racing news.

In another Florida case, a Miami racing news disseminator sought an order prohibiting the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co. from discontinuing his telephone service. A notice of discontinuance was sent to him by the company, after it was notified by the U. S. Attorney General that the phone was being used for unlawful purposes.

The court refused to issue an order enjoining the telephone company from discontinuing the service.

An FCC report on the extent of communication facilities used in dissemination of racing information concluded its section on the legality of use of communications by bookmakers, with the following:

"Thus while the racing news disseminator whose information is designed to aid in bookmaking may not be subject to criminal penalties in the conduct of his business, the courts have generally held that he cannot compel the communications company to furnish him service nor can he prevent the company from terminating his service."

Ruling Makes Wife a Widow

wife had married Rice as "a man this court says Nevada had a right to make free." Yet, he went on, yesterday's decision says Connecticut can determine that Rice hadn't established proper residence in Nevada, and Connecticut can therefore challenge the divorce after his death.

This, then, the justice said, creates "a divisible divorce by which the parties are half bound and half free and which permits Rice to have a wife who cannot become his widow and to leave a widow who was no longer his wife."

State May Decide on Matter

In an earlier case involving a North Carolina couple, the Supreme Court ruled that a State which has jurisdiction over the two people involved may determine for itself whether a bona fide residence was established in a quickie divorce State such as Nevada.

But in another case the court held that if a defendant in such a divorce proceeding makes a court appearance during the case, he or she may not afterward raise in another State the bona fide residence argument.

NEA Says Schools Do Best Job Ever

Despite teacher shortages, overcrowding, and limited budgets, schools of the Nation are doing a better job of teaching than ever before, the National Education Association said yesterday.

The fourth annual report of the teaching profession issued by the NEA declares that "the amount of time spent in today's school on the three R's is more than four times as great as it was a hundred years ago."

Willard E. Givens, NEA executive secretary, described the report as an answer to critics "who fear that the course of education may be getting away from such essential learnings as reading, writing and arithmetic."

Visual aides, instruments for uncovering faulty reading habits, and devices for testing hearing ability are equipment that should be made available in all schools "if all the children of all the people" are to be trained, Givens said.

Church Drops Priest Backing Fired Profs

BULLETIN

Boston, April 18 (U.P.).—Archbishop Richard J. Cushing announced tonight that a Jesuit priest who backed three Boston College instructors in their charge that the institution was teaching heresy had "lost the right to perform any priestly functions."

The Archbishop said that Rev. Leonard Feeney, S. J., of St. Benedict's center in Cambridge, no longer could preach or teach religion. He also said that any Catholic who frequented the center or took part in its acitvities would "forfeit the right to receive the sacraments of penance and holy eucharist."

Boston, April 18 (AP).—Three instructors dismissed for accusing Boston College of heresy tonight sought "an infallible pronuoncement by Pope Pius XII on the issues involved."

The three lay instructors said they asked the Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, to appeal to the Pope "to reconvene the Vatican Council for the pronouncement."

The Rev. Leonard Feeney, S.J., head of St. Benedict's Center, said St. Benedict's is sponsoring "a movement to appeal to His Holiness."

Fired were James R. Walsh, a philosophy instructor, Fakhri Maluf, assistant professor of philosophy, and Charles Ewaskio, assistant professor of physics.

The three accused Boston College of heresy by teaching students that: (1), there may be salvation outside the Catholic Church; (2), a man may be saved without admitting the Roman Catholic Church to be supreme among all churches, and (3), a man may be saved without submission to the Pope.

Capital Has Day of Data On Weather

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

Information on weather prediction—short-range and long-range—was flying in Washington yesterday.

Two hundred weathermen attending the American Meteorological Society meeting at the National Archives Auditorium heard Saul Price, research man with the United States Weather Bureau, suggest that "odds" information on such things as thunderstorms be supplied the public.

Dr. Abbot Predicts

At the Smithsonian Institution, Dr. Charles G. Abbot, research associate, chose yesterday to announce that his methods of predicting weather for 12 months in advance had worked out with a "high degree of accuracy" in 1948. And for extra measure, he predicted that for 1949 there will be a "relatively cool Fourth of July and a relatively warm Christmas."

Price's studies — which have nothing to do with Abbot's, and are for short range only—deal with thunderstorms in Washington. He described them before the meteorological society yesterday, and later in an interview.

Thunderstorm Data

His findings, based on four years study, show that on a given day it can be predicted with a high degree of accuracy what the odds are on a thunderstorm coming up. Predictions are from available weather data.

He thinks the information could be of great value to certain kinds of business.

Say the odds were two out of 10 that there will be a thunderstorm. A telephone company, says Price, trying to decide whether to keep men overtime, probably would take the chance and go ahead. But a contractor laying concrete, an operation where almost absolute assurance of good weather is needed, would put off the job.

Price said he has his doubts about the value of general publication of thunderstorm-odds information. A prediction that the chances are only 1 out of 50 for a thunderstorm would probably end up in a rainfall just as the family set out for a picnic.

Long Range Forcasts

Dr. Abbot, who specializes in long-range predictions, bases his theories on periodic fluctuations in the heat radiation of the sun.

In January, 1948, he predicted 55 days—a few for each month—in which the thermometer would drop to a minimum and start rising again. Between the "cold days," the prediction went on, there would be warmer days averaging 7.1 degrees Fahrenheit higher. Then would follow a drop to another minimum.

Dr. Abbot then locked his predictions in a safe. Early this year the safe was opened by the director of the Smithsonian's Astrophysical Observatory.

Out of the 55 "minima" predicted, Mr. Abbot said, 48 had lower temperatures than others intervening between them. Average excess of the warmer days was 6.96 degrees, as against a prediction of 7.1 degrees.

New Device to Be Displayed For Measuring Vertical Wind

Development of an instrument which long has been the dream of weathermen—a device which will accurately measure vertical wind—will be announced today before the American Meteorological Society in session here.

Horizontal wind—well, everyone knows what it is and its measurement is simple. But vertical wind is the wind working when you see a paper whisked from the ground straight upward. For years meteorologists have worked unsuccessfully to find an accurate device for measuring it.

Measure for Smog

In a practical way the new instrument may prove of great value in measuring conditions under which dangerous gases, smog, or radioactive gases, for example, might become concentrated enough to be dangerous.

The device is called a "sonic anemometer" and measures wind by sound. Its principle of operation is similar to that of the underwater sound gear used on subchasers during the war. It has been developed, after three years work, chiefly by 33-year-old V. E. Suomi, now of the University of Wisconsin, but who did most of his work at the University of Chicago. Ferguson Hall, another meterologist also attending the conference here in the National Archives Building, worked with Suomi on the instrument at Chicago.

Hailed by Experts

The instrument was described yesterday by meteorologists as one of the most significant to be developed for several years in the science of weather study.

Heretofore, measurement of vertical wind has been done by such means as pressure plates—a thin metal plate deflected by pressure of air. This method has been fairly reliable for measuring violent winds, but not the weaker currents, which, as one meteorologist pointed out, could be the more "dangerous," as in smog or radioactive atmosphere.

Like the underwater sound gear, the sonic anemometer sends out sound waves. But there is no returning "ping." Instead, the measurement is effected by sending out two sound waves from opposite directions. The difference in the speed of the two determines the measurement of wind. The instrument measures both vertical and horizontal wind.

3 Indicted In Arlington Store Thefts

Arlington's grand jury yesterday indicted three District men charged with breaking into four stores and taking nearly $15,000 in cash.

They were Clifton Davis, 18, of 2424 G st. nw; Theodore F. Mozee, 18, of 927 27th st. nw., and Albert E. Walker, 23, of 2212 G st. nw. Each pleaded innocent to four counts of breaking and entering.

Called One of Quartet

Also indicted on a charge of participating in one of the housebreakings was Leroy Sams, 18, no known address, now in District Jail on a similar Washington charge.

Police say he joined the other three in breaking into the Virginia Hardware Co., 2016 N. Moore st., on April 8 and robbing its safe of about $13,000.

Also among the 12 persons indicted by the grand jury yesterday was Army Sergt. Eugene Miller, 26, of Fort Myer, Va., for felonious assault with his car April 12.

The injured man, Richard O. Brown of 2424 N. Florida st. suffered bruises. Miller pleaded innocent.

Travel Aide Notes Migrant Male Rise

A Travelers Aid Society official reported yesterday that migrant males are on the increase.

The official, Miss Lucille Bruner, executive secretary of the District chapter of the society, told its members at a meeting in the Burlington Hotel that "more families seem to be moving. The number of migrant males seems to be on the upward curve."

She told reporters later that no definite explanation for the movement has been arrived at and speculated that the change of season plus seasonal occupations might be a partial answer.

Officers elected at the session were: Miss Cecil Lester Jones, former national president of Junior League, president; Edward D. Merrill, president of the Capital Transit Co., and Mrs. Robert Whitelaw Wilson, past president of the Washington Junior League, vice presidents; Walter B. Clarkson, former vice president of the C. & P. Telephone Co. and Millard F. West jr., investment banker, treasurers; Mrs. Wayne Coy, secretary.

Board members are Mrs. William S. Anderson; J. Harry Covington, 3d; the Rev. Dr. Malolm Marshall, rector of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church; Hudson S. Moses, manager of the Burlington Hotel; Crosby S. Noyes, member of the Evening Star news staff.

Woman Who Bore Girl After Wound Likely to Recover

Dallas, April 18 (AP).—Mrs. Addie Hudson, 19, who gave birth to a daughter after she had been shot through the head, was in "excellent" condition tonight—but blind. Her physician gave her "every chance of recovering."

Mrs. Hudson was shot Friday. Yesterday she gave birth, a month prematurely, to a four-pound daughter. The child, in an incubator was "getting along fine" tonight, hospital attendants said.

City policeman J. W. Gallaher said he was called Friday to the room where Mrs. Hudson and her husband, Lester L. Hudson, lived.

"I found Mrs. Hudson on a bed, shot through the head," the policeman said. "A .22 rifle was nearby." Gallaher said he was told that Mrs. Hudson was alone in the home when the shot was fired. A relative found her.

Rodeo Producer Charged Under Child Labor Law

Eight-year-old Shirley Gretona, highwire walker at the Texas Rodeo currently showing here, last night tight-roped a producer of the show right into a charge of violating the District's child labor law.

When the youngster came on for her act last night the audience included Sergt. Arthur B. Cross of the Fifth Precinct and Alice Schaefer of the D. C. Child Labor Board. They watched Shirley's act—walking a wire at 40 feet above ground—then Sergt. Cross arrested Larry Henry Sunbrock, 39, Cincinnati, Ohio, who gave his occupation as producer. Shirley is from Rochester, Ind.

District law states that no child under the age of 14 shall work. Sunbrook posted $100 collateral for a court appearance Wednesday.

D. C. Technicians to Study Cancer Tests in Chicago

Washington technicians will go to Chicago to study the new blood test for cancer for use in detection clinics here, it was announced last night.

Technicians will be dispatched to study the test, based on albumin disturbance in a cancer victim's blood, developed by Dr. Charles B. Huggins, University of Chicago surgery professor.

Dr. Peter D. Comandurras medical director of the District division of the American Cancer Society said the new test "may put us on the threshold of a completely revolutionized cancer detection as well as throughout the Nation."

Dr. Comanduras said Dr. Harry H. Kerr, president of the society's District division, will confer with Dr. Charles Cameron, medical and science director of national headquarters this week to get the test "into practical application immediately in Washington."

The test, announced Saturday, may prove "the greatest single advance ever made in the fight against cancer," according to Dr. Shields Warren, director of the Atomic Energy Commission's Division of Biology and Medicine.

Centralized Buying Urged for Hospitals

Decentralized buying in most of the Nation's hospitals may be wasting 10 per cent of their budgets, Neal R. Johnson, purchasing agent of Johns Hopkins Hospital, said here yesterday.

Speaking before 65 hospital officials at the opening session of the Institute on Hospital Purchasing conducted by the American Hospital Association at the Wardman Park Hotel, Johnson declared that disorganized buying had helped skyrocket the country's hospital budget to $1,500,000,000 a year.

About one third of this, or 500 million dollars, he told reporters later, is allocated for supplies. Ten per cent of this, or 50 million dollars, could be saved by the adoption of a central purchasing system under a single purchasing agent in each hospital.

Citing the results of a questionnaire sent out last year by the Hospital Bureau of Standards and Supplies, Johnson said only 39 of the 160 hospitals reporting had complete centralized purchasing. Johnson said he thought this ratio would hold good for all hospitals.

The questionnaire also revealed, Johnson said that the great majority of the hospitals reporting did not use adequate standards in purchasing. Some of them, he said, reported the use of commercial standards or Federal specifications for products where no such standards exist.

Waste and inefficiency could be curtailed, Johnson maintained by having a single purchasing agent of executive caliber responsible for the purchasing, storage, disbursement, inventory and quality of hospital supplies.

The institute will remain in session through Friday.

American Incident

-done in oil!

THE WORLD TODAY is at grips over the age-old question whether rulers can plan the economic life of the people as well as the people themselves.

Dictators—Mussolini, Hitler, Stalin, et al—substitute their edicts for economic law. Every "omnipotent state" must do that. Every effort has followed the same pattern since Hammurabi fixed prices 4000 years ago. First, more and more compulsion with greater and greater penalties. Then follows popular revolt, expressing itself in an acceptance of black markets, the last resort of people who have more respect for natural law in the market-place than in man-made law.

In America, we have gone on the principle that economic laws are discovered—not made.

Seldom has a nation had the opportunity to see demonstrated on such a large scale and in such a short period of time the workings of a free economy,—an incident falling naturally into the old American way of getting things done.

A YEAR AGO, there was fear of an acute shortage of oil and gasoline. Government agencies estimated the United States was 15 per cent short of crude oil to meet 1948 needs, and saw little hope of wiping out this deficit. There was even agitation in Congress to give the Executive the power to ration and fix prices. Only a miracle, it was said, could prevent wide-spread suffering.

What happened? Plenty of oil and gas. In fact, by the end of the year, 100,000,000 barrels of petroleum had been added to the stock piles of the nation, and proved reserves of crude oil and natural gas liquids were increased by two billion barrels, and natural gas by 8 trillion cubic feet!

IT WAS NOT A MIRACLE. On the contrary, it was the natural American way of guiding production and consumption by the free operation of the price mechanism.

The anticipated shortage caused competition to bid up prices of crude oil. This created greater incentive to discover and produce crude, but incentive, however great, is not enough. There must be the cash or credit to furnish the wages and tools for the expanded activity.

Without the profit incentive and the profits of earlier years it would have been impossible for the oil industry to convert an economy of scarcity in 1948 to one of plenty today in 1949. Furthermore, just as rising prices automatically stimulated production so today excess production swings the price pendulum downward.

Economic law, unhampered, thus works day and night to bring back the balanced economy toward which it is always striving. It has never been done by Executive Order.

CITIES SERVICE played its part in this transition from scarcity to plenty. As a result, you, the public, were able to buy—and you did buy—more Cities Service products and services than in the previous year, in fact a total of $593,000,000 worth.

In order to do this Cities Service increased its production of crude oil by 10%.
It refined 72,000,000 barrels, an increase over 1947 of 10%.
It furnished customers 372 billion cubic feet of natural gas, an increase of 17%.
Its sales of electric energy were just short of 3 billion kilowatt hours, an increase of 12%.

IN SPITE OF THESE INCREASED ACTIVITIES, Cities Service carried forward its program of development and expansion, investing $112,000,000 in 1948. Stimulated by the free air of American endeavor, unhampered by totalitarian "planning", it is getting ready for further demands of the public for oil, gas, and electric power. It also added to its financial resources in order to meet those demands.

This Company believes that the United States of America under the free enterprise system is still a going concern, and proposes by precept and example to do its part in keeping it so.

Juvenile Court Judges

A current analysis of the records of the Juvenile Court provides a strong argument for giving the court an additional judge. Before illness forced her to leave the bench, Judge Fay Bentley gave to the court not only experienced legal judgment but also a feminine understanding of children. It is undoubtedly desirable to retain this advantage by having a woman trained in the law succeed Judge Bentley. At the same time the court unquestionably needs a male judge. Its large number of adult nonsupport cases involves entirely male offenders. More important is the fact that 66 per cent of the boys who come into the court's juvenile department are 14 years of age or over. Since adolescent boys are more amenable to male than to feminine influences, these facts cogently suggest that the Juvenile Court ought to have a man on its bench.

The bill introduced by Senator McGrath would make this possible by providing for two judges on the Juvenile bench after the expiration of Judge Bentley's term in 1952. In the intervening years one new judge would have to carry the load alone with such help as he might get from the Municipal Court. The ideal arrangement would be to provide for retirement of Judge Bentley now and promptly give the court the two judges it needs. But, since she has been on the bench only 14 years, this seems difficult without departing from the arrangement in the Municipal Court for retirement after 20 years. Perhaps the answer is that retirement for disability should be made more flexible in both these courts.

The term of the Juvenile Court judges would be increased from six to 10 years to bring it into line with the Municipal Court law. At the same time the McGrath bill, which was prepared by the District Bar Association, departs from the precedent of the Municipal Court law by requiring that only members of the District bar for five years shall be eligible for Juvenile Court judgeship. This restriction seems to us highly improper. While it is usually desirable to go to the local bar for judges, the door should not be closed to the choice of highly trained and experienced individuals outside the District for these specialized assignments. First consideration should go to judicial temperament, ability and experience rather than to place of residence.

Shadow Of The Future

Two years ago the Federal Communications Commission denied the Columbia Broadcasting System's petition for color television in the ultra-high frequency range. The decision touched off the present boom in television whose course and final end no one can yet foresee. The wartime ban on station construction had been lifted in October, 1945. But the industry held back awaiting the color decision. By March, 1947, there were nine stations in operation, only four more than in October, 1945.

Then came the flood: eight more stations before the end of 1947; 35 more in 1948; possibly another 60 or so this year. When all stations now approved are on the air, the total will be 124 in 70 cities in 34 States. No new applications have been approved by the FCC since last September. Now on file are 300 of them, and Chairman Wayne Coy has predicted as many as 400 stations in operation within two years and possibly 1000 in the next seven or eight years.

What about the receiving end? Only some 10,000 sets were in operation before the war, and about the same number were manufactured in 1946. The figure jumped to nearly 180,000 in 1947 and close to 800,000 in 1948. The industry expects to make some two million sets this year and eventually somewhere around five million annually. David Sarnoff, chairman of RCA, has predicted 18 million receiving sets in operation by the end of 1953. With the completion of projected stations and intercoastal network connections in the next few years, by far the largest part of the American people will be within range of television broadcasts. Assuming no real sag in the economy, a progressive decline in the prices of receiving sets, and continued improvement in programming, a high proportion of these people will probably be in the television audience.

What does this mean for the movie theaters and the producers of motion pictures, for the aural broadcasting industry, for book and magazine and newspaper publishers, for spectator sports, for techniques of visual education, mass communication and mass indoctrination? The answers to these questions are still to come. Much depends on the skill and good judgment of the television industry in developing what is probably the most powerful instrument affecting social and cultural habits since the automobile came along. The underlying question, of course, is not whether television will change our society, but whether the change will be for good or ill.

Arms And The Treaty

Many Senators must be honestly puzzled to know whether a vote for the North Atlantic Treaty is also a commitment to vote for sending American arms to Europe. Senator George, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, has announced that the answer to this question will determine his vote on the treaty, and Mr. Acheson is sure to be pressed for a clear-cut answer when he next appears before the committee. The question is a good one. The treaty says nothing directly about an arms-to-Europe program, but Article 3 also embodies this solemn pledge:

> In order more effectively to achieve the objectives of this treaty, the parties, separately and jointly, by means of continuous and effective self-help and mutual aid, will maintain and develop their individual and collective capacity to resist armed attack.

Mr. Acheson showed less than his customary candor in explaining this article in his long report of April 12 to President Truman. Article 3 means, he said, "that no party can rely on others for its defense unless it does its utmost to defend itself and contribute toward the defense of the others." He might have added the converse of the same excellent concept: That the European partners, for example, can rely on American help in their defense if they do their utmost to defend themselves and contribute toward the defense of the others. To show one side of the medal without showing the other is, we think, a concealment that does not do justice to Mr. Acheson's character or to the intent and purpose of the treaty. It did not repair the omission when Mr. Acheson added, correctly but incompletely, that Article 3 "does not obligate any party to make any specific contribution to the defense capacity of any other party, at any particular time or over any given period of time." This is one of those agreeable reassurances that may make a few nervous Senators sleep better, but it does not state "the truth, the whole truth," so that the Senate and the public understand it.

Unless the English language has acquired hidden meanings in recent weeks, Article 3 most certainly obligates the United States to help the other partners to strengthen their defenses and to claim help from them in return. The phrase "mutual aid" means assistance reciprocally given and received. There can be no question about giving help if the other partners have done their "utmost." It is up to Congress to decide what help, and how much, will be given; whether it will be paid for out of new appropriations or existing funds; whether it will consist of military equipment or technical training or other forms of aid, or a combination. A lawyer might argue that any kind of help would do; that shipments of peanuts or hominy grits could be interpreted as helping the partners "to maintain and develop their individual and collective capacity to resist armed attack." But Mr. Acheson is not just a lawyer; he is a high-minded public servant. The treaty imposes real and serious obligations on the United States, and it is folly not to say so.

Helping The States

An NAM report dealing with Federal grants-in-aid claims that such grants demoralize State and local governments and tend to alter the structure of the Federal Government. The Hoover Commission's report on Federal-State Relations agrees that the grants-in-aid method has "removed large areas of discretionary power from the hands of State officials and has transferred a measurable degree of policy-making and ultimate responsibility and control for public services to the National Government." The Hoover report also points out that the Federal practice of "matching" State funds sometimes induces States to spend more than they should on Federal-aid projects and skimp outlays for other needed services. For example, Federal aid for the aged, the blind, and dependent children has in a good many cases resulted in more liberal provision for such groups at the expense of general relief programs.

These criticisms of the grants-in-aid system will no doubt provide welcome ammunition for opponents of an expanded system of Federal relief grants, Federal public housing and slum clearance grants, Federal aid to education, and Federal health legislation of the kind proposed by Senator Taft. However, in our opinion, the actual or potential dangers of the Federal grants-in-aid system are far outweighed by the positive benefits. For, as the Hoover Commission's report concedes, these grants have enabled local governments to raise standards of public service and provide services "necessary or desirable in the national interest" that otherwise could not have been financed.

It is a grave weakness of our Federal form of Government that the wealth of the Nation and consequently the bulk of its taxable resources are concentrated in certain States. The residents of those States are consequently better provided for by their local governments than are their neighbors in poorer States. Only the Federal Government is in a position to reduce these inequalities in services and benefits by using some of the tax funds collected from the richer States to supplement the inadequate resources of the poorer States. Far from being a system that threatens to undermine our Government, grants-in-aid tend to strengthen it, this newspaper believes, by recognizing that the welfare of the residents of any State is the concern of all the people of the United States. Nor is there any reason to suppose that Federal aid inevitably weakens local government agencies and necessitates undue centralization of power and responsibility in the hands of Federal officials. That danger arises only when the conditions attached to receipt of aid are so detailed and so far-reaching as to deprive local authorities of the discretionary powers required to insure responsible administration at local levels.

Nor does the increasing pressure for Federal grants-in-aid imply a desire on the part of the States and municipalities to shift their responsibilities or their tax burdens to the Federal Government. The fact is that our present defective system of taxation forces them to ask for financial assistance. For the Federal Government has not only preempted the most prolific source of revenue—taxation of income—but has steadily encroached on other fields of taxation formerly reserved to the States. A thoroughgoing revision of our tax system at Federal, State and local levels is, therefore, essential to provide State and local governments with adequate sources of revenue, by some system of apportioning taxes, reservation of certain taxes for local use, or a combination of both methods.

When the Federal Government relaxes its stranglehold on sources of public revenue, the States will be better able to finance projects that they cannot now undertake without the help of grants-in-aid. Until that time comes, the Federal Government is under an obligation to relieve deficiencies, and it is against the public interest to try to arrest the trend toward more and larger grants "to provide for the general welfare."

Russian Overture

If it be true that a Soviet emissary is en route to the United Nations with a suggestion that the blockades in eastern Germany be lifted simultaneously, and that administration in Berlin be turned over to the United Nations—that would be the first serious proposal bearing any semblance to a compromise to come out of the Kremlin in recent diplomatic memory.

In the last two sessions of the General Assembly no American delegate was ever approached by a Russian delegate with any proposal to obtain an adjustment on any outstanding issue. The American record, on the contrary, was good. By actual count the American delegates at the last but one General Assembly approached individual Russian delegates on various issues a total of 35 times. The number of approaches at the succeeding Paris session was even greater, being over 150 times. This shows that the United States has not hitherto "closed the door," though during the meeting in Paris some question arose, even among the American delegates, as to whether the Russians had not provided an opening for agreement on Berlin. Be that as it may, the present overture, if the report turns out to be correct, would be the first tangible Soviet step to understanding over Berlin.

Undoubtedly any move from the Soviet in the present frame of relations would be looked at askance. But if such an attitude led to a refusal to negotiate under the auspices of the United Nations, that would not be the way to conduct diplomacy, or to persuade the world that the Atlantic Pact is an instrument for the waging of peace. Relations, of course, depend upon good faith, and there is precious little left of this commodity in Soviet-Western affairs. However, the only way of demonstrating peaceful intention is to take any overture at face value, and give it serious examination. That is what is meant by the constant asseveration that the Westerners have never "closed the door" to the Russians. As for the particular subject of the rumored overture, both parties are on the hook in Berlin, though, in view of the miracle of the airlift, the Russians are more so, for the Allied counter-blockade of eastern Germany is having a highly damaging effect on life and work there.

Information Vacuum

Those persons who belittle the effectiveness of the United States information program abroad would do well to read the report of the Advisory Commission on Information. This commission consists of five private citizens acting under terms of the Smith-Mundt Act. Basing its conclusions largely on a first hand survey by one member, the commission finds that the quality of the State Department program is good, that the program is reaching the people on both sides of the iron curtain, but that the extent is pitifully inadequate to the need.

For example, the Voice of America is regarded not only as a source of truth behind the iron curtain, but also as tangible evidence that the United States is serious about the business of resisting Communist aggression. It thus serves as a means of spreading hope and encouragement. The commission urges that both the power and length of broadcasts be increased. With respect to countries beyond the Russian yoke, it is perhaps natural that American radio broadcasts do not compete so effectively with national programs. The commission recommends increasing the attractiveness of programs and the purchase of time on local stations. It has similar recommendations on libraries, films and other information media.

What the advisory group says carries unusual weight because of the clear relationship between the information program and the other aspects of foreign policy. It is time that both Congress and the Administration recognized through more adequate appropriations that the battle for men's minds is no less important than their military defense and physical well-being. As the commission notes pointedly: "A budget which contemplates 15 billion dollars for military, 5 billion for economic and only 36 million for information and educational services [cut by the House to 34 million] does not provide an effective tool for cleaning out the augean stables of international confusion and misunderstanding."

World Criminal Court

The final closing of the Nuernberg trials brings to a head the need, it seems to me, of making the great principles established there effective for the future.

Two methods have been suggested for attacking the problem: (1) codification of the precedents into a widespread multilateral convention binding upon all the signatories; (2) establishment of an international penal court. Of the two, I believe that the latter is the more pressingly important, codification already having been completed as far as is presently feasible in the London Charter which created the tribunal in 1945.

If a permanent international criminal court could be agreed upon, the ad hoc nature of the Nuernberg proceedings, conquerors over conquered, might be obviated in case of a future war of aggression. It is even possible that the Russian government, which was a strong supporter of Nuernberg, would not attempt to block the erection of machinery ever ready to handle individual criminals who plot war.

Arlington Farms

April 11 was "Blue Monday" for hundreds of working girls who have enjoyed living in pleasant, comfortable surroundings at Arlington Farms. The sudden announcement that this housing project will be closed on September 30 was a severe blow to us.

We believe that this action will be a costly mistake and that it will be detrimental to the whole Washington area. To force 3000 residents into Washington's alleys and slums, either directly or indirectly, can only lead to further incidence of disease, delinquency, and crime. Furthermore, there will be an added strain on the transportation system, as these people will be forced to travel longer distances to and from their work.

The existence of Arlington Farms as a reliable, decent home has aided in the recruitment of desirable young people into Government work. It is still necessary to attract and hold these people, for intelligent and efficient personnel are needed in Government today, and they will be needed for some time to come.

The residents of Arlington Farms appreciate the generosity of the Government in providing them a home in Washington during the war and postwar years, at a moderate cost. In fact, most of the girls would be willing to pay an increased rental if that would aid in keeping the Farms open.

Undermanned Nats

When a citizen has journeyed to Mr. Clark Griffith's ball yard for 16 years without seeing anything resembling a pennant contender, he may be inclined to be a bit irritated.

When the Brooklyn Dodgers invaded the local ball yard the other night some 30,704 fans turned out to see the fabulous "Bums" and Jackie Robinson, and to see what Mr. Griffith had to offer for the 1949 baseball season. It doesn't take an expert to see that our local talent is none too impressive.

Even while the Dodgers and the Nats were battling each other it was known by Washington management just what was to happen to Jake Early; we poor fans were unaware that good old Jake was to be released. While this may be the best course of action, Mr. Griffith could have afforded to extend himself for a replacement.

The Brooklyn Dodgers are topheavy with first-line catchers; they have Bruce Edwards, Gil Hodges and Roy Campanella. While Hodges has been playing first base, if Church Conners keeps up his present fielding performance and learns to hit, he will be the Dodgers' regular first baseman; in such case Hodges will return to his regular position behind the plate. Griffith should have talked turkey with Branch Rickey.

While most of the fans turned out to see Robinson, they saw Campanella work the entire game and they liked him. Washington is in dire need of a catcher to aid the overworked Al Evans, and Campanella is the answer in several ways.

Branch Rickey is strictly a business man when it comes to players, and with him money talks; he would be willing to part with Campanella for a price. Campanella's presence here would usher in one of the most fabulous baseball eras we have seen since '33.

Higher Wages

The Federal Reserve Board's figures show that from 1946 to 1948 the total national income increased by 25.2 per cent, and the compensation to employes increased less, by only 19.5 per cent. Naturally you cannot sell goods priced at 25.2 per cent more to people with only 19.5 per cent more pay. As a result we have the beginning of overproduction, as it is called, or underconsumption as it really is.

The remedy is simple, although it may be difficult to persuade the owners of industry to adopt it. We have to increase wages and salaries, and also the old-age pensions and unemployment compensation of the workers so that as production increases they will be able to buy more and thus keep the wheels of industry going at full speed.

"Freedom Fair"

My reaction to "Freedom Fair" plans for the sesquicentennial program was one of utmost dismay. I would ask how such a group of buildings could serve to symbolize "America's faith in the democratic principles" effectively if the architects who plan the "U. S. A." group do not, at the same time, plan an elaborate camouflage devise for the ugly slums of Washington's ghettoes. A much more realistic demonstration of "democratic principles" (you know, to let the folks everywhere understand that we really mean it) would be to construct sesquicentennial buildings on a site where these same slums now exist and somehow make them functional with the meaning of the democratic ideal.

Aid For Foreign Students

Most foreign students studying in the United States are experiencing financial difficulties. In addition to special efforts being made by local educational and religious institutions to meet this financial crisis for foreign students through fellowships, scholarships, loan funds, cash grants, waivers of tuition, etc., there has been considerable support for the suggestion that there be an immediate Federal grant.

Since there are approximately 500 needy foreign students in the United States at the present time, $2,500,000 would be required to maintain the persons in school for only one semester, according to conservative estimate made by Dr. Clarence Linton, professor of education, Teachers College, Columbia University, and president of the National Association of Foreign Student Advisers.

Such a program would not be a new venture for the United States Government. From 1942 through 1945, hundreds of thousands of dollars were appropriated for Chinese students. In the New York Times of February 17, Mr. Roger Lapham, chief of the ECA China mission, recommended $500,000 (United States) of emergency ECA aid for Chinese students now studying in the United States.

In addition to many administrative difficulties, such a program might not prove to be a permanent solution to the problem. Foreign student aid, in its broad and real sense, should not be limited to the present emergency. For instance, to determine the justification and extent of assistance for each student is no easy thing. Further, should those students who have already supported themselves, either wholly or partly, by part time work, stay on their jobs and be granted partial aid (or nothing), or should they be encouraged to quit their employment in order to meet the grant requirements?

The core of the foreign student aid problem lies in the prohibitive employment ban on alien students. According to immigration regulations governing foreign students, they may engage in part-time employment, if they carry a full day-time schedule of studies. It is obvious that even an average American student who has neither language difficulties nor problems of social adjustment, could hardly follow such a procedure. If this employment ban were lifted, say, to a 50-50 ratio between studies and work, not only would the present emergency aid problem be nonexistent, but the measure would also encourage more foreign students to come to this country in normal times.

Such a plan as here proposed would fit admirably into the recommendation made by Professor Forrest G. Moore, foreign student adviser at the University of Minnesota, that "ideally the control of students, after they have once been admitted to the United States, should be vested either in the United States Office of Education or the Division of International Exchange of Persons of the Department of State."

There is still some room for improvement in the administration of governmental aid to foreign students. Instead of "cash" grants, the assistance could be made more efficient and reasonable through payment in goods and services, including room and board, textbooks, etc.

Greek Problem Child

IN THE midst of the complicated and delicate business of presenting to Congress the plea of the Atlantic Pact nations for arms, the State Department must cope with a problem child insistently demanding attention. That problem child is Greece.

From the British Foreign Office the other day came a hint that military aid to the Greek government in its war with the Communist rebels should be increased. This was not likely to soften the Congress into granting a larger appropriation for Greece. It will be the third request for funds since President Truman proclaimed the Truman Doctrine.

Behind the British hint was a memorandum which Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin left with Secretary of State Dean Acheson during his recent visit. The memorandum was drafted by Field Marshal Sir William Slim, chief of the Imperial General Staff, following a visit to Athens.

Slim recommended increases in the Greek government's striking force, with emphasis on commando-type operations. But he did not go nearly so far as Maj. Gen. E. E. Down, chief of the British military mission in Greece.

THE UNITED STATES Joint Chiefs of Staff were surprised to receive six months ago a memorandum from Down recommending, in effect, that the number of Greek divisions be increased from 8 to 16 with American military aid. It was estimated that support for such an army would have cost this country approximately 450 million dollars a year.

The British have, of course, a direct stake in Greece apart from long-time diplomatic-commercial ties. At United States insistence, 5000 British troops were left behind as a garrison force following the United States aid program, and they are still there.

The war against the rebels is at present going better than at any time during the past 2½ years. Confidential maps show that considerable areas have been mopped up, including most of the Peloponnesus, where at one time guerilla bands roved almost at will.

There are now about 250,000 men in the Greek military establishment, 200,000 in the army. This is, of course, far more than could be sustained by the Greeks without aid from the United States.

For the current fiscal year Greece is getting roughly 360 million dollars in American aid. Of this, more than 275 million dollars will go for strictly military spending. That is a far higher proportion than originally contemplated. A large proportion of the seven million Greeks live on the borderline of hunger, with nearly 10 per cent refugees from rebel or former rebel areas.

Greek specialists in the State Department profess to see some political improvement, but it is difficult for the outsider looking on to detect it.

BEFORE he left Athens to come here to testify on the need for more Greek aid, Ambassador Henry Grady cautioned against a new cabinet crisis. But he had hardly reached New York by air before powerful cabinet factions had forced out Spyros Markezinis, minister without portfolio.

Markezinis was considered one of the hopefuls and given United States backing. He was accused by other cabinet members of speculating in gold sovereigns.

European aid officials working in Athens under Grady are said to feel that the Ambassador should take a much firmer hand in guiding the Greek government. But this goes against State Department policy, which is to keep hands off.

It seems to me, however, that there is one point at which United States policy-makers cannot sit supinely by. In New York Herbert Evatt, U. N. Assembly president, is making another effort to bring Greece and her northern neighbors, Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, together to end intervention across the border.

Evatt made a similar attempt in Paris last winter. He was indignant when, as it seemed to him, Greek Foreign Minister Constantin Tsaldaris stubbornly refused to make any concession of any kind. Tsaldaris seemed to feel that as long as United States aid continued he could stand pat.

Fortunately, the Communists have made serious blunders in Greece. If that were not true, our own errors would doubtless have caught up with us long since.

Limiting Cabs

I have just finished reading your very interesting story of April 15 concerning the limitation of taxicabs.

The writer has always opposed such a regulation. In the first place, it does not take any cabs off the streets. It only attempts to prevent any more from being licensed. During the war when we had such regulations, the number of cabs actually increased. Also there was a big black market in such licenses—as high as $1200 being asked for a $25 PUC license.

Since the removal of regulation, I have noticed that about 1500 cabs have gone out of business.

Instead of restricting cabs, I suggest limitation of the number of cab drivers. Also a decent cost-of-living taxi meter system—with no cabs to men who work two jobs.

When Acheson Takes Stock

MR. ACHESON, as he takes stock and looks ahead to what is coming, might well feel, it seems to me, like a trustee who finds that the main investments are showing a nice profit but that there are a lot of sick cats and dogs in the portfolio. He can have every reason to be confident that the great decision to redress the balance of power is successful: that a shooting war brought on by outright military aggression has been made improbable, if not impossible, by the measures which began with the dispatch of the fleet to the Mediterranean, were reinforced by American rearmament, and are now culminating in the Atlantic Pact. He can feel no less confident that the funds invested in European recovery are achieving their main purpose: that Great Britain and France are recovering and will, therefore, be able to play their necessary part in the political and economic reconstruction of the Western world.

LIPPMANN

But when Mr. Acheson turns from these large and promising achievements, and looks at Germany, Japan, China, Greece, Iran and Korea, the picture is not so pretty. All the public relations officers and all the visitors, who have had the VIP treatment, are unable to cover the fact that in these places things have gone or are going badly. They are the headaches of United States foreign policy.

IT IS significant, I think, that we have done well—perhaps in the perspective of history brilliantly well—where we have used American military and economic power for broad general purposes—to redress the balance of power, to prohibit aggression, to help others to help themselves. But we have not done well where we have undertaken to intervene directly and intimately in the internal affairs of distant and alien countries, and have entangled ourselves in the business of governing or managing them.

Military government in Germany, Japan, and Korea may have been unavoidable for a while. But no one can pretend that it has been successful, or doubt,—if he knows the facts—that the problem is not whether, but how, to liquidate military government. In Turkey, where we confined ourselves to a guaranty against aggression and some military assistance, we have done well; in Greece we are entangled in the civil war and the infinite complication of Greek politics and finance with no prospect of doing more than to hang on and to go on paying. In China our intervention, whether it was too much or too little, has been a complete failure.

LOOKING AT the successes of our foreign policy, which are very great, and then at the failures, which are unpleasant and dangerous and costly but not fatal, can we not say that the difference between them is just about what we might have expected?

This country is a great power separated from Europe and Asia by the oceans, and never until the past few years involved closely and directly in the affairs of Europe and Asia. When we participate, remembering the distance and aware of our unfamiliarity with the complex details—when we approach the Old World as guarantors against aggression, as sponsors of recovery and reconstruction—we do well. We are doing what we are able to do, what we know how to do, what geography and history and a true estimate of our interests, fit and permit us to do. We are true to the distinctively American relationship to the Old World. We are in character. And though our power and our responsibilities are greater than they have ever been, they are a development, and not a break with, the American tradition.

BUT WHEN we go into Germany, Japan, Greece and set out to govern, to administer, to play politics, we are in a realm which is alien to our experience, to our habits and our ideals, and to our instincts. We have tried to persuade ourselves that we can rule over alien peoples, and that we can reform them and educate them, and make them over in the image of ourselves. But we do not really believe it, or honestly think that we or anyone else can do it. For we are not an imperial people who feel it their mission to rule over other peoples, and when we have to act as if we were, we make a hash of it—thank heaven.

Even the ablest and the best men among us could almost certaintly not succeed. But the ablest and best will not stay in Germany and Japan and Korea and Greece. A few of them have tried it. They go with high purposes, they stay for a while, and then come home and take a long hot bath, feeling that if that sort of thing has to be done, they do not want to do it. So there are left to do these jobs the soldiers who are ordered out there, and civilians who could never dream of having comparable power, responsibility, or privileges at home.

Need we, then, be astounded when gradually the truth seeps out, as at last it is beginning to, that we have not created a new democratic Germany and Japan in which the people love us, admire us, and wish to imitate us?

AS THE truth becomes more generally known, is recognized, and is not obscured by propaganda, the relations of this country to the Old World will improve. For then we shall be able to distinguish the enduring policy of participation in the maintenance of peace and in the reconstruction and development of the earth—from the passing entanglements of military government, intervention, and of a bastard imperialism.

Nonscheduled Lines Alerted For Licenses

The Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday told the large irregular air carriers they will have to obtain individual licenses to fly after May 20.

This was one of a number of broad new controls announced by the CAB over the large nonscheduled airlines.

Such carriers use large-type craft in contract or charter service and are authorized to fly only on an irregular basis, as distinguished from the time-table flights of the regular, scheduled airlines.

There are about 110 large irregular carriers. The CAB has accused some of them of maintaining flights of such regularity as to place them in direct competition with the scheduled-flight companies.

The board said that effective May 20, it is revoking the blanket authority of the large irregulars, and thereafter will license each of them on an individual basis, after investigation of the operations which each proposes.

The announcement said that "although a substantial number of large irregular carriers have attempted to comply" with the limited authority granted under the blanket plan, that plan "has served as a cloak for operations which are not within the intent and purpose of the regulation."

The board said the individual licenses will be issued only where it is demonstrated that a need for irregular air service exists, and in those instances in which the board "can define the scope of the carriers' authority with more particularity than is possible under a blanket exemption authority."

Chairman James Fischgrund of the National Independent Air Carriers said the cab rule will "put out of business practically every independent airline in the country." In many cases, he said, the non-scheduled airlines are operated by veterans who have tied up their life savings.

He said independent airlines are the "only profitable segment" of the industry despite the fact that they receive no Federal subsidy.

"This arbitrary ruling is an unprecedented elimination of small business that will live long in infamy," he said.

Under the new rules, large irregular carriers must have board approval for all mergers, consolidations and interlocking relationships, and will be required "to establish, observe, and enforce just and reasonable individual rates, fares and charges."

The blanket authority for about 2000 small irregular air carriers, (those using aircraft of less than 10,000 pounds take-off weight), will be continued. However, the board announced new regulations in this field to prevent combined operations and a tightening of requirements for operating reports.

The Senate Commerce Committee yesterday demanded that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation undertake for it an immediate investigation into the financial condition of domestic airlincs.

The demand capped unsuccessful efforts by the committee to obtain copies of a report which the RFC has made to President Truman on the airlines.

The RFC turned down two committee requests for the report on the grounds it was made to President Truman and only he could release it.

Mr. Truman, in asking for the study, had expressed concern over the fi ancial condition of the airline industry.

Since then, the committee headed by Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) has launched its own inquiry into domestic airlines finances. Johnson says he wants to know why they are operating "in the red" during this "era of prosperity."

Dr. Newman Inaugurated As VPI Head

Blacksburg, Va., April 18 (AP).—Dr. Walter Stephenson Newman was formally inaugurated here today as the tenth president of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, a position he has held for the past 17 months.

The actual induction of Dr. Newman was conducted by William E. Wine of Parker, rector of the Virginia Tech Board of Visitors, before an estimated crowd of 1500 persons, including representatives of more than 100 other colleges and universities.

The inaugural program was marred by the sudden death of Dr. Earl L. Overholser, head of the Virginia Tech department of horticulture. Dr. Overholser collapsed after a heart attack while the academic procession was forming shortly before the inaugural ceremony. He died in an ambulance en route to a Radford hospital.

Uncle Tom Town Puts Off Vote In Race Bias Row

Dresden, Ontario, April 18 (AP).—A legal technicality today blocked a referendum on racial discrimination in this southwestern Ontario town, once the haven for runaway Negro slaves from the United States.

A vote on whether restaurant proprietors should be compelled to serve all patrons, regardless of race or color, was postponed indefinitely because "the law requires us to advertise the holding of a referendum three times in the local newspapers. The town council neglected to do that."

The referendum had been requested by the town's 300 Negro residents.

Dresden is the legendary home of Uncle Tom, whose escape from the southern United States was immortalized by Harriet Beecher Stowe. An institute for runaway slaves was established here.

A Communication

U.S. Conscription And Pact Responsibilities

The author of this communication is a retired Regular Army colonel, a graduate of West Point and the War College with 44 years' service.

SINCE the Atlantic Pact is obviously a military alliance, the American people are aware that it imposes a contingent military responsibility on them. However, they are being told that this contingent responsibility, accompanied by the expenditure of uncertain—but obviously large—amounts of money for foreign armament, will greatly reduce the chances of war. "The greatest war deterrent ever devised" or so those in high places tell us. Some such siren song was sung to us when we adopted lend lease. If we accept these declarations now, we will not reduce the chances of war and our training and mobilization problems will be as serious, when and if war arrives, as they were in 1941.

The military problem set for the men who command the armed forces of the Atlantic Pact is to be prepared to resist an invasion from behind the iron curtain by acting on a strict defensive until adequate reinforcements arrive from North America. The length of time during which this painful and hazardous defense must be maintained depends on the state of organization, training and equipment of the United States and Canadian armies, and on the ships available for their transportation.

The capabilities of the attacking force depends, to some extent, on factors now unknown e. g. the reliability of the Czech army. But we can be reasonably certain that the force available will be at least as large as the Soviet army of 1945, just as well trained, and probably better disciplined.

EXCEPT for the few American troops already in Europe on D-Day (perhaps two divisions) the resisting force will consist of the French and Italian mobilized armies, and such British troops as can be brought to war strength and ferried over the Channel. Leaving out these British, who also have an empire, a fleet, and a merchant marine to supply, the defense must be temporarily entrusted to the mobilized manpower of France and Italy.

The Italian army was very little use to us in the First War when it was on our side, and not much hindrance to us in the Second War when it was against us. In these two wars, however, its morale had not been sapped by continuous antigovernmental agitation. But how about one third of the population is Communist and bitterly hostile to the West. If Italian manpower is to be fully exploited in the defensive, by a general mobilization, we will have an army one third disloyal, with the disloyalty particularly concentrated in the most important units.

The French army has such a glorious record, and did so much for us in 1918, that it seems cruel to put them in the same group with the Italians. But facts require us to do just that. The number of loyal Communists in a French army raised by universal service is between 20 and 25 per cent.

So it comes down to this. No matter what equipment is furnished the continental armies they can be relied on to be loyal to the Atlantic Alliance only until they have had casualties and reverses. These always occur in war. The only possible way to keep the defense going and the Russians stalled is to have a lot of British and American reinforcements trained and equipped, with ships ready for them.

The British will presumably do what they can, and may, perhaps, hold the fort for a time sufficient to transport the American forces to Europe, though the political opposition in England to universal training is very serious already. But it is utterly unreasonable to expect the British to hold the line on the continent while our men are being trained.

THE ONLY way to meet the military situation presented to us is to adopt the continental system of military service, lock, stock and barrel. Those who say that an effort of this magnitude is not necessary can present only two arguments. The first is that our possession of the atom bomb, in some mysterious way, makes it unnecessary to use our manpower. Those of us with a memory of any length can remember similar yarns in the past.

The second argument against the continental system of training is that our young men don't need as much training as Russians. We never made effective use in either World War of any division in which the troops, as a whole, had had less than one year's training in their particular unit. Where divisions of less experience met the enemy we had disproportionate casualties, and unless we had a great preponderance of numbers we were defeated.

Now none of these facts is a secret among military men. Our high command is composed of highly intelligent men in the prime of life, who have mostly had an excellent theoretical military education and plenty of war experience. Yet in the Atlantic Pact we are preparing to face a national catastrophe because the people are not being told the truth by men who know what the truth is.

It is time for the high command to save this country from its peril by offering some unwelcome advice publicly. All they have to do is to demand that, before the treaty is ratified, the country provide the military forces necessary to make it effective. Conversely, our military leaders should publicly insist that, if the people are unwilling to accept the burdens of the continental system of military service, the country must adopt a foreign policy whose burdens they are willing to support.

OUR POWERFUL politicians may be divided into three groups. The first group are those who favor both the Atlantic Pact and an adequate system of military service. The second group are those who want to withdraw from Europe, whatever their views on military service. The third are those who favor the pact, but through self-deception or intellectual dishonesty, claim that it can be carried out without an adequate system of military service.

The aim of all honorable military men with any access to the organs of public opinion should now be to make life so miserable for this third group that they will join the other two.

The difficulties of the task thus set before our military leaders are not intellectual, but moral.

Now is the time to establish the precedent that leading soldiers have the right to protect their comrades against unnecessary hazards, or alternately to force the politicians to take the responsibility openly for the inevitable consequences.

To justify themselves in taking up this position our military leaders have only to think of Bataan, multiplied 16 times, followed by the Philippines, Saipan and Iwo Jima, multiplied by 21. To force this issue all that is required are sober, unadulterated facts, forcefully and accurately presented.

B. & O. Outlay In Year Placed At 58 Million

By S. Oliver Goodman

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad spent more than $58,600,000 for improvements and new equipment in 1948, according to the annual report to stockholders released today.

Additions to rolling stock included 128 new Diesel locomotives, 5634 new hopper cars, 25 flat cars, eight new sleeping cars and 155 standard sleeping cars acquired from the Pullman Co. Also $14,889,555 was spent on road property.

Other improvements, the report pointed out, will serve to bring in additional revenues. Chief among these is the new Elk Creek Spur of the B. & O., which opens up an estimated 100-million-ton coal field near Overfield, W. Va. It is expected to produce additional revenues of about $1,445,000 during the first year and more in later years.

Revenue ton miles in 1948 were reported 3.2 per cent less than for the record peacetime year of 1947. Revenue passenger miles declined 17.07 per cent. However, both freight and passenger revenues increased over 1947 because higher rates were in effect. Freight revenues last year totaled $353,289,835, a gain of 12.53 per cent over 1947. Expenses climbed 7.9 per cent in the same period.

As reported previously, net income for the year amounted to $22,158,295, equal to $3.30 a common share. This compared with $9,259,381 in 1947. The report showed that the railroad employed an average of 57,197 workers last year, at an average annual wage of $3718.

AUTO SALES OFF: New car sales in Washington totaled 2497 in March as compared with 3151 in the same 1948 month, the Washington Automotive Trade Association reported yesterday. For the first quarter this year local sales amounted to 6417, against 7470 in the like period last year.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Bernard J. Nees, past president of the Washington Stock Exchange, has been named general chairman of the annual outing May 27 of the Bond Club of Washington at the Manor Club . . . Joseph Doyle, a former president of the Electric Institute of Washington, has been appointed general sales manager of Washington Wholesalers, electric appliance dealer at 2052 West Virginia ave. ne. . . . Miss Betty O'Connor, formerly with New York's Town Hall, is the new public relations director of the Washington firm of Otto Schaler & Associates . . . Laurence F. Whittemore, president of New Haven Railroad, and Charles E. Denney, president of Northern Pacific Railway, have been elected to the directorate of Railway Express Agency.

SECRET EXPOSED: The "nursery revolution," which the Mennen Co. says took two years of highly secret development, is a baby rattle built into the top of a baby powder can. When you powder the infant, the can rattles to distract him. When the can is empty, he has a new toy.

ODD LOTS: Security brokers from leading cities will meet Wednesday in New York to form a national organization "to promote a better understanding of the securities business among the general public" . . . a bottle of locomotive smoke will be used by the Erie Railroad to christen a new Diesel-electric engine in Cleveland Wednesday . . . Steel operations this week are slated for 98.4 per cent of rated capacity, slightly less than the 99.2 per cent last week . . . net production of crude oil in 1948, Standard Oil of New Jersey reports, increased 8 per cent in 1948 over 1947 . . . Westinghouse Electric Corp. will hold its annual stockholders meeting Wednesday on the floor of one of its factories in Pittsburgh.

FURNITURE: February furniture sales in Washington spurted 25 per cent over the same 1948 period, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday. For the first two months this year furniture sales, based on reports from six leading local stores, showed a gain of 26 per cent over the like 1948 period. The Fifth Federal Reserve District showed an increase of 6 per cent for the month and 2 per cent for the two-month period.

TREND REVERSES: March sales of Washington Gas Light Co. improved 6.43 per cent over the same 1948 month, reversing a downward trend this year. Last month's sales totaled 18,651,795 therms, against 17,453,009 in 1948. For the first three months this year, therm sales aggregated 56,874,741 for a decline of 4.74 per cent as compared with the like 1948 period.

EARNINGS: United Cigar-Whelan Stores Corp. reported net income of $109,989 for first-quarter this year, compared with $89,460 in same 1948 period. Net sales totaled $17,764,286, against $18,327,009 in first three months of 1948. Other earnings reports:

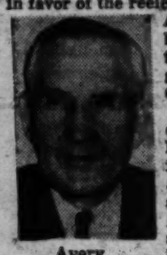
Sides Line Up In Fight Over Avery Policies

New York, April 18 (AP).—Group Securities, Inc., an open-end investment company, today came out in favor of the reelection of Sewell Avery to the board of directors of Montgomery Ward & Co.



Avery

The company, one of the larger open-end funds, owns about 5000 shares of Montgomery Ward stock. Stockholders will meet in Chicago this Friday to elect four directors of the board. Avery, now chairman, is up for reelection.

Group Securities said it would support the present management, which Avery heads, "regardless of the action of other investment companies."

"If we did not like the management of the company," Kenneth S. Gaston, president of Group Securities said, "we would long since have liquidated the investment in the interests of our shareholders."

Gaston said that Group Securities will support Avery because his "policies have been successful."

The approaching stockholders' meeting of the mail order concern has stirred up considerable interest because of the results of opposition within the organization to Avery. The opposition reached a climax last week when the company's last vice president resigned. Avery later appointed an entirely new operating staff.

Massachusetts Investors Trust of Boston, largest single stockholder in Monty Ward with more than 100,000 shares, announced about two weeks ago that it would not support Avery.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, April 18 (AP).—Evidence of increased selling of cash wheat in the Northwest helped to depress wheat futures on the Board of Trade today. May lost the most, selling more than a cent lower the entire session, but even new crop deliveries slipped a bit.

Mostly everything else on the board moved slightly lower with wheat, but corn provided an exception. Receipts of cash corn totaled 102 cars, which was considered small for a Monday. The relatively small run provided the major prop for improved sentiment toward corn.

Wheat closed ⅝ to 1⅝ lower; corn was unchanged to ⅛ higher; oats were unchanged to ⅜ lower; rye was unchanged to ⅛ lower; soybeans were ½ to ¾ lower, and lard was unchanged to 5 cents a hundred pounds lower.

May 1 Start Aim of New Norfolk Line

The Baltimore Steam Packet Co. will restore passenger and freight service between Washington and Virginia ports within two weeks, officials of the line said yesterday.

The announcement came shortly after the Interstate Commerce Commission authorized the company, known as the Old Bay Line, to operate between here and Norfolk, Portsmouth, Old Point Comfort and Newport News, Va.

The steamer District of Columbia, which was operated in similar service until last October 31 by the Norfolk & Western Steamboat Co., will be used for the passenger and freight service to Norfolk and Old Point Comfort. Freight will be moved to the other two points by lighter.

May 1 Start Is Possible

The District of Columbia, which has been rebuilt and repaired in Baltimore since an October 31 collision put it out of service, may be ready to sail from Washington by May 1, Bay Line President Robert E. Dunn said yesterday, though last-minute work may delay the sailing until May 2 or 3. Service will be on an "every other night" basis.

A tariff scheduled being filed for approval by the ICC provides a passenger fare of $4.67, plus tax, for the trip between Washington and Norfolk, equal to that charged last year by the Norfolk & Washington line. The fare for passenger cars will be $5, plus tax, or 50 cents more than last year.

Redecorated; to Use Radar

R. L. Jones, passenger traffic agent, said the boat has been redecorated and refurnished and will have radar for navigation, a ship-to-shore telephone and direction finders. Table-d'hote dinners and breakfasts will be available as well as a-la-carte service, he said.

A city ticket office here will be opened shortly at 1422 H st. nw. and the Bay Line will use the same Washington dock at 7th and Maine ave. sw. In Norfolk, the Bay Line dock at the foot of W. Main st. will be used.

German Airs Featured by June Kelly

June Hess Kelly delivered a song recital last night in Phillips Gallery.

Accompanied by Herbert Herzfeld, the soprano sang 13 German Lieder, five Bayou Ballads, two songs in English and one in Italian. This kind of division is likely to lead to monotony in a program, not for geographical reasons, but because so many songs from a single region are likely to come out of the same musical and psychological background.

Coupling this dangerous tendency with Miss Kelly's strident method of production, which permits only one kind and degree of tone, her audience became extremely well acquainted with the singer's sole tonal color. At those points when the voice was allowed to relax, it was easy to perceive a good natural instrument. Most of the time it was constructed in a way that made listening less than pleasant.

Without being a profound interpreter, Miss Kelly does have some sound instincts in obvious songs. But it is a shock to hear anyone take quiet moving lyrics of Brahms and Wolf at such a bright clip.

Bayou Ballads are folk songs from Louisiana. In them Miss Kelly's concert deficiencies did not make such a difference. If she cultivates this phase of her avocation, she might build a loyal audience. Herzfeld provided inexpert accompaniments, usually obscured by too much pedal.

Rent Controls Stay

Chicago, April 18 (U.P.)—A survey of 43 major cities from coast to coast showed today that none has yet taken final steps to lift rent controls under the new Federal law permitting local action.

Council Votes to Seek Help Of 'Hill' in D. C. Jurisdiction

Congressional aid will be sought by the Interfederation Council to bring about better coordination between various governmental jurisdictions in the Washington area.

The citizens' council voted to seek this aid last night following a forum discussion of mutual problems of the area by editorial writers of Washington daily newspapers at a meeting in the Engineers Club, 1325 E st. nw.

A resolution was approved to request representatives in Congress from the nearby areas to introduce a bill establishing a committee "to study problems affecting the metropolitan area and to recommend remedies."

A committee was appointed to deliver the resolution personally to the congressional representatives. Henry H. Snelling, delegate from the Montgomery Civic Federation, was named chairman.

Rex Collier of The Evening Star suggested formation of an interstate pact, similar to the Potomac River Basin Commission, to regulate public utilities. He referred to the "twilight zone" existing between taxicab regulating bodies where no control is exercised after cabs cross county lines.

Frank M. Smith of The Times-Herald declared his paper has long advocated the extension of the District boundaries to include all of the "city." Washington has long since outgrown its 10-mile square, he said, and should be enlarged to at least a 20-mile square.

Favoring the interstate pact idea, Merlo Pusey of The Washington Post opposed extension of the District boundaries as the solution.

There is nothing so attractive in the District to create a desire for inclusion by nearby residents, he asserted, pointing to the lack of home rule and national representation.

H. L. Coppenbarger of the Daily News emphasized that a controlling council should be interstate and not Federal in nature. By this means, he said, local utilities commissions would be enabled to retain their identities and authority.

Fort Davis

James E. Gall, 3523 Carpenter st. se., was elected delegate to the Federation of Citizens Associations last night by the Fort Davis Citizens Association, meeting at Ryland Methodist Church, Branch ave. and S st. se.

The group directed a letter of appreciation to William A. Duvall, who resigned after 10 years service as delegate. In other business, a petition was directed to the Deputy Director of Highways asking construction of a sidewalk on 38th st. se., north of S st.

Lincoln Park

Increased police supervision of Lincoln Park during the summer was asked last night by the Lincoln Park Citizens Association, meeting at Epworth Methodist Church, 13th st. and North Carolina ave. ne.

Letters were directed sent to both the Metropolitan and Park Departments. Increased patrolling would serve as a deterrant to purse snatchings and other crimes, it was said.

A 30th Birthday For the Guild

By Richard L. Coe

TODAY WE CELEBRATE—in absentia—the thirtieth birthday of the Theater Guild.

Now 30 years in the theater is like 90 in a human. In these days of angels and backers, producing organizations just don't last that long. And with 168 plays under its belt and subscribers from coast to coast the Guild is to be congratulated for services rendered.

So it is with all respect this hinterland scribe offers his wishes to the Guild for its thirty-first season and scores more. They are the wishes not of a malevolent but a hopeful godfather-in-space.

I wish, for instance, that the Guild would remember that it's in the theater business. I think it's fine that the Guild is active in television and radio; only the other day Codirector Lawrence Langner confessed that "the Guild is now being subsidized by its radio programs and 'Oklahoma!'"

But what about the live audiences the Guild has been missing this year? At the middle of last summer the Guild had collected two and a half million dollars' worth of subscription playgoers across the country. Thirty cities were on the rolls, nine more set for this season than '47-'48.

Yet, somehow, though the audiences were there, the Guild hasn't had the plays to fill the orders.

Washington's case is miserable enough without any, not necessarily through the fault of the Guild.

Baltimore Promises Fail

But what about Baltimore? Five subscription plays were promised, three have arrived and there's no sign of the other two. "Allegro" was definitely promised, hasn't been seen. Of seven listed "possibilities" only one arrived, "Make Way for Lucia."

Baltimore's experience has been duplicated by too many others in the 30-city subscription plan. One result of this will certainly be a general public disbelief in future promises.

In my Guild file are two "promises" for next season, one dated last fall, the other last week. The first tells of a production of "Romeo and Juliet" to star Jennifer Jones, about which I've heard nothing lately. The second tells of Katharine Hepburn's agreement to star, next season, in "As You Like It," a project that has been scuttlebut for some years.

If either or both ladies play the Shakespearean revivals, they're likely to be SRO hits in Gotham, which means their road time will have to be cut to brief spans. Naturally, the theater being a business proposition, the Guild is logical in keeping their plays where they will make the biggest profit.

Still, this doesn't help the road and those unrewarded subscribers very much. In fact, I should think they'd just shrug their shoulders at the very word theater.

So what I wish for, as the Guild starts its fourth decade, is that Miss Helburn and Mr. Langner take serious stock of their potential profits across the country, that they try accenting the "road," on which, only last week, Minneapolis businessmen concluded the city's 600,000 "don't give a damn" if they get any living theater or not. They go so long without any that when a company arrives it dies.

I wish, then, that the Guild study its "Oklahoma!" routes carefully and note that, week after week, as the two companies of this admittedly exceptional show roll along, the money piles in at the box office.

I wish the Guild would realize that when it tells its subscribers it will send them plays and then doesn't that it hurts itself as much as the theater.

I wish it would reach into its pile of established hits, cast them with some of the out-of-work players now pinching their savings in New York and thereby feed the appetite that advance sales prove exists.

So, to Miss Helburn, Mr. Langner and their impressive list of associates in their impressive manse of 53rd street I wish a happy, hopeful thirtieth birthday.

Slayer Denied Appeal to Review His Conviction

Jake Bird, murderer who said that those who took part in bringing about his death sentence would die before he did, lost his appeal to the Supreme Court yesterday. The high court refused to review his conviction of murder at Tacoma, Wash.

Bird has seen five of those connected with his trial, including the trial judge, die suddenly while he remained alive in prison for more than two years. He has delayed his execution by confessing to a total of a dozen murders in various parts of the country.

His death sentence was imposed for the ax murder of Mrs. Bertha Kludt and her 17-year-old daughter, Beverly June. He was scheduled to die January 14 of this year but won a stay by appealing to the Supreme Court.

Argentine Strike Opens With Gunfire; 5 Dead

Buenos Aires, April 18 (AP).—Government sources said tonight five persons were killed and 24 injured in a gunbattle that marked the start of a general strike at Salta, in northwestern Argentina, capital of a province by the same name.

The strike was called by local unions in Salta in support of a demand that three provincial officials resign and that a law fixing maximum prices for necessities be set aside.

Gen. Pick to Speak

Gen. Lewis A. Pick, new chief of the Army Engineers Corps, will speak at the University of Nebraska Alumni Club's Charter Day dinner at Alban Towers at 7 p. m. Saturday. Clifford Sandahl, newly appointed national alumni director, will be presented. Following the dinner the group will attend the Nebraska State Society's Arbor Day dance at the Wardman Park.

Fliers Up 821 Hours

Fullerton, Calif., April 18 (U.P.).—Endurance fliers Bill Barris and Dick Riedel completed 821 hours in the air at 8:44 (EST) today in their attempt to stay aloft at least 1000 hours.

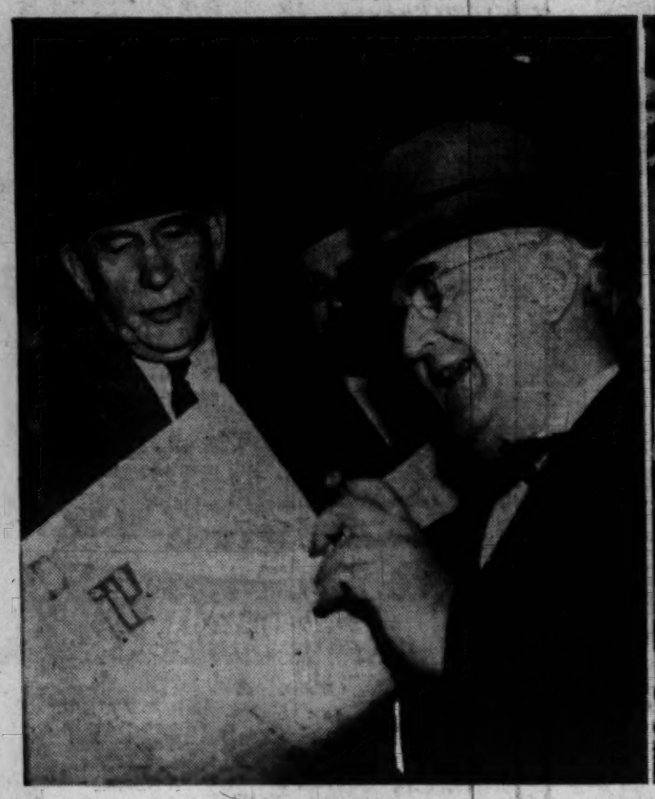
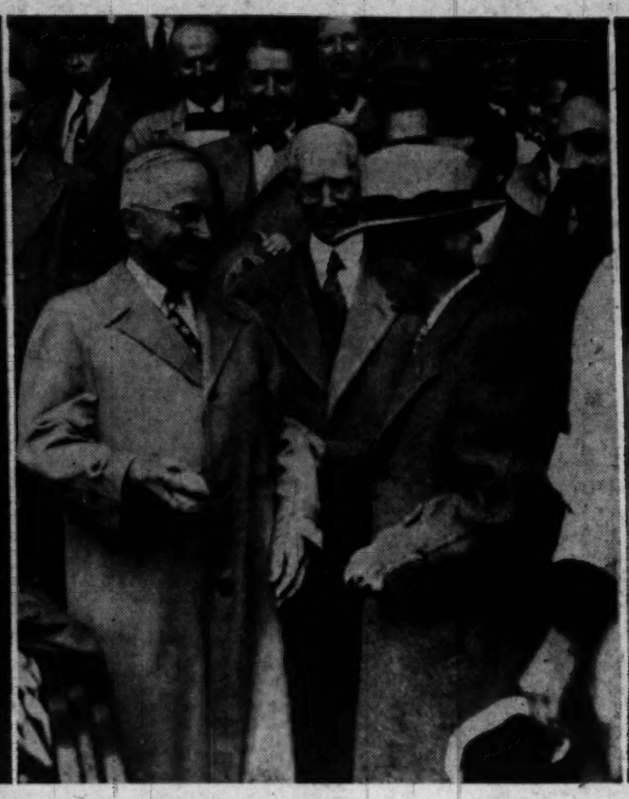
Nats Win One for Harry With 2 Runs in 9th, 3-2





By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

GRIFFITH STADIUM, April 18.—To the stadium crowd, at least, Mr. Truman is the nicest President. He didn't muss up their lawn with a well-treaded fleet of cars as other Presidents have done, but reached his seat via the back entrance, recalling that he got into the White House the same way, in 1945.

The glamour boy in the White House party was Rear Admiral Robert L. Dennison, Mr. Truman's Naval aide, who looked fresh from a raid on Fort Knox, with enough gold braid to circle a small Equator.

POVICH

For the President there was warming evidence to throw at the teeth of his critics—no signs of a depression. The 60 cent bleacher seats went begging while the customers scrambled for the $2 numbers, and stood patiently in line for standing room tickets at a buck and a quarter.

The President's opening pitch was, of all things, an illegal delivery—a spitball, which was outlawed in the 1920's. He (horrid word on his hands and reverted to his 1947 southpaw delivery to make the pitch.

It was merely one more distinction for Mr. Truman, who already had become famous, thanks to his recent wage raise by Congress, as being the only United States President to draw as big a salary as Bob Feller.

AT THE END of the first half of the opening inning, with Ray Scarborough holding the A's scoreless, the Nats found conditions vastly improved over 1948. A year ago when the Nats came to bat for the first time, they were trailing the Yankees in the opening game, 7 to 0.

The Nats didn't get a hit in the opening inning, but they were not exactly hitless. One of Fowler's pitches bit into the calf of Buddy Lewis' left leg, and Lewis was on base for the first time since 1947, ending a long slump.

Lewis didn't stay on first base any longer than it took Fowler to pick him off, which is what happened. The President of the Lewis Motors Co. of Gastonia, N. C., could lose his right-field franchise if that happens again today.

In the second inning, Madjeski singled and so did Chapman, Suder and Fowler. To Scarborough, the former North Carolina mathematics teacher, that added up to two runs for the A's.

Ferris Fain takes a third strike to open the A's third and does not like it, and appeals to Plate Umpire Bill McGowan. He couldn't have gotten less satisfaction and a quicker turn-down if he had walked over to the presidential box and appealed to Chief Justice Fred Vinson of the Supreme Court.

BASEBALL COMMISSIONER A. B. Chandler maintained a rigid neutrality in the White House box, but President Truman unfettered by such high office as Chandler's, was openly rooting for the Nats.

The Nats made their first hit of the game in the fourth, a single, and got maximum mileage out of it. Chapman's fumble was attached to Coan's blow to center field and it led to a run, with Coan scoring from third on Lewis' fly.

After his rough second inning, Scarborough pitched himself a zero hour with four shut-out innings in a row, but the Nats were foul against Fowler. They filled the bases with none out in the fifth but couldn't stir up any kind of a run.

Connie Mack had a man warming up during Fowler's fifth-inning troubles but decided against any change in pitchers. Eighty-six years of experience and a proper evaluation of the Nats' power went into the decision of Mr. Mack.

In the eighth, the A's knew how it felt to get a man picked off first base. Elmer Valo took too big a lead against Scarborough, and proved that indiscretion was the better part of Valo, or the worst.

The Nats have what could be called a worthless gem of consistency. Against Fowler, they left two or more men stranded on base in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth innings, without getting anybody home.

In the ninth, though, the Nats were completely forgiven when they sent two of their colleagues, their 26,000 customers and President Truman home.

La Motta Scores Kayo in Fourth

Detroit, April 18 (AP).—Jake La-Motta, hard-hitting Bronx, N. Y., fighter, hardly worked up a sweat tonight as he scored an easy fourth round knockout over O'Neill Bell of Detroit in the main bout of an Olympia fight card.

LaMotta at 167¼, had a 6-pound advantage and made the most of it in the abbreviated scrap.

Phillies Ruin Braves' Pennant-Raising, 4-0

By Bill King

Boston, April 18 (AP).—Lefty Ken Heintzelman, starting his tenth major league season at the ripe age of 33, ruined Boston's first National League pennant raising in 34 years by hurling his Philadelphia Phils to a 4-0 shutout over the Boston Braves today in cold and wind-swept Braves field.

A skimpy 9195 crowd saw the greatly strengthened Phils clinch the game in the first innng against Johnny Sain, the tribal right hand ace, who had bowed only three times in 15 previous starts against those rivals.

Richie Ashburn started Sain's downfall by opening the game with a single to center. Before the Boston 24-game winner was able to retire a batter, the bases were filled. Gran Hamner and Eddie Waitkus both reached on fielders' choices that backfired.

Walks in Two Runs

With one out, Sain forced in the first run by passing Bill Nicholson and two were down when Eddie Miller also walked with the sacks loaded.

Heintzelman's fast one was highly effective in the gloomy setting. The Braves never were in a position to make a dent in that two-run lead.

But Eddie Sawyer's smooth-working performers were not content with half-measures. They added a third tally in the third session on singles by Del Ennis and Nicholson and the former raced home as Willie (Puddin' Head) Jones banged into a double play.

Singles by Stan Lopata and Hamner, which sandwiched a neat Heintzelman sacrifice, gave the Phils their final run with two out in the ninth.

Two Blows for Dark

Heintzelman gave but five hits, of which Alvin Dark collected a two-bagger and a brace of singles. But none of them found a runner aboard. Phil Masi and Sain put the other two Boston hits together after two were down in the fifth, only to have Eddie Stanky end matters by popping to Miller behind second base.

Video Made Experts of Everybody

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

WHILE THOSE 26,000 people were getting a first-hand view of opening day action from the Griffith Stadium stands yesterday, many times that number of us were watching the Nats' 3-2 victory over television.

We liked what we saw, for the most part, from both a baseball and video standpoint.

Of course, some of us turned off our sets around the seventh inning figuring the Nats would never overcome Philadelphia's 2-1 lead. Others, after watching five or six innings had to quit because our eyes were starting to hurt or we had a headache.

BUT IT WAS A GOOD SHOW, anyway. We hear Mr. Clark Griffith, whose team won the game, was pleased with the athletic end of things. The Chesterfield people, who sponsored the television showing, expressed themselves as "overjoyed" with their advertising medium.

After sharing the description with Arch McDonald, an old-timer at the radio business but a rookie in telecasting, Bob Wolff was about as tickled as his employers.

"The show must have gone over perfectly," Bob said, "otherwise we'd have been flooded with phone calls. The sponsors say Washington has the best television coverage in the country."

We television experts had a few suggestions to make, minor complaints to lodge. Wolff, with technical aid from Television Technician Don Roper, had something to say about each.

"IT'S A GOOD idea to have close-ups of the faces of players at various times," he agreed, "and we'll try to do that. Like during arguments at the plate and conferences between catchers and pitchers. There's a lot of color and background we can pick up, too, when our routine is settled.

"If you had a shakey or fuzzy picture on your set yesterday, however, it was either the fault of the set or because you were too near the station," Wolff said. "From as far away as Philadelphia, we heard that yesterday's transmission was perfect."

Roper hoped TV fans had noticed that the "range" of the televised picture had been increased to take in catcher, batter, pitcher and almost as far back as second base.

"We don't have any real innovations planned for this year," Roper said, "but we are building a new transmitter. That ought to be ready next week. Any other improvements will be in the handling of present equipment by our technicians."

Those Wondrous Nats...

Editor's Note: Herb Heft, Washington born and reared, is a never-give-up backer of the Nats. He takes a never-ending ribbing in The Washington Post sports department because of his loyalty to the Nats. When they lose, he's downhearted. When they win, he's on top of the world. This season, Herb frequently will put his feelings about the Nats into words for you readers.

HOW 'BOUT OUR NATS? Aren't they simply wunnerful? That win yesterday puts us in first place, you know.

And we have the league's leading pitcher in Ray Scarborough (1-0), and the leading regular hitter in Gil Coan (.600).

We had to lick a pretty fair club, too, according to the "experts." Haven't all of them been picking the A's to wind up in fourth place or better?

I don't claim to be an expert. But if you'd asked me three months ago, I'd have told you that the A's are overrated, compared with our Nats.

The A's have good pitching, it's true; but what else?

Our Nats really showed 'em up in every department yesterday. Could be that we'll finish ahead of the A's when the season ends.

Why not? Didn't Scarborough, our best pitcher, outclass Dick Fowler, their best man? Sure he did. Ray had only one bad inning, while Fowler was behind a lot of hitters and letting a lot more get on base. Anybody could see it was just a matter of time before we would bust loose.

We outhit the so-called A's powerhouse too 11-7, outfielded them, and showed we had the guts by coming through in the ninth.

When we were leaving nine men on base from the fifth through the eight innings, a few of the cynics were yelling, "Same old Nats." They left early and missed a great finish. Served 'em right too.

I was saying, "Same Old Stewart" when Eddie followed Sherry Robertson's ninth-inning double wtih a game tying two-bagger of his own. I can't remember when Eddie didn't deliver in the clutch.

And how 'bout that Clyde Vollmer, the rookie. He felt he hadn't done enough by getting one single and making a sensational catch. He had to come through with the game-winning single.

What a team. I guess it's Sid Hudson's turn to pitch today. Bring on them Yankees! We'll yank 'em apart!

'Great Expectoration'

Southpaw Truman Revives Spit Ball

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

GRIFFITH STADIUM, April 18.—Until President Truman tossed a spit ball today, the last time a spitter had been thrown here was in 1924 when Allen Russell, former Nat reliefer, employed the pitch . . . The Nats, incidentally, won the pennant that year. Maybe we're on the verge of "Great expectorations" this season . . . The spitter that Pitcher Truman threw was a beaut. He cupped the ball in his right hand, moistened it twice, and then reared back and delivered a lefthand, overhand toss . . . The ball traveled about 50 feet in the air, took one hop and came to rest in the mitt of Eddie Robinson, new Nat first baseman. Sid Hudson, who caught Truman's opening day pitch two seasons ago, muffed it today and big Robbie pounced on the ball . . . On the subject of spitball pitchers, Clark Griffith reminded his guests that the spit-ball was outlawed "about 25 years ago, but the pitchers in the league using it at that time were allowed to spit out their lives" . . .

MR. TRUMAN appears to be making a production of his opening day stint and a good one it it, too. Today, for instance, he cautioned the Nats and Athletics who were lined up in front of his box along the first base line, to move back a few feet. . . . He then shifted the ball from one hand to another for a few seconds and not even Drew Pearson would have ventured a prediction as to which hand Mr. Truman would use for this year's toss. . . . Griffith made the decision for him. When the President asked his host, "How shall I throw it, Democratic or Republican," Griffith said, "Democratic, of course," and Mr. Truman then uncorked his left-handed toss. Moscow papers please note . . . The President arrived at the park at 2:35, 15 minutes before schedule and the Georges Radio and Television Co. hit the jackpot because of it. The firm sponsored a 15-minute video show called "Dug-out Chatter" from 2:30 to 2:45 and had no idea that one of its guests would be Mr. Truman. . . . But with the President's early arrival, Announcer Bob Wolff kissed off his interviews with players and centered the cameras and his commentary on Mr. Truman's arrival. . . .

NAT PITCHER Milo Candini was assigned the job of sitting in front of the presidential box to catch any foul balls which may have been hit there and that task is likely to end Candini's career with the Nats . . . Chick Pieretti did it in 1947 and was shunted to the White Sox the next season. Last year Earl Wooten had the job and he's now with Chattanooga . . . besides scoring an upset over Tom Dewey last November, Mr. Truman took part in another historic occasion today. He became the first President in the last six years to see the Nats have undisputed possession of first place . . . the Nat dressing room was a scene of riotous happiness after Clyde Vollmer busted up the game with his single. The place was jumping with joy, but no one was happier over the victory than Frankie Baxter, veteran clubhouse custodian. Baxter staked the team to beers . . . That's the first time he's done anything like that since the Nats won the pennant in 1933 . . . even "Mumbles" Kozar, the silent-second baseman, had something to say. "That was a helluva win," he brought himself to remark in one of his more expansive moments.

Sam Dente, Vollmer Big Hit With Fans

By Bill Ahlberg
Post Reporter

Well, the Nats won an opener —their first in six years.

Buddy Lewis, who spent opening day, 1948, selling automobiles in Gastonia, N. C., and spent this opening day patrolling right field for the Nats, was like a big kid, acting as if it was his first day in the big time. He just said, "It's the most thrilling day of all."

Two of the new Nats made a big hit with the 26,000 fans on hand. It was Clyde Vollmer who won the game with his single in the ninth, and it was the same Vollmer who got a big hand for racing far back in centerfield in the 7th inning to haul down Eddie Joost's smash with one hand.

Newcomer Sam Dente showed the folks that the Nats have a shortstop, at last. He went to his right side to make a terrific stop of Sam Chapman's hard grounder in the sixth and came up with another beautiful play in the eighth on Elmer Valo's slow roller.

THE PRESIDENT played second fiddle to the ballplayers on one occasion.

At the gate leading to the Nats' side of the field, smallfry were trying to fight their way through the crowds, looking for autographs.

The conversation went this way:

First kid—"Let's try to get President Truman's autograph."

Scarborough Beats Macks On Single By Vollmer

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Two hours and three minutes after President Truman presided at the opening game ceremonies, the Nats unceremoniously dumped the Athletics out of a 2-1 lead and snatched a sudden 3-2 victory for themselves yesterday.

They did it in the ninth to the high satisfaction of 26,000 fans who saw them frustrated by tall Dick Fowler, of the A's, with each passing inning until the uproarious finish.

They showered down on Fowler with four hits in that ninth, with a pair of pinch batsmen, Sherry Robertson and Ed Stewart, pounding out two-baggers to get the tying run home and set the scenery for Rookie Clyde Vollmer's winning blow.

Thus did the Nats contrive their first victory under the four-year sponsorship of President Truman as their honorary pitcher, and bring to an end what had been a five-year losing streak in opening games at Griffith Stadium.

Like any other fan, the President leaped to his feet and cheered as Robertson and Stewart doubled to launch the victorious rally in the ninth inning.

Saved For Ninth

The winning pitcher was Ray Scarborough, who kept the Nats in the ball game smartly after a rough second inning, but shutting the Athletics out thereafter.

Apparently doomed to their one-run deficit after leaving nine men stranded on base in the previous four innings, the Nats lashed out suddenly at Fowler in the big ninth.

Nepotism reared its nice, handsome head at the start of that ninth when Manager Joe Kuhel called upon Sherry Robertson, nephew of the club president, to pinch hit for Al Evans.

It was a superlative choice, with Robertson lashing the first pitch into left field and beating it out for a two-bagger to put the

DEAR FOLKS:

Havre de Grace Race Track, Md., April 18.—Capot was shipped to New York to await Saturday's Wood Memorial. Favorites are batting .321 here. Benny Civitello is topping the jockeys here and former Jockey Earl Porter is leading the trainers. After last Saturday's bad one, the special race train is making smooth stops. You could have threaded a needle when the train came to a halt. Jockey W. J. Passmore arrived from New York and will ride out the meeting here. Word from Charles Town says that first post time there starting Monday will be 2 p. m. Daylight Saving Time. ## Four Others Boost Value To $101,870

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., April 18—Clifford Mooer's Old Rockport squeezed into the 1949 Preakness field much in the manner that he scored his most important victory—in the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby in which he came from far back. Just as he was being counted out of the Baltimore classic, his papers arrived by mail at the Maryland Jockey Club.

In addition to Old Rockport, whose name sounds more like bourbon whiskey than a race horse, four other 3-year-olds were made eligible for the Preakness through supplementary nominations costing $2250.

The additions to the field upped the gross value of the famous mile and three sixteenths event to be run may 14 to $101,870.

Daniel Hess' Blue Lancer, Isadore Bieber's Palestian, Joe W. Brown's Rookwood and Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Model Cadet joined Old Rockport for the run for the black-eyed susans.

Old Rockport is considered most formidable of the quintet of supplementaries. He defeated Fred Hooper's Olympia, the current Kentucky Derby favorite, in winning the Santa Anita Derby and is considered "any kind of a track" horse.

Now being primed for the Kentucky Derby, Old Rockport showed he is in form by winning an overnight sprint at Keeneland Park last week, beating Provocative, among others.

Civitello Boots Boo Boo Shoo In

Havre De Grace, Md., April 17. Apprentice Benny Civitello rode his tenth winner of the meeting aboard Murray Hill Farm's Boo Boo Shoo in the Bush River Purse. The track was as muddy as the bottom of the Chesapeake Bay tributary for which the event was named.

Civitello brought the 3-year-old colt through on the inside to take command and drove him home 3½ lengths in advance of Walter M. Jeffords' Pibroch. Third money in the field, scratched down to six, went to William G. Helis' Benvenuto.

A slight favorite over Pibroch, Boo Boo Shoo paid $7.20 and was clocked in 1.45 2/5 for the mile and 70 yards.

The daily double paid $29 on the combination of 3 and 5. Jockey Carson Kirk of Silver Spring, Md., rode Grand Boy to a front-running victory in the first race at $5.20. In the second race Apprentice Dewey Deason piloted the second winner of his career aboard Charles Hartwick's Alanay, a $13.20 shot. HAIGHT.

Virginia's Trout Season Next to Open

By Ralph Murdock

Maryland's trout fishing season opened over the last weekend, and the Virginia season is next, beginning Wednesday. If you are a nonresident of either State, be sure you have the proper license.

Two hardheads were caught at Benedict the other day. One of Captain Shorter's boats brought in the first hardhead. It was caught at noon by Bob Hansrote of Washington, D. C. He was fishing with Paul Vincent, a resident of West Virginia. Captain Robertson was the skipper.

Mrs. Hansrote, who usually accompanies her husband on fishing trips to the Patuxent River, was unable to go along because of illness in the family. She modestly admits that she usually catches more fish than her husband and probably would have captured the number one hardhead of 1949, if she had been aboard. Mr. Hansrote caught an 8-pound rock and 50 white perch at Benedict on Monday. He's an ardent fisherman and left his home Saturday at 5:30 a. m. After catching the hardhead he came in for some soup and returned to the fishing grounds. But alas, no more hardheads.

At Benedict, five more croakers were caught. No boat had more than a single. Captain Shorter, who operates a fleet of fishing craft, has three 40 ft. fishing boats, seven air cooled inboard motor boats and seventeen rowboats. Rates, large boats, $10 for five hours for six people. If you prefer the inboard jobs, they can be procured at 75c an hour or $5 for eight hours.

IF YOU ARE trying for hardheads, use shrimp. About four days of warm weather and the hardhead season will be on at Benedict.

Now for the shad fishing. The best reports come from Allen's Fresh at the head of the Wicomico river. E. F. Davis is a fisherman of renown whose only complaint is that there are only seven days in the week to fish.

He operates the Anacostia Sport Mart on Good Hope Road. While with John Slutz, he caught eight hickory shad at Allen's Fresh. These shad averaged three pounds each and were caught in 25 minutes. Rain stopped them.

Maj. Virgil Johnson, retired from the Army Air Corps, and Al Schweser, former casting champ, both claim that shad fishing with fly rods and the use of "OO" size Nungessiver spoon is a better sport than angling for small mouth bass. Seventeen shad were caught by this pair. Major Johnson claims that he had a shad raise five times above the surface when hooked. This gamester weighed 3¾ pounds.

Ed Konick tried a new angle on the rock fish in the Patuxent River near Point Patience. Fishing between Clark's Landing and the Seven Gables, Ed landed a 10-pound rock fish by casting from shore. Fishing directly opposite the red buoy at Point Patience and using clams as bait, this nice fish was caught in 5 feet of water. This is one of the best spots for rock fishing in the spring. The deepest water in the Patuxent can be found in this area. Some depths reach 75 feet within a distance of 100 yards from shore.

White perch continue to run but the average is almost too small for consumption. Large perch are very scarce. It seems that the shad have taken over for the time being. When the fresh water fishermen become enthused in shad fishing, it is a real sport.

Suggestions: For hard heads, try Honga River on the Eastern Shore and Benedict on the Patuxent. For shad, the hot spots are Allen Fresh and the Upper Potomac River, and for white perch, the Severn and South Rivers and the Upper Patuxent and the Chain Bridge area.

Frankie's Wildness Costs Title

Virginia Beach, Va., April 18 (AP).—Bobby Locke of Johannesburg, South Africa, kept a promise today.

The muffin-faced professional had vowed a week ago that "my golf game will come around again soon."

"Soon" turned out to be today. Locke took advantage of amateur Frank Stranahan's wildness and his poor putting to beat the strong man from Toledo, Ohio, by two strokes in their 18-hole playoff for the Cavalier Specialists golf tournament.

Locke, the most consistent of the 20 top-drawer professionals to play in the Specialists tourney, toured the par 69, 6065-yard Cavalier Country Club course in 68. He played the front side in even par 35 and scored a one-under-par 33 coming back.

Stranahan, meantime, was out in 34 and back in 36 for a one-over-par 70.

The Cards:

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Par out | 443 | 535 | 434 | —35 |
| Locke out | 534 | 435 | 434 | —35 |
| Stranahan out | 443 | 535 | 424 | —34 |
| Par in | 434 | 444 | 443-34 | —69 |
| Locke in | 434 | 444 | 443-34 | —68 |
| Stranahan in | 434 | 565 | 443-36 | —70 |

The victory was little more than an honor for Locke. He already had pocketed the $1500 top money by posting the low professional score yesterday.

Stranahan's downfall came on the par four, 392-yard fourteenth hole. He took a six. Frank's first tee shot landed out of bounds to the right. He sent a second down the fairway but could barely make the green with a five-iron shot. Then he laid a first putt to within 30 inches of the hole but couldn't get the next one to drop.

Locke, meanwhile, was on the velvet in two and holed out with two putts for a par four.

After the disastrous 14th, Stranahan was wild again on the 15th and wound up with a five for the par four, 400-yard hole. He hit the green in two, but the ball bounced far beyond the carpet. Frankie's chip shot rested eight feet away and he two-putted to trail Locke by two strokes.

They matched each other stroke for stroke on the remaining three holes although Stranahan gambled several times to try to whittle away Locke's margin.

West Gets Nod Over Bussey

Sonny Boy West, 134, of Washington, took a ten-round decision from Talmadge "Bus" Bussey, 136½, of Detroit, last night at Turner's Arena. In a split decision, the two judges voted for the local lad while Referee Eddie La Fond gave the bout to Bussey.

Bussey was in trouble in the third and was floored by West on a clean shot to the jaw but the bell saved Bussey. He came on strong in the late rounds to throw the bout into a split vote.

The nineteen-year-old West was hard put to hold his advantage, especially in the eighth and ninth rounds when Bussey scored with several hard lefts and rights.

Leon Daughtry, 146½ District Golden Gloves champion, won a unanimous decision in the semi-final five-rounder over Roy Wirt, 144, Roanoke, Va.

A crowd of 831 paid a gross of $1811.68 and a net of $1333.77 to see the fights.

In the preliminaries, all four-rounders, Tunney Jones, 146, Washington, decisioned Henry Porter, 145, Washington; Ralph Gonzales, 150, Washington, KO'd Dick Vess, 153, Roanoke after 1:18 of the fourth; Herbie Stowe, 148½, was awarded a TKO over Kid Williams, 151. Both are local lads and it was Stowe's first profight. Don Webber, 128, Roanoke, decisioned Walter Hamm, 130, Washington.

Griffs Beat Out Macks In 9th, 3-2

tying run in excellent scoring position.

Bunts Fail, But . . .

For Scarborough, Kuhel moved in Stewart as his next pinch hitter with orders to bunt, but after two foul attempts Stewart was happily reduced to swinging. He did, another two-bagger past Valo in left field, and Robertson was home with the tying run.

Now it was Gil Coan with orders to sacrifice and he performed a happy extreme. No only did he lay one down the third base line, but he beat it out and Stewart was on third with none out.

In this crisis, the A's ordered Sam Dente purposely passed to fill the bases and the strategy was succeeding when Buddy Lewis fouled out to Majeski. Big Vollmer, though, didn't dally. He assailed Fowler's first pitch for a line-drive single to center to win the ball game.

Scarborough was magnificent after the A's two-run second inning in which they crashed him for four hits, all of them singles. Majeski led off with a single to center and moved to third on Chapman's single to right. Scarborough eased the tension by grabbing Rosar's shot into the box and personally running Majeski down between third and home, but the A's had other hits left.

Suder rammed a single to right to score Chapman from second base, and Pitcher Fowler cushioned his lead with another run by a single to right that scored Rosar, who had advanced on Suder's hit.

After that the curve-balling Scarborough pitched three-hit ball. Not a man did he permit past second base, and only one got that far. But his efforts were beginning to look pretty futile with Fowler standing the Nats off without a hit in the first three innings.

Coan Helped Along

Washington came up with a cheap sort of run in the fourth on their first hit, a single by Coan. Chapman fumbled the ball in center field, and Coan raced to second with one out. He reached third while Dente was being thrown out by Fowler, and was ushered home on Lewis' long fly to center.

For the Nats the next four innings were deep in frustration, however. They filled the bases with none out in the fifth and got nothing. They left two men on in the sixth, seventh and eighth, getting no runs.

They quickly loaded the bases on Fowler in the fifth with Yost drawing a walk, Robinson getting a single to short right, and Kozar beating out a bunt when Fowler slipped on the wet grass, and they got nothing out of it because Evans pounded a grounder to Majeski who launched a double play via the plate. Scarborough walked to refill the bases, but Coan popped up.

In the sixth, Dente led off with a hit and Vollmer's single to left moved him to third with one out, but again the Nats were cut down at the plate when Joost grabbed Yost's grounder and caught Dente trying to score.

Kozar led off the seventh with a walk, but was thrown out on Evans' attempt to sacrifice him to second. A bit later Coan singled to right but Dente left them stranded.

In the eighth, Lewis' walk put the tying run on again with none out, but again the nimble A's infield defeated the Nats' attempt to sacrifice a man along. Vollmer's bunt was grabbed up by Fain who caught Lewis at second. Yost's single that followed was nullified when Robinson flied out and Kozar grounded out.

But eventually came the ninth and the Nats experienced the recent novelty of winning an opening game.

Women Start Golf Play

The District Women's Golf Association team play opens today with the first teams competing at Chevy Chase, second teams at Kenwood, and third teams at Washington Golf and Country Club.

Due to the odd number of teams in each classification, the host team draws a bye in all classes. Play will be held every Tuesday for the next nine weeks with the closing field day June 28.

Today at Chevy Chase, in the first-team class, Manor meets Woodmont on the first tee at 9:30, while Congressional plays Washington on the tenth tee at the same time. A half hour later, Army-Navy tees off against defending champion Kenwood on the first tee and Prince Georges clashes with Belle Haven on the tenth tee.

At Kenwood, the second-team defending champs from Manor face Chevy Chase on the front tee at 9:30, while Congressional meets Army-Navy on the back nine. At 10, Prince Georges and Columbia tangle on the first tee with Washington and Belle Haven mixing it on the tenth.

For the first time since the war the third teams will play in league competition. At Washington, Manor and Indian Springs at 9:30, with Kenwood and Columbia meeting at 10.

Moeller Homer Wins for Terps

Lexington, Va., April 18 (AP).—Jim Moeller's home run in the twelfth inning today broke up the ball game and gave the University of Maryland a 7-6 Southern Conference victory over Washington and Lee here.

Moeler's extra-inning clincher came with two men out and provided a dramatic climax to a three-hour game replete with thrills. It with the Terps' first-sacker's fourth hit of the afternoon and was registered off freshman hurler Jim Maver, who had been sailing along in near-perfect form after relieving starter Graham Leslie in the tenth inning.

Sam Dente, Vollmer Big Hit With Fans

wondering, those 15 or so guys parked on the folding chairs in front of the Nats' dugout weren't Congressmen. They were President Truman's corps of secret service men.

George McQuinn, former Yankee and now an Alexandria sporting goods dealer, was a pre-game visitor to the Nats' dugout, looking trim enough to hold down any first base post in the league.

For First Base Umpire Ed Rommel it was a day of memories, too. He's had other openings in Griffith Stadium. For instance, back in 1926, Rommel was the starting pitcher for the Athletics against Walter Johnson. The A's lost that one, too, in 16 innings.

It was fitting that the first man to reach Vollmer after his game-winning single was Washington Pitcher Ray Scarborough. That single meant a big No. 1 in the victory column for Ray.

Argentine Wins Grand Prix

Pau, France, April 18 (U.P.).—Juan Manuel Fangio of Argentina, leading nearly all the way, won the Grand Prix De Pau auto race today with an average speed of 84.923 kilometers (52.74 miles) per hour.

MacPhail Closes Deal (in Horseflesh) As Majors Open

Havre de Grace, Md., April 18. Showing that his thoughts are far away from baseball these days, Larry MacPhail, former Yankees president, announced the purchase of the entire breeding stock of the Bomar Stable here as the big league baseball season opened. MacPhail made his deal with Charles B. Bohn and Peter A. Markey of Detroit, who are dissolving their partnership in horses.

MacPhail said he also purchased half interest in the stallion Grand Slam and the sire will stand at his Glen Angus farm at nearby Bel Air, Md., in 1950. In all, he bought eight brood mares, five yearlings and five foals.—HAIGHT.

Browns Defy Chandler, Sue To Evict Cards

St. Louis, April 18 (U.P.).—The St. Louis Browns, who don't think they are getting enough rent money from the St. Louis Cardinals, filed suit in Circuit Court today to evict them from Sportsman's Park.

The sudden renewal of hostilities came despite an admonition from Commissioner A. B. Chandler, who earlier this spring in a conference with Presidents William DeWitt of the Browns and Fred Saigh of the Cardinals, urged them to settle their differences out of court.

The Circuit Court now will assign the dispute to a specific judge for study after which the Cardinals will be given 30 days to file an answer. Thus the suit cannot affect the Cardinals scheduled opener against the Cubs here Friday.

The trouble stems from the fact that the Cardinals changed ownership on Jan. 3, 1948, when Sam Breadon, then president, liquidated his holdings to a syndicate headed by Robert Hannegan, former Postmaster General. Hannegan sold the club to Saigh last winter.

DeWitt claims the rental lease which expires in 1950 was invalidated by the change of ownership.

Rain and Cold Predicted for Baseball Today

A prediction of cold and rainy weather was expected to postpone some games and slash estimated crowd figures of 280,000 today for the first full schedule in the 1949 major league baseball season.

Only 15,000 fans were anticipated for the debut of the world champion Cleveland Indians against the Browns in St. Louis. Other American League games pit the Nats against the Yankees in New York, the Chicago White Sox against Detroit, and the Boston Red Sox against the Philadelphia Athletics.

In the National League it will be the Boston Braves, after a 4-0 beating by the Philadelphia Phils yesterday, playing in Cincinnati, the Pittsburgh Pirates in Chicago and the New York Giants in Brooklyn.

Hal Newhouser will be making his fifth straight opening-day turn on the mound for Detroit. He will be opposed by Allen Gettel. Both the Tigers and White Sox are under new managers. Red Rolfe, former Yankee star, is leading the Tiger charges, while Jack Onslow guides the Sox as successor to Ted Lyons, who is now coaching the Bengals.

It will be veteran Joe Dobson for Boston against sophomore Southpaw Lou Brissie for the A's. Brissie beat the Red Sox in last year's opening-day double-header. Boston will have Walter Dropo, their slugging rookie, at first base, with Billy Goodman who guarded the bag last year, in right field.

200 Would Lose Jobs Under Maritime Budget Approved by House

MARITIME COMMISSION would have to lay off about 200 of its employes under its House-approved budget. This would be in addition to the 40 jobs now being abolished. Most of the 10 per cent reduction would be made outside of this city.

The agency has held up its plans to hire 200 temporary people to clean up its accounting and inventory backlog. The project will be cancelled if the House budget becomes law.

The agency, incidentally, is without a chairman. The term of Admiral W. W. Smith expired over the weekend and apparently the President hasn't decided whether to reappoint him. A boom is on to promote Commissioner Joe Carson to the chairmanship.

NACA: The Hoover Commission recommended that the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautices be transferred to the Commerce Department. But Commerce doesn't want the independent research agency. It has suggested that NACA either be continued as an independent agency or that it be transferred to the Defense Department. NACA does most of its work for the military.

DEADLOCKED: Payless paydays are nearer for additional thousands of Federal workers. The Senate yesterday didn't act to make available funds for the score of "broke" Federal agencies and activities. Furthermore, when it will is uncertain.

Senate and House conferees have been unable to agree on the first deficiency appropriation. Before it recessed last Friday, the House approved a resolution to advance funds to the distressed agencies. It was presumed the Senate would do likewise.

However, Chairman McKellar of the Senate Appropriations Committee, would prefer to work out an agreement on the deficiency bill. This could delay funds for the needy agencies for another week or 10 days.

The Office of the Housing Expediter and the Office of Defense Transportation have had to skip paydays. The prospect of payless paydays is facing employes of Commodity Credit, Federal Housing, Export Control, War Assets, and certain Interior and postal employes.

Commissioner Lawrence C. Kingland has demanded a full day's work from his Patent Office employes. In a memo to his supervisors, he charges that certain employes "of all levels" are reporting for work late and are leaving the office during the day without permission. He has suggested that supervisors take disciplinary actions against employes who disregard their warnings.

NOTES: Representatives Gary (D., Va.), Canfield (R., N. J.) and Rees (R., Kans.) have paid tribute to the late Joseph Gartland, Post Office's budget officer, as one of the Nation's great public servants, which he certainly was . . . Dr. Christopher M. Granger, assistant chief of the Forest Service, has been honored by Michigan State College for his distinguished service . . . The Civil Service Commission has no objections to the many bills in Congress to give postal workers the same annual and sick leave benefits as most other Federal workers. Classified employes get 26 days annual and 15 days sick leave compared to 15 annual and 10 sick for postal people.

FURLOUGHS: This is the first "furlough" day for the per diem employes at the Quantico Marine base. Thereafter, each Tuesday and Thursday will be furlough days until June 2. Each per diem employe at the base is being required to take seven days off without pay before June 2.

In addition, the Marines have had to fire 42 per annum and 32 per diem employes. The furlough system was devised to prevent the firing of 168 additional per diem people.

The Marine firings and furloughs were forced because of the lack of operating funds. The Marines had to absorb part of the cost of civilian pay raises. Their 1950 budget hasn't been approved by Congress.

The AFL's American Federation of Government Employes is supporting larger appropriations for the Marines to prevent additional layoffs. John J. Smith, AFGE vice president, conferred with White House aides on the matter. He says substantial layoffs are being made among the Marine civilian employes in Philadelphia.

Maryland U. To Drop All But Air Force ROTC Units

Switch From Army Expected to Bring Creation of Leading Aeronautic School

The University of Maryland is turning its back on the Army by terminating its ROTC contracts and preparing to expand its air training under Air Force tutelage.

This will mean that the College of Military Sciences, Physical Education and Recreation will be changed to the College of Air Science and Tactics, offering a degree in military science in aeronautics or reserve officer training in the Air Force.

This move, in the works since last January, when it was approved by the Maryland Board of Regents, was made public yesterday, although the actual change-over will not begin until July.

General Bradley Writes Regrets

Decision of the University of Maryland to end its contracts with the Department of the Army for ROTC units in infantry, transportation and signal corps has brought from Army Chief of Staff Gen. Omar Bradley a letter regretting loss of the ROTC unit at the U. of M.

Writing to Dr. H. C. Byrd, U. of M. president, General Bradley stated: "We regretted to learn of your decision . . . I would feel remiss if I did not write and tell you how sorry we are to lose the ROTC unit. . . ."

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff, has termed the switch "an exceptionally valuable opportunity of which the Department of the Air Force will be most happy to take advantage."

Possible Bid for Air Academy

The change apparently was made to take fullest advantage of the aeronautics engineering school to which the Glenn L. Martin Co. has been a lavish contributor. It is expected to make the University of Maryland a national leader in the field of aeronautical training.

Whether it actually constitutes a bid for the air academy, which will have similar status to West Point and Annapolis, could not be learned last night. Dr. Byrd could not be reached for comment.

Col. Harland C. Griswold, acting dean of the College of Military Sciences, Physical Education and Recreation, said he thought the university has a "fine opportunity for an air unit." He added he believed the shift was decided upon because it would be "more economic and efficient."

To Continue Courses a Year

As planned, the U. of M. will complete its contract commitments with students in the infantry, transportation and signal corps units before changing to a College of Air Science and Tactics. This will mean that courses in these three units will be offered to July, 1950.

Meanwhile, as of July 1, expansion of the aeronautical training unit will begin, with teachers coming from the officer ranks of the Air Force.

Chevy Chase Village Budget Is Approved

Residents of Chevy Chase Village in Montgomery County last night gave unanimous approval to a $49,950 budget for the 1949-50 fiscal year.

The new budget represents an increase of $4900 over last year's figure, but is based on the same tax rate: 40 cents on each $100 evaluation.

Principal item in the budget is $18,500 for public services, including removal of trash and garbage, trimming of hedges and lawns and upkeep of parks. It also includes $12,000 for maintenance and repairs to public property.

The citizens' approval of the budget recommended by the village's board of managers make its approval by the Montgomery County Council mandatory. It will become effective today, although action by the council is not expected for several days.

Despite his announced intention to retire, Arthur W. Defenderfer was reelected chairman of the board of managers by acclamation. Defenderfer, an insurance broker, has been a member of the board for 16 years.

The citizens elected six other board members who will serve with Defenderfer for two years.

They are: John Vance, Emil Pessagno, Arthur Lambert, George Ferris, P. A. Davis and Mrs. Virginia Platt. Lambert, Ferris, Davis and Mrs. Platt are incumbents.

Printers Reveal Election Slate

The names of candidates for offices in the Columbia Typographical Union No. 101 yesterday were released. The election is slated for May 18.

Those nominated are, for president: James J. O'Connor, incumbent, Elmer G. Adams and Guy Capponnetto; for vice president, John R. Evans, incumbent, and William Bennett; for secretary-treasurer, Joseph Lins, incumbent. Louis A. Day, Harold Hughes and James I. Crockett.

In Between Rainfalls, The Egg-Rolls Came . . .

The Washington Post

WITH BUT A SINGLE PURPOSE—Bent on rolling their Easter eggs yesterday were (from left) Judith 8, and Geraldine Lucas, 4, of 319 Kennedy st. nw., and Dona Crandall, 10, of 3121 Mount Pleasant st. nw. When the sun shone they struck out for Zoo Park

ROLLABLE EDIBLES—Quidella Mae Roland, 2, 642 Pickford pl. ne., had a large supply of eggs and candies. Some 500 Easter Monday celebrants turned out at the Zoo when sun appeared Morning showers put a crimp in Easter Monday egg hunts and egg rolling festivities scheduled throughout the city yesterday.

The sun put in a tardy appearance shortly after 2 p. m., attracting about 5000 children to the Zoo, where eggs and youngsters rolled down the slopes at the lion house.

The turnout was poor, however, compared to the 35,000 kids who showed up last year for the event, Zoo Police reported.

Soldiers' Home and Capitol Hill grounds were virtually deserted.

Special Easter Monday programs at 16 District Recreation Department centers were postponed in most cases until today, though "two or three" smaller centers may not have the personnel to carry out the programs today, Recreation officials said.

Postponed till Saturday was a mass egg hunt at Hyattsville's Magruder Park, sponsored by the Prince Georges County Kiwanis Club and the Sidney Lust Theaters.

Just about .17 of an inch of rain fell yesterday, the Weather Bureau said, in scattered showers lasting from midnight to nearly 1 p. m.

Low temperature was 47 degrees at 6:15 a. m. and the day's high of 60 degrees was reached at 4:20 p. m.

Today will be "partly cloudy," it was indicated, with the high temperature in the middle 50's. More rain was expected last night, but "no showers" was the outlook for today.

Device for Measuring Drunks Shows That Capacities Differ

A chemical "smelling device" that fades from a teen-age lipstick shade to clear when it sniffs an alcoholic breath was tried out on a committee of the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board last night.

Called the Harger Drunkometer, the gadget was demonstrated by Dr. Oscar B. Hunter, member of the National Safety Council, who brought it along to a meeting of the Advisory Board in the Municipal Center. Dr. Hunter, an expert on alcoholic effects, has offices at 915 19th st. nw.

While the gadget was interesting, the effects registered in the demonstration varied greatly from the amounts of liquor consumed, because, said the demonstrator, people have different absorption capacities.

For the demonstration, he had with him two white-coated assistants and the requisite chemicals, sulphuric acid, potassium permanganate, a fifth of whisky and four bottles of a soft drink.

A committee of W. H. Maloney, chairman, Baxter Smith, A. J. Brylawski and E. Goring Bliss retired with the whisky and the chaser while Dr. Hunter explained the contents of the small metal suitcase-like gadget.

The suspect first blows up a toy balloon. The air from the balloon gurgles slowly through a test tube of pink solution of potassium permanganate and sulphuric acid. If the solution turns clear, there's alcohol in the air, and the amount of air it takes to clear the liquid determines the amount of alcohol in the blood.

The committee returned in 20 minutes, the time Dr. Hunter said was necessary for the liquor to be absorbed. The whisky was down a few fingers, two bottles of chaser were gone.

Discrepancy Explained

Bliss, who had imbibed two ounces, showed .128 per cent; Smith, who gulped the healthitest dose of four ounces showed only .034 per cent; Chairman Maloney, who had had none, showed none, and Brylawski, who took two ounces plus a few short ones at dinner, showed .025 per cent. None of them showed any obvious effects.

Dr. Hunter explained the discrepancy between the Drunkometer's testimony and the amounts taken by pointing out that men in good drinking condition absorb more slowly than others and that a full stomach slows down absorption so that 20 minutes may not have been long enough to bring out the full effects.

The board passed a motion requesting the District Commissioners to make the presentation of the National Safety Council's traffic award which Washington won last week be made a city-sponsored ceremony.

Traffic Division Inspector Arthur E. Miller reported that more than 14,000 traffic violations were handled by police in March, a record-breaking figure for the District. Miller said a large part of the increases were in "moving violations," the type of offenses that cause accidents.

Died March 8

Marion C. Hargrove, 81, retired District purchasing officer who died here March 8, left an estate of $200,000, it was learned yesterday.

District Court was petitioned to admit his will to probate. The petition listed more than $56,000 in real estate and between $150,000 and $175,000 in cash and securities.

The bulk of the estate will go to more than a dozen relatives and friends. Provision is made for the following charitable bequests:

Boys Club of the Metropolitan Police Department, $500; Washington Animal Rescue League, $500; Washington Humane Society, $500; Boys Town, Nebr., $1000; Church of the Epiphany here, $1000; Washington Home for Incurables, $500, and Florence Crittenden Home, $500.

If estate funds permit, an additional $10,000 goes to the Church of the Epiphany.

Mr. Hargrove rose in 52 years from a volunteer field engineer to become District purchasing officer, retiring in 1939 as the oldest city employe in length of service. He lived at 2600 36th st. nw.

U. S. Appeals For Reopening Of Milk Suit

A Justice Department appeal to reinstate its anti-trust indictment against the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers' Association and major Greater Washington milk distributors was taken under advisement yesterday by the United States Court of Appeals.

The 16-count indictment, charging a conspiracy to fix milk prices here, was dismissed last year by District Court Judge Richmond B. Keech.

Defendants in the criminal indictment were the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers' Association; its secretary-treasurer, Bruce B. Derrick; the Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy, supplying 47 per cent of the area's milk; Thompson's Dairy, supplying 13 per cent; Safeway Stores' Lucerne Division, supplying 11.1 per cent; Alexandria Dairy, 6.4 per cent; Harvey Dairy, 3.7 per cent; Simpson Bros. (Wakefield), 2.9 per cent, and Richfield Dairy, 1.5 per cent.

Right of Cooperative

Yesterday's arguments were on whether the right of a cooperative to operate as a single marketing agency allows it to negotiate collectively with producers without violating the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

Assistant Attorney General Herbert A. Bergson, arguing for a reversal of the District Court decision, told the court Judge Keech's decision apparently was based on a contention that dairy cooperatives are "immune" from the Sherman Act, being under special protection of the Capper-Volstead and Clayton Acts.

Bergson said the Government contends that a cooperative controlling 80 per cent of the area's milk production removes itself from protection of these acts when it enters into a "conspiracy" with dairies distributing 86 per cent of the milk consumed in an area, cutting off competition.

Cut in Prices Cited

William E. Leahy, counsel for the producers' cooperative, denied the association interferred with how the distributors sold the milk, and cited recent milk price declines as proof of competition.

Girl's Reply Causes Arrest Of 15 Youths in Roundup

Prince Georges County Police Pvt. Charles H. Nalley asked a little girl in Morningside, Md.: "Do you know anybody who has a nice new shiny BB gun?"

Her answer, "yes," led yesterday to a roundup of 15 boys, their ages ranging from 12 to 16, who admitted numerous housebreakings in the Suitland area since January 1.

All were released in the custody of their parents for a hearing in the county juvenile court at 2 p. m. April 29. Police said that while some 15 housebreakings are involved, only about $150 in cash was taken, along with numerous small items.

Private Nalley began investigating the theft of a BB gun from a store in Morningside. He followed a chain of clews to the gang. After the little girl identified a lad who had a new one, Nalley interviewed him. The boy said he bought it from another boy for 75 cents. This boy involved another youngster.

By the time Nalley ended up, he had 15 nervous juveniles on his hands. Further questioning, with Roy Bright, senior parole officer for southern Maryland, taking part, brought about admission of the housebreakings. Many had not been reported, Nalley said.

Money Spent on Movies, Sweets

The officer reported that some of the loot—cigarette lighters, pens and pencils, and so on—was recovered. Most of the money, however, was spent on movies, candy, pinball machines and soft drinks, he said.

The housebreakings took place, Officer Nalley revealed, in Suitland, Suitland Manor and Carry Homes. The boys live in those communities and Morningside.

In Falls Church

4 Soldiers Seized in 4 Auto Thefts

Falls Church police announced last night they had cleared up a series of four automobile thefts with arrest of four Fort Belvoir soldiers.

Police Chief Capt. E. H. Howe said the soldiers had been dating girls in Falls Church. The four cars, all recovered, had been stolen since February 9, police said.

One soldier, identified as Pvt. Charles Henry Edmunson, 19, was arrested after fingerprints taken from one of the cars tallied with Edmunson's in FBI files, police said.

Edmunson implicated the three others, Chief Howe said. The others were identified as Pvts. Robert E. Force, Andrew Durant and Joseph Raines.

Police charged all four with auto theft and said all confessed after questioning last night.

Excise Taxes Faces Oleo Bill Discussion

The issue of repealing or reducing the wartime excise taxes confronted the Senate Finance Committee yesterday in connection with its consideration Thursday of the House-approved bill to remove Federal taxes from oleomargarine.

Houseman Indicted in Jewel Theft

The District grand jury yesterday indicted a 29-year-old former houseman on charges of breaking into the home of a State Department official at 2305 Bancroft pl. nw., and stealing $8305 in jewelry.

The defendant is Prince A. Shannon, of no fixed address. The jewels were taken from the home of W. Walton Butterworth, director of Far Eastern affairs at the State Department. They belonged to Butterworth's wife, Virginia, it was charged.

According to the United States attorney's office, about $35 in jewelry was thrown down a sewer by Shannon and the rest turned over to two friends, who were charged with receiving stolen property.

Bracelet Still Missing

They are William Harris, 34, of 310 Lamont st. nw., and James W. Gilbert, 42, of 10 Quincy pl. ne.

Shannon, it was charged, received $25 for the jewels and a promise of $125 more.

Still to be recovered is a platinum jeweled bracelet valued at $8000, according to the indictment.

In another indictment, Joseph W. White, otherwise known as Joseph Warmack, 23, address given as 648½ Morton pl. ne., was charged with raping a 25-year-old nurse's aide of Garfield Hospital. The assault took place near the woman's home March 25 as she was forced onto a wooded bank. She charged that White threatened to kill her.

Massachusetts Man Accused

Joseph A. Hubbard, 22, of Wakefield, Mass., was charged with grand larceny in the theft of $2260 in jewelry from Mrs. Grace Peck and Helen Klaassen, both of 50 Franklin st. ne.

Charles Thompson, 69, a newsvendor of 826 9th st. nw., was charged with perverted acts on three girls, ages 10 and 12. According to the charge, he also gave them small amounts of money.

Onslow C. Umstead, 42, no known address, was charged with attempting to rape a 9-year-old girl in an alley in the 1600 block of 4th st. nw. The girl said she received 30 cents for submitting.

High Court To Consider Commuters' Bus Fares

Tribunal to Decide Dispute Between Capital Transit Co. And Virginia Lines

If you're a commuter to or from Virginia with a desk drawer full of those 3-cent or 6-cent receipts, hold on to them. They may be worth something some day after all.

The "if" involves the United States Supreme Court, which yesterday agreed to consider the long drawn-out controversy over the joint fares between Capital Transit and the two Virginia lines.

To date, about 97,000 of the 3-cent receipts have been issued and about 4900 of the 6-cent type. However, commuters seem to have wearied of the long argument, for Capital Transit says only "about 10 or 11" are now being sold daily.

Apparently, most commuters prefer to pay Capital Transit 13 cents cash, then drop a dime in the fare box of either the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co., Inc., or the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co. when going to or from such places as the Pentagon or Navy Annex.

For 1 cent less commuters can buy from Capital Transit a 22-cent combination ticket which includes the 6-cent receipt—good for 6 cents, that is, if and when the Supreme Court sides with the two Virginia lines and against Capital Transit.

On the side of the two Virginia lines are the Justice Department and the Interstate Commerce Commission. The ICC originally fixed a joint fare of 16 cents. When fares went up, the 16 cents rose to 22 cents.

A three-judge District Court ruling said the ICC could not fix the rates, but that power belonged to the District Public Utilities Commission, as contended by Capital Transit.

During the court fight, Capital Transit has issued the "if-and-when" coupons to those who bought the fare tickets. When fares went up, the coupon went up from 3 cents to 6 cents.

The court indicated yesterday, however, it may not get around to the case until next fall.

Supreme Court Asked to Revoke Child Adoption

The Supreme Court was asked yesterday to revoke the adoption of an illegitimate child by the nephew of a retired Silver Spring clergyman.

The mother is Dawn L. Allen, 39, who contends she agreed to the adoption under "duress and coercion." She made the arrangement before the child's birth and while she was employed as a nurse in the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Raymond Stanley, a retired Protestant Episcopal clergyman, at 1506 Highland dr., Silver Spring.

Under the agreement, the child was adopted by the clergyman's nephew, William S. Litsinger, and Mrs. Litsinger, of Tappahannock, Va. The child was born January 6, 1947. The father was described in the legal brief as a "Captain Moore" of the Army.

Health Insurance Plan Indorsed

Roanoke, Va., April 18 (AP).—Dr. Russell A. Dixon, dean of the dental college of Howard University, Washington, D. C., tonight indorsed President Truman's program for compulsory health insurance.

Speaking at the thirty-sixth annual meeting of the Old Dominion Dental Society, he pointed out the need for increased health standards among a larger segment of the population and said the Administration program under consideration of Congress comes closer to a solution of the problem than any other.

Faced Drunken Driving Charge

CAB Lawyer Parks Car and Kills Himself

By John London
Post Reporter

A crippled Government lawyer, recently divorced and facing police charges, parked his car in the 1300 block of Rhode Island ave. ne. yesterday and scribbled a note: " . . . I'm tired of it all . . . a coward, maybe . . . I couldn't stand it any longer."

Then Archer Cochran, 45, Civil Aeronautics Board attorney of 1335 Newton st. ne., sent a .25-caliber bullet through his brain.

Several hours later, at 2 p. m., a motorist noticed blood on the running board of the 1938 gray four-door Nash. Katherine M. Mitchell of Berwyn, Md., called police and Cochran was pronounced dead at 2:25 p. m.

Alongside the body sprawled on the front seat were crutches. Inside a glove compartment was the note addressed to "Alf," scrawled on the back of an Easter card from a sister in New Orleans.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald ruled the death was suicide.

CAB colleagues were shocked to learn why Cochran, "a Southern gentleman," failed to show up for work as an air transport examiner in the Bureau of Economic Regulation.

Under $1100 bond, he had also been slated to face in Municipal Court charges of drunken driving and carrying a deadly weapon. When he failed to appear in the morning, Bondsman Max Weinstein secured continuance until the afternoon, then until Wednesday.

The charges grew out of a minor traffic accident at 5:40 p. m. Sunday at 14th st. and Independence ave. sw. Police Pvt. John W. Bonomo said that as he approached Cochran's car he saw the lawyer try to shove a .38-caliber automatic under the driver's seat.

In September of 1947 Cochran pleaded not guilty to a drunken driving charge and demanded a jury trial. The next month he changed his plea to guilty and was fined $100.

Among friends startled by the violent death was Representative John E. Rankin (D., Miss.) who said he had known Cochran, a native of Guntown, Miss., and former State representative, all the lawyer's life.

"I'm shocked beyond expression," said Rankin. "I've always counted him a friend and a high-class young man from a fine family."

Colleagues said Cochran was philosophical about his infirmity, crippled legs caused by childhood infantile paralysis. But they believed that divorce proceedings instituted in California by his wife, along with the police charges, left him distraught.

The divorce proceedings were started about two years ago and the divorce recently became final, associates said. Since he and his wife and their married daughter separated, Cochran gave up a home here to live in a rooming house.

CAB associates pointed out that Cochran had a bout of accidents. Three Christmases ago he fell and was hospitalized for a broken arm. Two Christmases ago he suffered a similar mishap, landing in the hospital with a broken arm and broken hip.

He remained away from work Monday through Thursday last week, stricken with flu. But Friday when he returned to the office, he seemed cheerful, talking about using up 80 days of accumulated leave a few days at a time.

Records showed he also practiced law briefly after graduation from the University of Mississippi law school. Then he served a term as State representative, associates said. After that, he had a number of Government assignments, joining CAB in 1940.

Besides his divorced wife, Mildred, and a married daughter, Betty, living in California, he is survived by two brothers, Paul Cochran, of Oklahoma City, and Edward Louis Cochran, of Los Angeles; a niece, Mrs. George O. Huey, of Greenbelt, Md., and a sister, Miss Evelyn Cochran, former Red Cross nurse, of New Orleans.

Naming of Woman Judge Is Proposed

Mrs. India Edwards, chief of the Democratic National Committee Women's Division, believes a woman should be named to the new Juvenile Court judgeship, if Congress creates the post.

She said so yesterday after a White House call.

Mrs. Edwards explained she did not discuss the matter with the President, but had done so earlier with Attorney General Tom Clark. She said Clark agreed with her.

Judge Fay Bentley of Juvenile Court is a voluntary patient in St. Elizabeths Hospital and her job is being handled temporarily by Municipal Court Judge Nadine Gallagher.

A bill is now before Congress to create a second judgeship.

Mrs. Edwards said Judge Bentley has done "a wonderful job" and that the appointment of another woman would be one form of tribute to her.

Fairfax Girl Missing for Two Weeks

ELLEN BEACH
Reported missing

A Fairfax County girl—who was last seen with a man she had known less than a month—has been missing for two weeks, county police reported yesterday.

Police identified the girl as Ellen Virginia Beach, 22, who lived with her father and brother in the Wellington Park subdivision near Mount Vernon Memorial blvd. south of Alexandria.

She was last seen, they said, April 5 with a man known as Joseph (Jack) Drake, 27, who had moved to Woodbridge, on the southern border of Fairfax, just a few weeks earlier. Drake is also missing, police said.

The couple left the Beach home at 23 Bolling rd. the morning of April 5 to go to Washington, the girl's father told police. They reported seen later in the morning at an Alexandria real estate office, where Drake reportedly wrote a $1000 check as down payment on a house and then cashed another check for $40. Both checks bounced, police said. The couple then disappeared.

Miss Beach worked at the Government Printing Office.

Takoma to Ask Repair Bids For Firehouse

The mayor and city council of Takoma Park last night voted to advertise for bids on the renovation of the municipally owned firehouse.

Councilman Sherwood Githens said the entire plan is estimated to cost about $50,000.

It will include enlargement of 3 front doors which will necessitate taking down stonework on the upper part of the 27-year-old building.

Mayor John C. Post and Councilmen W. H. McClenon and H. C. Heffner were named delegates to the Montgomery County Civic Federation. Alternates named were Councilmen John Parkerson, J. H. Nies and H. Brooks Perring.

The councilmen also adopted an ordinance calling for daylight saving April 24 through September 25 in conformity with the District and Montgomery County.

Thousands of telephone numbers in the Washington area change April 24

BEGINNING NEXT SUNDAY MORNING

PLEASE LOOK IN THE NEW DIRECTORY

before every call

The Spring, 1949, telephone directory, which is now being delivered, will be in effect this Saturday night at midnight. It contains thousands of new and changed telephone numbers.

Beginning Sunday morning, April 24, be sure to look in the NEW directory before every call. To avoid wrong numbers, discard your old directory at that time. If you keep a personal list of telephone numbers you frequently call, please bring it up to date with the NEW directory.

New numbering plan will prepare the way for further telephone growth and improvement

The new 2-letter, 5-figure (digit) numbering plan which starts next Sunday morning will involve initially the changing of only 27,000 of this area's 361,000 telephone numbers. This system will be extended to all telephones in the area, gradually over a period of years. With the change, the Washington area will join the ranks of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and other areas already using the "2-5" system.

The plan will make possible the addition of more units of dial equipment with fewer central office names. It is one more step in our long-range program to provide you with finer, faster and more flexible telephone service.

|---|---|
| KEnmore | LOcust |
| Lincoln | LUdlow |

In addition, under the new numbering plan, the following changes will be made:

PLeasant numbers will change to LOckwood with a fifth figure

SPruce numbers will change to LOgan with a fifth figure

There will be another new central office, JOhnson, in which the telephone numbers will have a fifth figure

All of these changes appear in your NEW directory

The new numbering plan is easy to use —here's how!

To call one of these 2-letter, 5-figure numbers, just dial the first TWO letters of the central office name (as always) and then FIVE figures instead of four. It's as simple as that.

THE nosegay was presented to DAR President General Mrs. Roscoe O'Bryne last night, but for the moment two-year-old Ann Cole Kernodle and her brother John Robert are more interested in the scent. The childrn of Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Kernodle were dressed in Colonial costumes for the presentation. The youngsters, members of the Alamance Regulators Society of the Children of the Revolution in North Carolina, served as flower bearers to the president general during the program

AT the opening session of the Fifty-eighth Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution at Constitution Hall last evening Senator Karl Mundt, principal speaker, is greeted by DAR President General Mrs. Roscoe O'Byrne (center) and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, who sang the National Anthem at the meeting

DAR Opens 58th Annual Congress

It needs to be clarified and above all it must be made consistent.

"We need a positively consistent, inclusive, effective, understandable, and above all a realistic foreign policy," he continued, "which will resist evil where it finds it, and which will realize that a world like an egg cannot be half bad and half good without bringing ruin to the whole."

Senator Mundt said that our foreign policy should enable us to lead, organize and assist all freedom loving nations where we can find them so we can have collective security against communism.

According to the South Dakota Senator, the United States should develop an international program for controlling the atomic bomb; it must find or create a force either within or without the structure of the United Nations for preventing Russia with its veto "from continuing to be both the dictator of her own conquests and the dictator of international policies at Lake Success."

In her keynote address, Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne, DAR president general, put the national society on record in favor of strong air power.

"America must rule the air. We want smashing air power and plenty of it," she emphasized. "This is the stand of the DAR."

Mrs. O'Byrne explained, "This Nation must have consolidated air power, integrated with land and sea power to meet any challenge to national security. Aviation and all that embraces is vitally important today, not only for our national safety but the protection of our good neighbors either on this hemisphere or across the sea."

Reiterating the DAR's traditional stand against communism, the president general, added, "It is surprising how many Communists and those of the Communist stripe are in evdence at so-called 'peace conferences.' You do not find them present at any national defense meeting, unless they are in the picket line outside."

Last night's program opened with a half-hour concert by the United States Marine Band under the direction of Maj. William F. Santelmann. Robert R. De Hart, musician, first class, U.S.M.C., played the assembly call

A ripple of applause passed down the filled-to-capacity hall as the national officers made their entrance immediately following the pages gowned in white and carrying the State flags.

But the DAR members reserved their heartiest applause for their president general, Mrs. O'Byrne, whose pale blue gown set off her blue and white ribbon and orchid corsage.

Mrs. O'Byrne then called the fifty-eighth Continental Congress to order. Rear Admiral William N. Thomas, Naval Chief of Chaplains, offered the invocation.

The Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag was conducted by Mrs. Maurice Clark Turner, national chairman of the correct use of the flag committee. Mrs. Charles R. Curtiss, national chairman of the Americanism committee, led the American's Creed.

The National Anthem was sung by Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, wife of the President's nominee for Undersecretary of Commerce.

Greetings were given by D. C. Commissioner John Russell Young, Judge Ben H. Powell, 3d, president general of the Sons of the American Revolution, and Mrs. Donald Bennett Adams, national president of the Children of the American Revolution.

Miss Patricia Edwards, junior national president of the CAR, then was presented, along with the color bearer, Leslie William Chittenden, junior state president of the Maryland CAR, and the Colonial-costumed flower bearers, Ann Cole Kernodle, age 2, and her brother, John Robert Kernodle, jr., 4, of the Society of the CAR of North Carolina.

The following honorary presidents general were introduced: Mrs. Grace L. H. Brosseau, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, Mrs. Russell William Magna, Mrs. William A. Becker, Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., Mrs. William H. Pouch and Mrs. Julius Y. Talmadge.

Solos by Baritone Walter Cassel with Stewart Wille accompanying completed the evening's program

Today's Highlights

Highlight of today's agenda is the president general's reception at 8:30 p. m. at Constitution Hall. Various committees will meet individually this morning. Later the chaplain general and visiting State chaplains will place wreaths at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery and at the tombs of George and Martha Washington at Mount Vernon.

The remainder of the afternoon will be given to social meetings of the State delegations and national committees. At 10 p. m. tonight at the Mayflower Hotel the convention's pages will be honored at a dance by the president general and national board.

Miss Elizabeth Arnold Wed To Lieut. Dallman; Miss Smith Miss Montfort Join April Brides

EASTER bonnets paled yesterday before orange blossoms and heirloom lace, as society attended weddings of Washington girls. Miss Elizabeth Welsh Arnold, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William Howard Arnold, became the bride of Lieut. James Howard Dallman; Miss Florence B. Montfort and James Richard Tastet were married, and Miss Betty Joy Smith became the bride of Lieut. John Thomas Burke, USA.

The marriage of Miss Arnold and Lieut. Dallman took place in a quiet ceremony at Post Chapel, Fort Myer, Va., the Rev. Clarence R. Ford officiating. A large reception followed in the Officers' Club ballroom at Fort Leslie J. McNair.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in ivory silk satin, fashioned with fitted bodice and long court train lined with heirloom Michelangelo lace. Her train-length veil of French illusion fell from a cap of matching lace, and she carried an arm bouquet of brandywine roses.

Mrs. Parkman Halsey Clancy was matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Virginia Summerlin and Miss Frances Brooke Dear of Washington, and Miss Janet Cleiland Broun and Miss Elise Barclay Broun of St. Louis, Mo. Best man was Capt. Edward A. Langdon of Akron, Ohio. Ushering were David Edward Dallman of Rye, N. Y.; Robert W. Parmele and Lieut. Kyran M. Murphy 3d, of Minneapolis, Minn.; Addison H. Douglass of Long Island City, N. Y.; Lieut. Harris M. Findlay, jr., of Richmond, Va.; Parkman H. Clancy of Washington, Capt. James E. Shanahan, Capt. Donald L. Becker and William Howard Arnold, jr. Joseph Coleman Arnold, aged 6, was ringbearer.

As the bride and bridegroom turned to leave the altar, Captain Shanahan, Captain Becker, Lieutenant Findlay and Lieutenant Murphy formed an arch of sabers under which they passed.

The bride is a member of the Junior League. She attended Maryville College of the Sacred Heart and Georgetown Convent of the Visitation. Lieutenant Dallman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward William Dallman of Minneapolis, Minn., was graduated from West Point, class of '45, and he is now stationed with the Second Battalion, Third Infantry, Fort McNair.

After a wedding trip South, the couple will reside in Washington.

Brazilian Visitors Honored at Dinner

BARON AND BARONESS SAAVEDRA of Rio de Janeiro were the guests in whose honor the Ambassador of Brazil, Mauricio Nabuco, entertained last evening at a dinner at the embassy.

Bride-Elect Is Honored at Tea

One of the brightest gatherings in town yesterday was the tea given by Miss Joan Schweinhaut, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Henry A. Schweinhaut, in honor of Miss Sara Ann Peabody, bride-elect of Lieut. Wiliam Wagner. The tea was given at the Kenwood Country Club.

Miss Peabody, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. Winthrop Peabody, is leaving soon for Japan, where her marriage to Lieutenant Wagner will take place.

Miss Mary Ann Schweinhaut, younger sister of the hostess, and Miss Myria Ramirez of Puerto Rico, a house guest of Miss Schweinhaut, assisted at yesterday's tea. A large wooden ring banked with flowers and filled with presents for the bride centered the buffet.

Many of Miss Schweinhaut's classmates from Visitation Convent and Rosemont College attended the tea.

Tastet—Montfort

THE wedding of Miss Florence B. Montfort and James Richard Tastet took place in St. Matthew's Cathedral. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Christensen of Washington and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Waldo J. Tastet, also of Washington.

Msgr. John Spence officiated at the 7 p. m. ceremony, and a reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, on Broad Branch road.

For her wedding the bride wore a gown of ivory satin with pointed sleeves and sweetheart neckline. Her veil of Brussels lace fell from a cap of matching lace, and she carried a white orchid on a prayer book.

Miss Blanche McFalls was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary Montfort, Miss Faye MacFalls, Miss Betty Tastet, Miss Mary Tastet and Miss Joan Tastet. Waldo J. Tastet, jr., was best man, and the ushers were Franklin Schneider 3d, Philip A. Simpson, William Aubrey Simpson, John Francis Hillyard, jr., and William F. Hillyard.

The couple will honeymoon in Florida and they will make their home at Tilden Hall in this city.

Burke—Smith

MISS BETTY JOY SMITH and Lieut. John Thomas Burke were married yesterday in Walter Reed Memorial Chapel. Mrs. Burke is the daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Thomas L. Smith. Lieut. Burke is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Burke of Gadsden, Ala.

Chaplain Gorden G. Hawley officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a reception at Hotel 2400. Gen. Smith gave his daughter in marriage. She was gowned in dacia rose lace, ankle length, and her white hat was trimmed with dacia lace. Her flowers were a bouquet of white roses, gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. John L. Brownlow was matron of honor, and Thomas L. Smith, jr., was best man.

The bride attended Southwestern College at Memphis, Tenn., and was graduated from Washington University in St. Louis. Lieut. Burke was graduated from West Point in 1945.

At Congressional Club Breakfast

Pacific Fashions To Be Dramatized

By Peggy Preston

AMERICA'S great fashion heritage from the territories over which her flag has waved will be dramatized at the breakfast which members of the Congressional Club will give in honor of Mrs. Truman on April 27 at the Shoreham Hotel.

From Hawaii, the Philippines and Alaska will come ancient native costumes and their modern adaptations. They will be shown side by side in what promises to be the season's most unique fashion show.

Adding to the color of the Pacific theme will be dancers and music from Hawaii and the Philippines, the songs from the land of the igloo and the Eskimo.

The story of Hawaiian fashions will be unfolded through the designs of Anna, a Viennese designer, who established a custom shop in Honolulu several years ago. Anna herself will be present to commentate on that portion of the show which features her designs.

VIEWING the enchanted islands as a melting pot of fashion as well as a melting pot of Pacific peoples, Anna will trace the influence on modern styles of the various races and nationalities who have settled there.

She will begin with a dress of Tapa cloth, earliest Polynesian fabric. Made from the beaten bark of a paper mulberry tree, the cloth was then printed with figures representing coral, fish, and other symbols of the islands.

Then, in order of their arrival in Hawaii, will come the costumes of the Chinese, the American missionaries of 1820, the South Sea Islanders, the Japanese, Portuguese and Filipinos.

The missionaries, intent on covering up the brown bodies of the care-free natives, offered the "Mother Hubbard;" the South Sea Islanders, a "Holoku," a dress with train; the Chinese introduced their exquisite brocaded robes, and the Japanese brought their "Obi," or sash. Using each of these items as inspiration, Anna has created modern adaptations in play, street and evening clothes.

Alaska's contributions to present-day styles will be shown in a collection of ensembles ranging from the ancient to the new. The cunning parka, hooded and warm, will have a modern counterpart. A seal coat, made of native Alaskan seals, a necklace of jade mined in Alaska, will be among the items shown.

Man Wins Introduction to Girl, Announces He Is Madly in Love With Her, Institutes Courtship and Then Grows Coldly Difficult

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Last November our daughter Bette, 20, met Frank, 32, a former Army officer, who told her immediately that he loved her madly and asked for her steady company.

It seems he had seen her some weeks before in another man's company and made up his mind he wanted to know her. Now he wants to marry her. However, his recent behavior worries Bette, and after some discussion we have agreed to ask your opinion, which Bette respects.

Frank is intelligent, a good conversationalist, can be courteous when in the humor, and he has many hobbies that interest Bette—who, incidentally, has a good position and many friends. Formerly he treated her tenderly, but now he shows no real affection, and we are an affectionate family.

Man's Tantrums Demoralize Girl

HE WANTS Bette to be affectionate with him, but he seems unresponsive and also suspicious. He comes to see Bette six nights a week and always telephones the seventh night to see if she is home; and she daren't mention other boy friends to him. Yet twice recently he has confessed dating two different girls when angry at Bette, and says she is to blame for it.

He gets angry over trifles, finds fault with things Bette says and does, and at times has left in a huff, which crushes her. She is very attached to him, but I don't know if it is love or infatuation. She says if they break up she will join the WAVES.

Incidentally, Frank's parents were divorced and he never had much real home life. He seems to enjoy spending Sundays and holidays with us, and once he told me that Bette is all he has in this world and that he loves her madly. But would he make her a good husband? I've tried to persuade Bette nicely that he wouldn't; but what do you think? E. B.

Man Is Fighting Disorderly Past

DEAR E. B.: Obviously Frank is acutely neurotic, due to an unhappy disordered past personal history—as a result of which he feels chronically insecure in emotional relationships he forms; and invariably tends to blame the love-partner of his choice for his morbid distrustful reactions.

In this instance Bette has become the goat of his neurotic symptoms, through no fault of her own except in being his sweetheart. And the humiliation, heartaches and accusations she endures from him in courtship are but a mild taste compared to the jealous, moody, vindictive abuse he would unleash on a wife who tried to behave normally with him and others—in wholesome, affectionate, friendly ways.

In all probability Frank brings considerable magnetism and a surface show of self confidence to his romantic excursions, but fundamentally he is a fear-sick child, anticipating rejection when his true self shall have been read by the love-object whose favor he sues.

Girl's Victimized by Man's Neurosis

ESSENTIALLY he doesn't give himself credit for being love-worthy, because his childhood experience fomented a different conclusion. And now in relation to Bette, the more he craves her devotion and the security of her way-of-life, the more he fights himself and her natural serenity.

Frank wants to love and be loved, yes; but in the face of opportunity to develop that relatedness, he feels threatened, unaccountably, and begins to tighten his defenses and "attack" the other party. Thus Bette has become a victim of neurotic commotion that is strictly Frank's problem—and that she can't solve. In common sense she should break with him, and regain composure right where she is. M. H.

Hints for the Wise

Sponge off cane seats on chair occasionally with salt water. It will tighten them up and prevent sagging.

The strong brown paper that comes around the laundry is splendid for the pantry shelves where pots and pans are kept.

A little ammonia once a week in the water for plants will keep the soil sweet and the leaves of the plants glossy.

Hurry Is a Habit

Nowadays You Must Slow Down To Get the Most Out of Living

By Ida Jean Kain

THE old proverb "Only a fool hurries" was written back in the days when human beings lived at a slower pace. Today a certain amount of speed is necessary in order to keep up with the times. But the trouble is hurry becomes habit—the tendency is to go faster and faster. Doesn't that just get us to the end of the road before our time?

Hurry builds tension, and tension is today's No. 1 gremlin. Tension not only squanders energy, but it can take all the joy out of day-to-day living. But since hurry is habit, and fairly well fixed, it takes deliberate planning to break it.

One career girl found herself living at high-trigger tension, under constant pressure and 10 minutes late all day long. She slowed her pace by allowing herself a 15-minute leeway carried through the entire day. It worked miracles. Simply allowing an extra quarter hour smoothed the whole day. She was no longer ruffled by red lights, traffic, or slow pedestrians. She stopped crowding appointments, kept her time margin and found to her amazement she accomplished more. But most important of all, she learned to live serenely.

A new mother who found herself so tired at the end of the day that life was hardly worth living, followed her doctor's orders to rest for 10 minutes out of each hour. Instead of keeping on until she was so tired she could drop, she rested before she was tired, thereby renewing her energy each hour. Before long she felt like her old self again and was rested and happy at the end of the day. In the long run she got more work done.

A rundown underweight was advised to rest for 30 minutes before lunch and dinner. But she was a clerk in a store . . . where could she rest before lunch? One day in desperation she went into a church and there in the quietness she found peace of mind and renewed strength. From then on she spent half of her lunch hour there each day.

Back to hurryitis. It is particularly bad to start the day rushing, for then the tendency is to go at a fast pace right on, because hurrying builds up tension. Its not the physical act of hurrying as much as it is the anxiety and pressure created.

Exotic Odyssies Offered To Weary Washingtonians With April Wanderlust

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

ITCHY HEEL NOTES: Though it's freezing, spring is here and even the staidest heels itch with wanderlust. How lovely to step on a private plane and zoom carefree to exotic lands! On April 28 a number of energetically lucky will do just that.

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, Mrs. Robert L. Bacon will be off to Iran and Middle East points in a plane chartered by Arthur Upham Pope, the expert on Persian art. They'll be gone approximately a month. There'll be other passengers, of course, and the round trip costs $2000.

From Hawaii, Don the Beachcomber adds fuel to spring fever. He's chaperoning a 12-day plane trip from Honolulu to Tahiti and Moorea with stopovers at such delicious sounding places as Bora-Bora and Palmyra.

The "works" cost $925.00 and includes a spot of interisland schooner transportation. Since permission to visit the beautiful islands of French Oceania has been almost unobtainable since the war, anyone sufficiently well-heeled and beachcomberingly inclined had better hop Hawaiiwards snappily.

THE LATE Mrs. Edward McLean ate up publicity and was frank enough to admit it. So when the highly placed committee ladies of a local charity asked her estate trustees to loan Friendship for a benefit exhibition, the ensuing reply caused amusement as well as annoyance. The trustees regretted refusing the request, but the committee would, of course, understand since they must be aware the McLean family had always been "unalterably opposed to publicity."

COL. SERGE OBOLENSKY, formerly one of the Hilton Hotel chain's most competent ornaments, has branched out on his own. Since March 1, it's been Serge Obolensky & Associates, who will specialize in public relations, promotion, hotel management problems, restaurant and resort dittos plus a department handling public and private interior decoration.

Last week the Serge Obolensky & Associates really went to town, taking over the management of New York's Sherry-Netherlands Hotel. Serge, once a brother-in-law of hotelkeeper de luxe, Vincent Astor, was responsible for decorating the St. Regis' glamorously successful Viennese Roof Garden, the Maisonette Russe's original setting of Russian-clad waiters tossing swordlike skewers of flashing shashlik, of fancily costumed moujiks doing squats to frenzied balalaika strumming and, more recently, introducing Jean Page's trompe l'oeil painting in the Mayflower Lounge, the Hotel Plaza's newly rejuvenated Grill.

Around the Plaza he had New York's last social remnants skipping to Viennese waltzes clad in Gibson Girl frills, while down in Bermuda the Obolensky touch centered in the Bermudiana's undersea cafe. Taking all this into consideration, it will be wonderful to see what Serge will dream up for the once rather stuffy Sherry-Netherlands. Possibly something surrealist or existentalist? Anyway it'll be fun an da change from the ideas of that other favorite hotel sprucer-upper, Dorothy Draper, who went very dowager, indeed, down in White Sulphur Springs.

THE MOST Eastery sight in blustery Washington's fashionable Massachusetts Avenue neighborhood is the small garden plot fronting the Netherland Embassy at 24th and S sts. No less than 2500 bulbs, all Holland imports, were planted by Mme. van Kleffens who estimates every single one popped up dutifully on the precise date scheduled. The ground is handsomely veiled with English ivy, and tulips, hyacinths, narcissi tower from this handsome base. The pinky-mauve tulips are especially appealing but connoisseurs rave over the huge, velvety-black blooms. Take a look before they're gone.

THIS department's admiration for Winston witticisms is fast making us into a Churchilliana clearing house. Latest to wing this way includes that other snappy crackster, George Bernard Shaw. Before the opening of a GBS theatrical opus, the nonagenarian author dispatched a telegram to the former Prime Minister. "Am reserving tickets for my premiere, come and bring a friend, if you have one." Within minutes the reply riposted across wire: "Impossible to be present for first performance. Will attend second, if there is one."

Daughters of Runnemede Hold Annual Meeting, Luncheon

MORE than 100 members of the National Society of the Daughters of the Barons of Runnemede, wearing the red and gold colors of Baron Robert Fitzwalter, met at the Shoreham Hotel yesterday for the annual business meeting and luncheon.

One of the most exclusive of all the patriotic societies, the Daughters of the Barons of Runnemede are direct lineal descendants of the barons who put their seal on the Magna Carta in 1215, acting as "sureties" to enforce the document.

From the Marshall of the Barons, the Baron Robert Fitzwalter, the present day "daughters" borrowed the colors of red and gold for their symbolic ribbons.

The Daughters of the Barons of Runnemede, who pride themselves on the accuracy of their lineage papers, was founded in America in 1921. Mrs. Robert G. Hogan, a Colonial Dame of Baltimore, brought together a group of women in Washington and organized the Society.

Although there were originally 25 barons acting as sureties, the daughters trace their ancestry back to 16 barons, the other 9 either having no children or grandchildren.

At the morning session three members were elected to the Council of Sureties—Mrs. J. E. Kinney of Ohio, Mrs. William J. Sweeney of Illinois and Mrs. Willard Steele of Pennsylvania. The Council of Sureties and the national officers, who are elected every five years, govern the society. Three members are elected to the council each year to serve for a five-year term.

Following the reports of the officers and chairman at the morning meeting, the members met for luncheon with Representative Carl Hinshaw (R., Calif.) as guest speaker.

Addressing the group on communism in our Schools," Representative Hinshaw declared the instruments on which Communists rely in their conspiracy to turn American educational institutions into spawning beds of comunism were (1) teachers, (2) textbooks, and (3) organizations with specialized educational institutions.

We have no idea how many Soviet-minded teachers are operating in our schools today, he said, but "in our higher institutions they number in the hundreds."

Presiding was Mrs. William Frederick Pearson of Washington, national president of the society

Mrs. Pearson appointed Dr. Arthur Adams, eminent genealogist and regent general of the Order of the Crown of Charlemange, to be official genealogist of the society. Dr. Adams is one of the five members of the committee on heraldry of the New England Historical and Genealogical Society.

Rug-Making Class Opens Tonight

A new class in hooked rug making will start tonight at the Alexandria YWCA, 602 Cameron st., with Mrs. A. L. Bresnahan as instructor. The class will be held each Tuesday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Mrs. Bresnahan will assist pupils in selecting patterns, color schemes and designs, and teach them how to shade flowers, leaves, scrolls and other decorative motifs. Old woolen materials, cut in strips, can be used for the work, Mrs. Bresnahan says, thus adding to the economy and sentimental value of the rug. For further information about the class, call Temple 4186.

Mrs. Edwards Urges Greater Registration For '50, '52 Elections

Mrs. India Edwards, chairman of the Women's Division of the National Democratic Party, yesterday reported that political activities among Democratic women throughout the country did not subside with the presidential victory in November. She said the distaff members of the party are now concentrating their efforts toward a large registration for the '50 and '52 elections. Even Republicans should be urged to register, Mrs. Edwards told the Women's National Democratic Club at a luncheon meeting at the clubhouse. The Democrats have such a good program, she explained, members of the opposite party can be persuaded to vote for it.

Philippine Dinner

A dinner will be given this evening by the Philippine Ambassador, Joaquin M. Elizalde, in honor of the new United States Ambassador to the Philippine and Mrs. Myron M. Cowen.

Ask Anne Directions for Smoking Herring

Would you tell us how to smoke herring? We catch them ourselves and would like to smoke them for a change instead of salting them to preserve them.

D. C.

The following are the directions for smoking fish as prepared by the Education and Market Development Section of the Fish and Wildlife Service: "Fish may be smoked either in the round, gutted, split and beheaded, or cut into pieces with or without the skin removed. There are two general methods of smoking fish: hot smoking or barbecuing, and cold smoking. In hot smoking, the fish are hung near the fire, usually not more than 3 feet or 4 feet distant, and smoked at temperatures of 150 to 200 degrees F., so that they are partially or wholly cooked. Therefore, while hot smoked fish is very appetizing, and requires no preparation, it will keep for only a short time.

"In cold smoking, the fish are hung at some distance from a low smoldering fire and cured at temperatures usually lower than 90 degrees F. (A temperature of 90 degrees F. may be used occasionally.) Degree of preservation depends upon the length of time the fishes are smoked; fish cold-smoked a few hours, for example, will keep only a short time. If an extended period of preservation is desired, fish must be cold-smoked from a few days to a week or more.

"A smokehouse for preparing small lots of fish is easily made by knocking the ends out of a large barrel; setting it over a hole in the ground about 2 feet deep and a little narrower in width than the diameter of the barrel, and nailing wooden strips inside the barrel on to sides, a few inches below the top. The ends of the smoke sticks rest on those strips. Place loosely fitting cover on top. Dig a hole adjacent to the bottom of the barrel connected with the pit, and fit it with a cover. The fire is fed through this hole which also serves as a draft when the lid is partly raised. A smokehouse so constructed is best for hot smoking, but it may be used for cold smoking if operated carefully. If the fire is permitted to flare up, however, the fish may be scorched. It is best to dig the fire pit about 12 feet away from the smokehouse pit and connect them by a covered trench which acts as a pipe. Always place the fire pit on the side from which the prevailing winds come.

I accidentally brushed past a freshly lacquered screen door while wearing a new corduroy jacket. To my annoyance, there is a noticeable streak down the back. The jacket is gray. First I applied lard; that failed. Then I tried cleaning fluid. The latter failing, I brushed it with a lukewarm soap solution and sent it to the cleaners. It came back to me unchanged. Every effort of mine has been in vain. Can you help me? A. S.

There is a strong possibility that nothing will remove the stain. However, you might try sponging it with a lacquer thinner which can be purchased at paint and hardware stores. If this doesn't remove it, dampen the stained area and sprinkle powdered sodium perborate (obtainable at drug stores) on the stain. Allow to stand for 20 minutes, rubbing occasionally between the fingers. Sponge with clear water to remove the bleach completely. If this lightens the stain but doesn't remove it, repeat. Be sure to test the effect of the perborate on the color by trying it on an inside spot before applying to the stain for it is a bleach. If this doesn't lighten the stain so the jacket is usuable, my remaining suggestion would be to have the jacket dyed a color dark enough to cover the stain.

I understand there is a varnish which makes furniture heat and water resistant. I would like to use this on a limed oak desk. Will this detract from the finish in any way? How should it be applied and how often? G. G. B.

Remove all the wax or oil from the surface of the desk by wiping with turpentine. Lightly sand to cut the gloss on the present finish. Apply two coats of the best grade of interior varnish, lightly sanding the first coat after it dries thoroughly and before the next is applied. When last coat is thoroughly dry (after three to four days) rub with pumice and lubricating or paraffin oil to cut the gloss and give a soft sheen to the finish. You may finish with a well-rubbed coat of paste wax.

Where in Washington can coarse fine salt for making corning brine be purchased? J. H. D.

Plain (not iodized) salt can be used successfully for all brining purposes, including making of corned beef.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

In most schools today, excursions out into the community are a part of the curriculum. Instead of relying entirely on books, learning is based on first-hand experiences. But schooltime is limited. There are many skills which the school must teach. Parents can make a fine contribution to their children's education by taking family excursions on the weekends.

A ride to the end of the bus or streetcar line and an hour or so of exploration can be a lot of fun. With a little preparation, a fascinating time can be had by visiting the local firehouse, police station, power plant or other center of interest. If one checks with them ahead of time, there usually will be a warm welcome from the firemen, the policemen or the engineers on duty.

Sometimes, follow-up family trips . . . add to the experiences children have had on school excursions are valuable and give the youngsters additional things to talk about at school. If the teacher has taken the group on a short trip to the museum and your youngster didn't have as much time with the dinosaurs or the model Indian village as he would have liked, the family trip can take care of it.

Nor should such trips be thought of as "duty" for parents. To see things afresh through children's eyes can be a delightful and rewarding experience for the grown-ups.

MEN OF GENUINE SALES ABILITY

An unusual opportunity for a permanent career in a highly paid profession in which earnings range from $5,000 to $25,000 annually is offered by an old established investment house. Nationwide in the scope of its operations and widely known in investment circles, this firm is now interested in expanding the sale of investment trust shares for companies of high repute.

Selling experience in the field of securities is desirable but not essential, because the men who can meet our requirements in other respects will receive an intensive course of training at our expense. Thereafter, they will receive the selling aids essential to the solicitation of new business, including: the complete cooperation of our organization, the use of highly organized investment research facilities, and leads resulting from our advertising campaign. Compensation — commission basis; drawing account contingent on experience and qualifications.

The major qualifications we require may briefly be summarized as follows: (1) A practical working knowledge of the principles of successful salesmanship; (2) Unquestioned integrity that inspires confidence; (3) An educational and cultural background commensurate with the importance of the position.

To arrange for an interview, telephone ME. 3635—or come to Room 132, Washington Hotel, at 2 p. m., Wednesday through Friday.

Hightown, N. J., April 18 (U.P.).—A State

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Does Abner Doubleday Know About This?

Frank W. Brew of 1209 N. Powhatan st., Arlington, Va., thinks that this may be an excitingly different baseball season.

He notes that a recent Washington Post account of a game between the Universities of Michigan and Virginia included a box score which revealed that a double play had been made, Fryling to Taft to Huff.

This play is especially newsworthy inasmuch as Fryling and Taft played for Michigan, and Huff was the Virginia third-baseman.

If our box score was accurate, this thing may make the Black Sox scandal look like child's play.

CRYSTAL BALL DEPT.

As is our annual custom at this time of year, Jim Wessel of the Associated Press and I herewith record our predictions as to how the teams will finish in this year's major league pennant races.

I did pretty good last year; but ordinarily, any similarity between these selections and the actual order of finish is purely coincidental.

| | JIM | BILL |
|---|---|---|
| AMERICAN LEAGUE | | |
| | Red Sox | Red Sox |
| | Indians | Indians |
| | Athletics | Athletics |
| | Yanks | Nats |
| | Tigers | Yanks |
| | Browns | Tigers |
| | White Sox | Browns |
| | Nats | White Sox |

| NATIONAL LEAGUE | |
|---|---|
| Pirates | Dodgers |
| Dodgers | Braves |
| Phils | Pirates |
| Braves | Cards |
| Giants | Phils |
| Cards | Giants |
| Reds | Reds |
| Cubs | Cubs |

In picking the Pirates to finish first and the Nats to finish last, it appears to me that Mr. Wessel displays a courage which far outruns his sagacity.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Lovely male and female kittens." (Dupont 9228 after 3:30 p. m.)

"Eight-week-old bob-tailed kitten; coal black fur and blue eyes." (Atlantic 5411.)

"Lovely white rabbit and nice, big hutch; can be kept outdoors the year around." (Emerson 1241.)

"NO FURY LIKE A WOMAN EVICTED"

I'm to be visited by a delegation of irate females on my radio program (WTOP, 10 a. m.) today.

They're spokesmen for the 3500 residents of Arlington Farms who are being evicted by Uncle Sam—and brother, are they steaming!

Jeeves—lay out my helmet, shield and armor. If those girls decide I look like a Congressman I want to have a fighting chance.

MISCELLANY

My recent item on accident statistics moves A. M. Stephens to suggest that inasmuch as speeding causes most of our accidents, all autos should be equipped with governors that would keep them from going more than 40 miles per hour . . . Betty Smith of 1919 3d st. nw. moans: "Why, oh why are they cutting down all those lovely old shade trees in the 400, 500 and 600 blocks of Rhode Island ave. nw.?" . . . Just to prove that they solved my recent "match puzzle" before the answer appeared in the next day's paper, three District Liners submitted solutions postmarked the same day. They were: Mrs. Lydia H. Thaden of 4504 S. 36th st., Arlington, Va.; Ray C. James of 709 Tennessee ave., Alexandria, Va., and Mrs. Luisa C. Linneman of 1005 N. Sycamore st., Falls Church, Va. . . . My items about children who cut an unusually large number of teeth at unusually early ages bring a challenge from Mr. and Mrs. Victor Galin of 705 S. Fillmore st., Arlington, Va. They report that their 11-month-old daughter, Janice, has 16 teeth—and wonder if any District Liner can beat that record . . . John F. Flavin of 1162 S. Thomas st., Arlington, Va., has high praise for Capital Transit Operator No. 3572, who left his car to help an elderly blind man across a busy intersection. The records list No. 3572 as William F. Southworth of 1214 S st. se. . . . And Mrs. Madge I. Harner of 2755 Macomb st. nw. has words of praise for Officer Joseph Hawkins of the Montgomery County Police. The other midnight, Officer Hawkins came to the rescue of five females, stranded by a flat tire. "Without a word, he took charge, and changed the tire for us, and wouldn't even accept a cigarette in thanks" . . . A. H. of 4514 15th st. nw. reports that during the pre-Easter rush in the department stores, the elevator starter in one downtown place said, "Two more please." Five sweet young things pushed past the starter and squeezed in. As the elevator started up, one of the bobby soxers called out: "Okay girls—synchronize your breathing and we'll make it."

MUCH ADO ABOUT ZERO

Ah, what a difference a cipher makes when it's uprooted by a woolgathering printer, and then set down in the wrong place!

William Ferdinand Kerchner, sr., of Oteen, N. C., notes that one of our recent "race results" reads: "$350 claiming; 40-year-olds and up."

Pretty cheap company, even for such elderly horses.

"Never mind about the moonlit waters and the whispering breezes! Do they serve Land O'Lakes Sweet Cream Butter at this place?"

*Churned only from Fresh, Sweet Cream

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Congress Winks at Land Waste

By Drew Pearson

One factor which contributes to disastrous floods in the Far West is overgrazing of national forests and public lands by big cattle and sheep ranchers. Regarding this, the present Eighty-first Congress has now proved itself just as bad as the much-maligned Republican Eightieth Congress.

Barrett

Last year the U. S. Forest Service was sharply criticized by a House Public Lands Subcommittee, headed by GOP Congressman Frank Barrett of Wyoming, for being too strict on the big cattlemen and sheepmen and their grazing privileges. The Forest Service replied that 50 per cent of public range lands were faced with erosion, due to overgrazing and the range had to be policed carefully. Otherwise cattlemen grazed too many head per acre on land that belonged not to them but to all the taxpayers.

Barrett vigorously dissented. After a series of public hearings, he and nine Public Lands colleagues sent a protest to former Agriculture Secretary Clinton Anderson, demanding the limitation of grazing be banned for three years. Anderson wouldn't hear of it and the Forest Service continued its farsighted policy of curtailing overgrazing.

This year the Forest Service is under congressional fire from the Democrats for the opposite reason—not cracking down hard enough on overgrazing.

However, one essential in the prevention of overgrazing is enough rangers to police the national forests. Cattlemen can go for months with twice the allotted number of head per acre on the range, unless enough forest rangers are on hand to police them. And without bothering to question the Forest Service on this phase of its work, the House Appropriations Committee arbitrarily clipped its funds for Forest Rangers by $1,518,500, charging:

"The Forest Service has full authority to fix the number of grazing permits . . . but in many cases has not exercised it to the point necessary to prevent depradation."

Note—If this committee cut is approved by Congress, the $1,518,500 slash will cost the taxpayers tens of millions in erosion losses in future years.

Best Seller

The American embassies in Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria have cabled the State Department for large shipments of a book that may become a best seller behind the Iron Curtain—the Sears, Roebuck catalogue.

In Prague, Czechoslovakia, a crowd two blocks long formed outside the American Informational Library the other day to look at pictures of goods you could buy in America. Hundreds tried to place orders for these goods, before Czech security police broke up the crowd.

American embassies in other Iron Curtain countries now want more mail-order house catalogues to show what capitalism means compared with communism.

The incident is important for two reasons: (1) It shows how eager the people of Iron Curtain countries are to do business with the United States, and (2) it shows how the State Department has neglected some of the simplest devices to sell American capitalism in countries where it counts most.

For instance, the idea of distributing Sears, Roebuck catalogues behind the Iron Curtain was first proposed by Morris Ernst, New York attorney, to President Roosevelt personally. That was in 1944. The idea has been repeated from time to time in this column.

However, nothing was done—even in such countries as Czechoslovakia where communication is easy—until last month.

Meanwhile, Congress is becoming more and more concerned about the huge cost of both financing and rearming western Europe against Russia. More and more Congressmen are arguing that this will be an endless drain on the American pocketbook, and have come round to the idea that we must break through the Iron Curtain and undercut the Kremlin with people-to-people friendship.

Getting the Russian people acquainted with the American people is going to be the only long-term insurance against war.

Exhibits of the French Merci Train gifts are still attracting tremendous crowds from coast to coast extending even to Honolulu, where the gifts went on display April 1. At Louisville, Ky., the J. B. Speed Art Museum had to hire additional help to handle the throngs of people. In the Capitol Building at Madison, Wis., crowds moved three and four abreast past the gifts, and the waiting line was so long many people had to return the next day.

Wisconsin is sending its gifts by trailer to as many communities as request the exhibit and anticipate it will take a year to cover the State. Madison, Wis., schools, the University of Wisconsin and the Madison Business and Professional Women's Club have taken on the mammoth task of acknowledging each French gift individually. Wisconsin has the reputation of being a German-American State but it believes in people-to-people friendship.

Other States are doing the same. In Arkansas Governor Sid McMath has already sent out more than 500 "thank-you" notes to every French mayor and individual contributing to the Arkansas car of the Merci Train. Idaho students of French will acknowledge the gifts for their State.

Washington State staged its main exhibit in Seattle, with thousands of people hearing special lectures explaining the gifts. Smaller exhibitions followed in Spokane and other Washington cities, and the University of Washington has been given a selection of the gifts which it will use as a traveling exhibit year after year.
